The BG Police Department seems to think that making an example of the Avondale Pub is the best way to maintain order.

However, the BG Police Department seems to think that making an example of the Avondale Pub is the best way to maintain order. These fraternities and other organizations in the area are not concerned with making sure that the community is safe or maintaining a good image. They are more concerned with protecting their own interests and promoting their own brand of "fun." In reality, they are using the police to enforce their own rules and keep their members from getting caught.

The Avondale Pub is a popular spot for students to unwind and enjoy a drink. However, it has been closed several times in recent years due to incidents of intoxication, noise, and disorderly conduct. The police are often called to this location, and it seems that their actions are more about enforcing their own agenda than about ensuring public safety.

Safe sex becoming a dangerous myth

Editor The News: As my second week as a student here winds down, I find myself asking students about their sexual behaviors and their views on safe sex.

Three of the four people I have spoken to about safe sex say they are not concerned about it. In fact, two of them said that they do not believe in safe sex. They feel that the risk of disease is low and that they do not need to worry about it. This attitude is dangerous and could lead to serious consequences.

Also, I asked the same question to a group of students who were part of a fraternity. They were all gegenst the idea of safe sex and felt that it would be too much of a hassle. They said that they would rather take the risk than use a condom, even though they knew that condoms can prevent the spread of disease.

This attitude is not uncommon among college students. Many believe that the risk of disease is low and that they do not need to worry about it. However, this is not true. The risk of disease is much higher than students think, and it can be prevented with the use of condoms.

I urge all students to take safe sex seriously and to understand the risks involved. It is important to protect yourself and your partners from disease.
Opinions

What do you think about the city’s proposed Friday, April 26th party in the Grand Ballroom?

Holly Headley is a political science major from Pittsburgh. “I think the mayor better wake up to reality because I don’t believe that the students will participate in an event like that.”

Tricia Eagle is a senior theater major from White House, Tn. “Considering all the madness there was last year, it sounds like a good idea because it will get the people off the streets, but I’m just wondering how successful a non-alcoholic East Merry Madness would be.”

Brian Thomas is a political science major from Solon, O. “I think that it will be a flop and that the mayor should start treating us as adults and not as children.”

Rosa Rainey is a junior MIS major from Centerville, O. “The party is a bad idea because those who go to the East Merry Madness and Frazee Frenzy are looking for alcohol and the outdoor environment, not the type of party that is trying to be put together.”

Chad Wright is a sophomore physical therapy major from Columbus. “I think it will be hard to get anyone to come to a non-alcoholic party because East Merry Madness is a great stress reliever for all the students and it is a tradition for BGSU.”

Libby Ward, a sophomore nursing major from Zanesville, O. “I think it will be a good idea as long as there are creative activities or a theme because that is the only way to get people to come.”

Just when you thought it was safe to park in Bowling Green.

Two city ordinances recently have been instituted to help keep parking traffic flowing by fining "meter feeders" and "ticket swipers".

"Thanks to the ordinances, anyone parking in a metered spot continues to feel the same way I did before," said Mayor Edwin Miller. "The money just finally came together for them in a couple of weeks." he added.

Burgess added it was a prime time for soliciting contracts for the work.

"Contractors are hungry for projects," he said. "They are actually underbidding for the projects in an attempt to get the work." Davidson added that traffic will be delayed for the next three weeks, weather permitting.

"Traffic is currently being redir ected," he said. "But it will be back to normal after the work is completed."

"Wrong parking tickets finally will be a thing of the past," he said. "But it will take a while to get the word out and people will have to change."

"The weather has been really cooperative, and we've been really lucky," he said.

Repairs on Mercer, Poe to cause delays for next three weeks

by Jacqueline Porter

For the first time since their original construction almost 20 years ago, Poe and Mercer roads are being redone at a cost of $1,675 a month for the two groups, according to Ward One Councilperson Frank Ward. The two roads, he said, are identical to others in the area.

According to Mayor Edwin Miller, the roads are being redone at a cost of $1,675 a month for the two groups.

"We're getting big bucks finally for these projects," he said. "We're getting more bang for the buck."

The key to finding out if democracy is working, according to former American congressman Joe Moakley, is to ask, "How do you feel about the way the politicians are leading you?" The Democrats are coming. The Democrats are coming. Nearly 100 people, including students from 10 Ohio colleges and universities, will gather at the University of Ohio this weekend for the Ohio College Democrats convention. The convention will have the opportunity to meet, compare notes, plan for the future, and work for continued increases in the Democratic party," said College Demo- crats President Chris Redfern.

"The convention, whose theme is 'Getting Green State University to the opposition's door,' begins today at 6. With the registration process and a wide variety of events planned for Saturday, Redfern said.

Several speakers will attend, including the freshly named winner of the Ohio attorney general's race Lee Fisher and outspoken and often controversial Youngstown congressperson Jim Traficant. He said.

"The Democrats are coming. The Demo- crats are coming. The party on campus. These politicians re- members. They don't take it for granted anymore because it's not as valu- able," he said.

The University chapter of College Demo- crats has been given invisible assistance in planning the convention by West College Democratic Party.

The convention is in the works for months and has been planned for the following week since Tuesday. I've got an 8:30 a.m. class scheduled for Fall 91. I'm not a nursing person. You can change it if it is too late.

Senior outfielder Chad Davis rips a pitch from an Ashland pitcher during BG's doubleheader last month. Davis is hitting .288 with one homerun and 15 runs batted in. He and the Falcons host Eastern Michigan's Thomas, again turned in 9.0s or better on the bars. Thomas, a MAC-standout on the balance beam, notched double figures in points and helped EMU win the MAC regular season title and also the post-season championship.

In addition he helped lead the Hurons (21-3 overall) to the NCAA's Sweet 16 last year as his team defeated the Indianapolis Indians in the Midwest Regional. He was the tournament's outstanding individual. Thomas' score of 9.70 on the balance beam was the highest scored by any male gymnast in the NCAA.

Thomas also had a 15.90 on the floor exercise against Central Michigan last year in which he tied for 10th place. Thomas is a junior who already holds his school record-tying score of 9.35 while Friel paced the Falcons on the meet record.

The Falcons opened MAC play last weekend when they split a twinbill at Ohio University this weekend. As a team, the Falcons have done a nice job of adjusting to different pitchers. "We've been scoring a lot of runs," Joseph said. "Our hitters — the Bobcats average only 2.35."

"I never know which defense is going to show up," Joseph said about the inconsistency of the Falcons in the field. "The key to our success this weekend will definitely be with the defense. We can't give up runs when we can't score ourselves. We need to play solid defense, or at least come close."

At any rate, Joseph isn't very worried. "It's such a long season," Joseph said. "I think the key to winning this season is if we want to develop consistency in play."
Weather a concern for golfers

by Kenton Ceminegoz

Ohio's weather has not been kind to these golfers, as rain has delayed practice for the third straight day. The forecast calls for rain Friday afternoon and early Saturday. Temperatures will cool off Saturday, but the chance of showers will be high. The Ohio State Invitational. The weather could delay the start of the men's tournament. The men's teams will play on the first two days of the tournament, while the women's teams will play on the final day.

"Weather has a tremendous impact on the game of golf," said Greg Nye, the head coach.

"The weather is crucial this year in the year to have players with a strong attitude playing in inclement conditions," he added. The men's teams will play in the morning round at WSU will be played on April 13th. The women's teams will play in the afternoon round at Wright State on April 14th.

"If the weather is bad, we will have to postpone the tournament," said men's head coach Sid Sink. "But if it's good, we will continue the tournament as scheduled." The men's team is looking forward to the tournament, while the women's team is hoping for better weather.

"We're looking for a score in the conference season," said senior co-captain Ruth Ristvey. "We want to win the conference and go to the NCAA tournament." The women's team is also looking to improve their ranking in the conference.

"We played well the first week of the season," said senior Mary Louise Martines. "But we were not as good in the second week." The women's team is looking to improve their play in the upcoming tournaments.

These Are A Few Of Your Favorite Things!
Saturday morning TV needs a toon-up

Television alert, Gentle Readers! There is a growing, pu$$-filled blight on the pop culture consciousness of America. When I first came to the University, I swore that I’d never talk about these people to remember the tire sequin industry afloat. TV? That show must keep the eye-dazzling spectacle of the bars don’t open until at least( the situation merits).

I played with the aluminum foil and searched for Daphne from Scooby Doo. I see marketing tie-ins with action figures I sec- tion detailing the adventures of Roseanne Barr as a dull, whim$$y columnist and his blue furry detail painting on the sides. I wanted to do Daphne so bad it hurt. Even being Shaggy about some of our lucky winners. Wendy King, Emily Vosburg, Morrella Raleigh, Marj<ie Minor, and Dean Wheeler (yes, that’s Dean Wheeler) answered the call to bring you the inside scoop on your fave raves. Thumbs up, buckaroos.

We gotta admit we were surprised by the outcome of some of the categories, but hey, that’s what makes democracy great. Thanks to you it works for all of us.

Okay teenbeats, you spoke your piece and we listened… and added it up.

What we got were the winners in the Insider’s first annual BC’s Favorite Things poll. Winners received the most votes on the banana split at the Student Union and the inside scoop on the News and Insider the weeks before and after Spring Break.

And as if that wasn’t enough, we assembled a whirly gang of intrepid hypedogs to tell ya about some of our lucky winners. Wendy King, Emily Vosburg, Morrella Raleigh, Marj<ie Minor, and Dean Wheeler (yes, that’s Dean Wheeler) answered the call to bring you the inside scoop on your fave raves. Thumbs up, buckaroos.

We gotta admit we were surprised by the outcome of some of the categories, but hey, that’s what makes democracy great. Thanks to you it works for all of us.

Also this week, Lucinda Rob- bins makes her Insider debut. Check her out on page three. Welcome aboard and fasten your seatbelt.

Yes, Yes, No, No. It’s in the Dulks board. The Editors.

Zoo crew goes after UAO gold

by Lucinda Robbins

University Activities Organization, in conjunction with the Little Sibs committee, will sponsor the first ZUAO olympics this Saturday, April 13, for Little Sibs Weekend.

The events will be held in the field between Kreischer Quadrangle and the Student Services Building from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Scheduled events consist of games, a volleyball tournament, food and music.

The games, which include water balloon races, an eating contest and a dunking booth, are aimed at younger siblings aged 12 and under. Everyone is welcome to participate in the games and no registration is required.

"Everyone who plays will get a prize like squirt guns and fun stuff," Jennifer Purdy, UAO vice-president, said.

The volleyball tournament is for University students or older siblings. The teams will consist of three women and three men. Prizes will be awarded to the top three teams, with the number one team winning $100. Purdy said that UAO expects a large turnout for the tournament. "We had a great turnout for the softball tournament in the fall, so we expect a lot for this," she said.

Refreshments will be available for purchase at the event, and music will be provided by WPAL.

This year will mark the first time that UAO has been involved with Little Sibs weekend. Purdy said that the Little Sibs Committee approached UAO about becoming involved with planning for the annual event. Traditionally, the Resident Student Association sponsors a zoo trip on Saturday morning of Little Sibs weekend, and Dry Dock provides activities for Saturday evening.

UAO decided to plan an event that would provide activities to entertain the kids on Saturday afternoon. This year's theme for Little Sibs weekend is "Join the BGSU Zoo Crew." UAO used this theme in coming up with the name for their event.

"It's really an event for all ages," Purdy added.

Compton's Coolest!

Pride of Kreischer voted University's fave dorm

by Dean Wheeler
staff writer

Compton Hall residents are living the good life. Compton was voted the favorite residence hall last week by poll respondents, and winning the award has spread happiness among the staffs of both Compton and Kreischer Quadrangle.

"I'm very happy and proud of all of Kreischer," Kreischer complex coordinator David Vaflancourt said. "(Compton winning the poll) says good things for the whole quadrangle."

"I was pleasantly surprised to hear that Compton had won," Assistant Complex Coordinator of Compton Amelia Bifchof said. Kreischer administrators claim Compton's resident advisor staff is responsible for the award. "Compton has a very good R.A. staff," Bifchof said. "And there is also a good relation between the R.A.'s and the residents — this builds a strong community."

The secret to the good relations between the staff and residents may be the attitude of the R.A.'s. "We try to focus on the residents and make living conditions better than in the past," Compton R.A. Bob Liegl said. "We also try to enforce the rules in a positive way."

The residents of Compton were also happy and a little surprised to hear that their hall had won the award.

"I always thought that we had a decent hall, but I am surprised to hear that it's the best on campus," freshman secondary education major Dwight Richter said. "I like it because it's loud, you don't always have to be quiet," freshman journalism major Jamie Smith said. "If you're loud, no one else really cares."

But some residents like the hall for other, more recreational reasons. "Our hall is phenomenal, and everyone with Nintendo and cable makes it what it is," freshman Chris Schulay said.

"We try to focus on the residents and make living conditions better than they were in the past."

BG loves to eat at Easystreet

by Emily S. Vosburg
contributing writer

Versatility is a plus for Bowling Green's Easystreet Cafe, a place where students can have wine with their friends one night and dine with their visiting parents the next.

This atmosphere has made Easystreet a popular place among University students and seems to be the reason why it was voted BG's favorite restaurant last week during the Insider's BG's Favorite Things poll.

"Everybody here is pleased that our work hasn't gone unnoticed," said owner Vic Plrooz.

The restaurant and bar, located at 104 S. Main, has been in operation since November 1987. "We just wanted it to be a gathering place where anyone could come and feel comfortable," Plrooz said.

Plrooz added that the clientele is varied and includes local residents, students and people visiting town. "It's a place to relax," he said. "Our motto is 'Fun foods and fun times for fun people.'"

Half of the employees are students, and the rest are from the area. "It's a good mix," Plrooz said.

Plrooz said they chose a midwestern menu "tailored to the average taste." The menu features 45 sandwiches, 70 brands of beer, and various homemade soups, entrees, and desserts.

Plrooz also said the menu was planned so people could get generous portions at an affordable price.

Derek Wolfgram, sophomore psychology major, said he enjoys eating at Easystreet.

"We usually get burgers," he said. "They're good and it's a nice change from pre-made fast food burgers."

"I also like the pictures — black and white '60s rock band pictures," Wolfgram said. "And it's nice because it's a lot quieter than most other restaurants in town." Easystreet also features live entertainment upstairs in the bar four nights a week. Monday is jazz night, Wednesday is blues night and classic rock is featured Friday and Saturday nights.

"I wish that people under 21 could get in upstairs to see the bands," Wolfgram said.

The restaurant, formerly called Soft Rock Cafe, was geared toward being a pilot franchise, with plans to expand across Ohio. When the owners applied for a trademark, however, they ran into some problems with the International Hard Rock Cafe chain. Hard Rock officials claimed the name "Soft Rock" was a trademark infringement.

"It was easier and more timely to change the name," Plrooz said. Plrooz held a contest to choose a new name and awarded $500 to change the name.

BG loves to drink at Howard's Club H

by Wendy M. King
staff writer

Howard's Club H is one of the oldest bars in BG — and according to the Insider's BG's Favorite Things poll, it is also BG's favorite.

Hank Slyker, a senior political science major, is a frequent customer of Howard's. "There are real people there," Slyker said. "It's not all students, and (the clientele) just seems a little older than the other places."

John "JD" DeSmith, manager of Howard's Club H, has worked for Howard's for 7 years, and has been the manager for a year and a half.

DeSmith said he was pleased that Howard's was voted BG's favorite bar.

"I think it's great," DeSmith said. "Without (the students) we wouldn't have a business."

He said he feels Howard's entertainment choices are some of the reasons it was voted BG's favorite.

"We try to get the best entertainment possible," he said.

Uhlman attributes Howard's success to its atmosphere.

"It has always had a casual atmosphere — you don't have to dress up or try to be someone else; you can come in and just be yourself," Uhlman said. "No one is trying to impress anybody."

Uhlman was also pleased that Howard's was voted BG's favorite bar.

"I'm very happy," he said. "It seems like we haven't been as popular in the last year or two, and it's kind of nice (to know we were voted the favorite)."

Jeff Uhiman has owned Howard's Club H, located at 210 W. Main St., for 9 years. Uhiman said the name of the bar came about in the 1920s, when Freddy Howard owned it.

Located across the street from the present-day Howard's, it was known as Hotel Howard. When the establishment relocated as a bar in the 1950s, the name was changed to Howard's Club H.

John "JD" DeSmith, manager of Howard's Club H, has worked for Howard's for 7 years, and has been the manager for a year and a half.

DeSmith said he was pleased that Howard's was voted BG's favorite bar.

"I think it's great," DeSmith said. "Without (the students) we wouldn't have a business."

Quarters gives
BG convenience

by Marjie Milnor
contributing writer

I was in the bar business for eleven years, and anything you do after that is going to be pleasant. - "Slim" Gillen, owner/manager of Quarter's Party Store

Whatever his reasons were for switching occupations, Gillen's new-found enthusiasm for the convenience store business could be just what Quarter's needed for that leading edge, making it the Insider's BG's Favorite Things poll.

Located at 1414 E. Wooster St., across from Harshman Quadrangle, Quarter's bright, comfortable environment offers alcoholic beverages and snacks as well as a variety of other items ranging from condoms and Cleveland Browns hats to fresh fruit and ice cream bars.

Gillen bought Quarter's a month and a half ago from previous owner Ron Chris, who still owns the bar/restaurant half of Quarter's, located next door to the convenience store.

In fact, according to Chris Recker, employee at Quarter's Party Store and a Junior at the University, the store's location benefits others as well.

Recker has worked at the Party Store since October. "There's a guy across the street who charges five dollars to run over here and buy party supplies for people," he said.

The best thing about working here," Recker added, "is that my boss always has a new gadget.

PROVE IT: 100

Proof snags vote

by Morrella Raleigh
staff writer

In a small, cramped, orange room on the first floor of Kreischer Quadrangle, a classic rock cover band can be found practicing at least three nights a week.

The wild sounds from their practice sessions can be heard throughout the building, and given the little professional exposure they have received, it may seem unusual to some - including the band - that 100 Proof was voted BG's Favorite Band in the Insider's BG's Favorite Things poll.

"We were as surprised as anybody else that we won," drummer Michael Palm, a University sophomore, said.

100 Proof formed last September and performs cover versions of old favorites by Led Zeppelin, Ozzy Osbourne and Neil Young.

The extent of new music in their repertoire also includes some tunes by Guns 'n Roses.

Doctor Dave rocks the Buckeye State

by Dave Bostind
The Incredible College of Musical Knowledge

The weather's nice (occasionally), the classes seem to last longer, baseball season just began (Go Cobels!), and (almost) everyone looks kinda tan. All this can only mean one thing... Yep, Willie Mays is coming to commencement. Say, hey.

Here at "Dr. Dave's Incredible College of Musical Knowledge," a couple of quick, important announcements are in order. First, best of luck to Dr. Dave's little brother, Scott. Who has gone out to find fame and fortune in Florida. Second, our very own Nurse Schmidt celebrates her birthday this week. If you see her Monday, please give her a big kiss on the cheek and say, "Dr. Dave says "Happy Birthday"!!"

Birthday girl Nurse Schmidt tells us that after last week a no-winner flask, many people sent in perfect entries. Our randomly chosen winner was Marti Cummings, whose favorite candy is Reese's Cups (although Dugg Lamie was the only to know "A,E,I,O,U Sometimes Y"). Congratulations, Marti. Here are the answers to the "A,E,I,O,U,Y" quiz:

Now to the second announcement. And think he saw a shooting star — not realizing it was just a light-house — and thought he saw a shooting star — not realizing it was just a light-house. Before the first light of day he looked up and thought he saw a shooting star — not realizing it was just a plane and not noticing this was the happiest moment of his life.

Inevitable events happened the way inevitable events do, he found himself with the N-veck sweater in a mesh of angry frustration — a vulgar celebration of everything he thought ugly and cheap. "Light-hearted statement of a vague sentiment," said the sweater. "Clever reception of the statement and additional vague sentiments," he replied because he had to, according to what the glass had always told him. "Subtle hints at possible (but improbable) future engagements and a pleasant (but forced) farewell," he said to the sweater. Which now looked worn and unfashionable. The sweater said, "Politely I'm Sorry."

When the inevitable course of events happened the way inevitable events do, he found himself with the sweater, which took up far too much room as far as he was concerned. Somehow he wanted to punish the sweater for interrupting the glass, which was far more satisfying. But that thought quickly went away when the glass stopped talking. Must've been jealous.

WATER
by Mike Bumm

After focusing on poetry for a while, the "quickie" is back. This week senior English major Mike Bumm gives us a refreshing sip of barroom philosophy. How much do you want to bet he wasn't drinking water when he wrote this? — Tim Haas, Fiction Editor

If the human body is 70 percent water, most of his body had already evaporated and was being replaced by whatever was in the glass. He couldn't see very well, not only because his eyes were hazy, but because the lights were dim to the point of being almost nonexistent, which was good. If it were suddenly light, people would probably be ashamed of themselves," he said belligerently to the glass. A sensible, low-cut V-neck sweater fought its way through the haze of inhibitions and insecurities and interrupted the glass that was telling him all the answers to everything. He thought this intrusion rather pretentious, but since he happened to like this type of sweater (and pretentiousness for that matter) he offered as little attention as humanly possible. The sweater said, "Polite Innuendo.

Share a story. Tell a lie. He showed the half-empty glass aside for the sweater, which took up far too much room as far as he was concerned. Somehow he wanted to punish the sweater for interrupting the glass, which was far more satisfying. But that thought quickly went away when the glass stopped talking. Must've been jealous.

10. David Baerwald of David and David was born in Oxford, Ohio. What was David and David's only Top 40 hit?

Our friends at Finders Records and Tapes at 128 N. Main, Bowling Green, are proud to furnish this week's winner with a FREE promotional cassette.

The group has appeared at Good Tymes, Doodles and several fraternity functions and is trying to build up a following. Despite what their name implies, no member of 100 Proof has seen the light of his 21st drink during performances. So, why the name 100 Proof?

"If you want to go out and have a good time, you want to get drunk," guitarist Brad Gendics, a University sophomore said. So, obviously the affiliation with inebriation can't hurt.

All in all, 100 Proof is a good cover band. The group members have over twenty years of musical experience among them and they seem dedicated to having fun with their music. "We work hard and we'd like some recognition," Shind said.

Another plus for the band is the fact that they may have a good grip on how to please AOR radio-loving, college audiences - especially since crowd participation and sing-alongs are a big part of the group's performances.

The group is working on some originals, but writing does not seem to be of immediate concern. However, they have recorded two originals, "Livin' on the Edge," and "Tomorrow or Today" in the University's Moore Musical Arts Center.

"If you want to have a good time and not put up with imitation rock, come see us," Gendics said.

100 Proof will be performing tonight at BG's own Good Tymes.
