Mall gone:

TOLEDO -- A businessman says he's no longer going to try to develop a mall on city-owned land in a suburban township.

Brian McMahon has been trying to build a regional mall for four years. He had an option on 390 acres the city owns in Monclova Township.

Last month, one of his partners, the Edward DeBartolo Corp. of Youngstown, dropped out of the project.

A partner brought in to replace DeBartolo, the Jacobs Group of Cleveland, also has dropped out of the project.

McMahon said it's time for him to move on to other ventures.

Jeffrey Dahmer declared sane

Killer to receive mandatory life sentence for each murder count

by Lisa Holewa
The Associated Press

MILWAUKEE -- A jury found Saturday that Jeffrey Dahmer was sane when he killed and dismembered 15 men and boys in a horrifying quest for sexual gratification.

The decision means that Dahmer, who already has pleaded guilty to the murders, will receive a mandatory life sentence for each count. A judge will determine when, or if, he will be eligible for parole. A hearing was scheduled for Monday.

Judge Laurence Gram, Jr.'s calm reading of the jury's verdict brought to a climax one of the most stunningly gruesome murder cases in American history.

As he announced the jurors' 10-2 decision, reading off a grim roll call of Dahmer's prey, a shudder of emotion rolled through one victim's family after another in the gallery. Some shouted in pain. Others rocked with sobs. One or two smiled.

Dahmer sat stone-faced, as he has throughout the three-week trial.

"God bless you. I love you, my brother," one of the victim's relatives said to District Attorney E. Michael McCann as he walked out of the courtroom. Other relatives hugged McCann and thanked him.

"They gave a powerful, powerful argument," said Teresa Smith, sister of victim Edward W. Smith. "They brought back the faith I'd lost in the justice system."

Another sister of Smith, Carolyn Smith, said she felt some sympathy for Dahmer.

"Because I am Catholic, I was raised that way," she said. "At times I have hatred like anyone would, but you have got to love all."

McCann said jurors realized Dahmer could have controlled his conduct. "This was an unusual individual, and I think the jury saw through it," he said. "His whole conduct showed he was a con artist ... and he is above average in intelligence, and that's all we went by," said juror Karl W. Stahle.

Elba Duggins said she and other jurors were struck by the graphic testimony during the trial. "I've already dealt with it partially by leaving the room and crying," she said.

Defense attorney Gerald Boyle said he warned Dahmer beforehand to expect the worst. He said Dahmer thanked him for trying.

"I'm pretty sure that he wants to close the book on it and just live out the rest of his life as he knows it's going to be," Boyle said.

"Justice was done," said the Rev. Gene Champion, who counseled relatives of the victims. "The healing can now come forth. That is a blessing for the families, a blessing for the city."

The jury deliberated about five hours, Stahle said. Court officials said earlier that deliberations lasted nearly 10 hours.

The unusual trial required only that 10 of the jurors agree. After the verdicts were read, Boyle was granted a 10-minute meeting with Dahmer and Dahmer's parents.

'Idea' to improve student loan plan

by Michelle Banks
The BG News

A proposed bill in Washington could make student loan repayment easier and alleviate some anxiety students may have about huge, looming loan payments.

Rep. Thomas Petri (R-Wisc.) has devised a plan that could help students fight skyrocketing tuition along with federal and state education cuts.

The Income-Dependent Education Assistance Act (IDEA) would allow students to repay loans based upon income after graduation. Petri claims the bill is a major coup for the student loan system.

"It will radically improve America's student loan system while saving the taxpayers billions of dollars," he said.

IDEA payments would be based on a person's income - the higher the income, the greater the payment.

Money from each check would be directly withheld, much like federal tax withholdings are.

At the end of the year, individuals would review their IDEA loan payments just like they re-

Ohioans invest in tuition funds

COLUMBUS (AP) - Ohioans spent about $20 million last year to take advantage of a state program to purchase tuition credits in advance, a trust fund official said.

The program allows people to buy tuition credits at current prices.

Despite the sluggish economy, the program has enrolled 23,844 children, gathering a total of $35.7 million in a trust fund, said Barbara Jennings, executive director of the Tuition Trust Authority.

She said the average person who buys tuition credit earns about $35,000 a year. She says she would like to open the program to those with lower incomes.

"People had different ideas as to how the middle class market would respond to this," she said. "It's a different concept when you're talking about people's hard-earned money."

The state program opened in late 1989, but the first tuition credit was not sold until May 1990.

Each tuition credit costs $38.50, but the price goes up $1 on July 1.

Buying 400 credits will pay for a child's tuition for four years at any Ohio public college or university. The credits can be converted to use at private and out-of-state colleges.

The credits can be bought through automatic transfers from checking and savings accounts, coupons or payroll deductions, Ms. Jennings said.

The authority also started a college savings bond program last year. As many as two bond sales are planned for this year, she said.

"Lots of students default because their loans are sold and they don't know where to send their payments," Conant said. "With IDEA there is no confusion because the payments are taken right out of the paycheck."

Deb Heineman, associate director of financial aid at the University, said she has reservations about proposed IDEA loans.

Students should know before borrowing any money how much they can afford to pay after graduation and the proposed IDEA bill does not address this, according to Heineman.

"We shouldn't address default at the back end but from the front end," Heineman said.

Congress currently is reauthorizing the financial aid process, including loans and grants. Heineman said significant changes in the student loan process could appear as early as this spring.

Several changes include a pilot program proposed by the Senate which would make direct loans to the schools instead of students obtaining loans from banks.

Heineman said the proposed changes could have an effect on IDEA loans.

"I really don't know if the IDEA program is viable with all the other reauthorizing going on. Also, when a new president is elected, it's not certain how he will change the process," she said.

The University's financial aid office processed 6,200 loan applications for the 1991-92 school year. This number comprises 55 percent of all students.

However, only 2 percent of University graduates have defaulted on loans; a number similar to other state universities, according to Heineman.

view their taxes. If an individual had paid too much, he or she could get a refund or apply the balance to the following year's payment.

Graduates with high incomes would be expected to pay the loan back more quickly and at slightly higher interest rates. This system would allow subsidies for those who would have lower incomes after graduation.

"If you lose your job, get sick or take time off to raise kids, your loan is automatically rescheduled," Petri said.

George Conant, a legislative aid to Petri, said people not making enough to file taxes would be overlooked for IDEA payments. Most students would finish repaying their loans in 12 to 17 years, but any amount left after 25 years would be "wiped off the books."

IDEA also has a conversion factor for students who already have Stafford Loans.

Basically, the students would have to apply for IDEA. Their loan payment history would then be investigated. The principle applied to the Stafford would automatically be applied to IDEA.

The IDEA proposal could feasibly become a reality. The Internal Revenue Service told Congress last week it could realistically handle IDEA payments.

"[The IRS] was slightly apprehensive because it would take more computers and could affect current tax compliance. Basically, if we tell them to take IDEA payments, they will," Conant said.

Last year taxpayers paid $3.6 billion to collection agencies resulting from defaulted student loans, Conant said. The IDEA bill theoretically should alleviate collection agency costs by making the IRS responsible for payments.

"Many students think it's easy to default on student loans, but with the IRS collecting payments it would be impossible; everyone knows the IRS is the nation's most efficient collection agency," Conant said.

Avoiding payment would be considered tax evasion and would have the same penalties, according to the bill. In addition, if a person defaults on a Stafford Loan, it would immediately become an IDEA loan.

Merrill Jensen, senior math major, uses a shopping-cart-mounted calculator to tabulate his grocery bill while shopping at Foodtown Plus, South Main Street. Foodtown hopes the calculator-equipped shopping carts will attract new customers.

Local markets battling Grocery stores slug it out for recession dollars

by Chris Miller
The BG News

Free food, double coupons and calculator-equipped shopping carts are all part of local grocery stores' efforts to take a bigger bite out of the city's consumer market pie.

In the battle to attract more customers, Foodtown Plus, 1070 S. Main St., has introduced calculator-equipped shopping carts.

"This has been a tremendous success for us," Foodtown Plus manager Denny Farris said. "We're glad that we're one of the first supermarket chains in the area to do this."

Farris hopes the new carts, which made their debut last month, will bring new customers through Foodtown's doors.

"Maybe we'll steal away a few customers from Kroger or Churchill's," Farris said.

Although area residents constitute the bulk of the city's consumer market, local grocers recognize the importance of targeting the University student population through advertising and other incentives.

"The University always brings you extra business," Kroger manager Doug DeArmond said, adding that the weekly customer count for his store increases by a few thousand when the University is in session.

Kroger, 1096 N. Main St., launches an all-out assault on the University consumer market each year during the first weeks of the fall semester, DeArmond said.

Live music, free food giveaways, and increased advertising aimed at students are all intended to capture the University market.

"We have one big hoopla on the first Tuesday after students come back [in the fall]," DeArmond said.

DeArmond believes that fall semester is the time to attract new student customers, particularly the incoming freshmen.

"We're not only getting the upper classmen back, but we're getting that freshman class," DeArmond said. "Once you get them in the store and they see what you have to offer, that keeps them coming back."

Students represent a unique segment of the grocery buying public, since their consumer habits differ from those of the typical shopper.

"They [students] buy a lot of prepared foods, things for people on the move, like frozen pizzas, burritos and macaroni and cheese in a box," DeArmond said.

Consequently, DeArmond said Bowling Green's Kroger store often experiences higher sales of such items than the larger Toledo-based stores.

"We probably sell as much pop as the [Kroger] stores that are 25 percent bigger than us," DeArmond said.

While the other stores attempt to attract customers with calculators and giveaways, Churchill's supermarket, 1141 S. Main St., believes in emphasizing consistently low prices and personable service to lure customers through their doors, store manager Dan Wagner said.

"Our aim is to have everyday prices lower than our competition," Wagner said.

Churchill's offers various in-house and coupon related specials to attract customers rather than the "gimmicks" employed by the other stores, Wagner said.

"You gotta know that you're paying for that [the gimmicks]," Wagner explained. "It's not all made up through increased customer traffic."

Whether or not the cart-mounted calculators will find their way into the aisles of Kroger or Churchill's remains to be seen.

"I guess we'll just wait and see what kind of response we get from the customers," DeArmond said.

Drug ring shut down

FINDLAY (AP) -- Law enforcement authorities say they have shut down a major drug ring in rural Hancock County.

County sheriff's deputies and federal law enforcement agents raided a home on a county road near the village of Jenera on Thursday.

Authorities seized 300 pounds of marijuana worth $500,000, an assortment of firearms, $15,000 cash and six vehicles.

Three men and a woman were arrested, but Sheriff Byron Boutwell refused to disclose their names.

They were released Friday from the county jail on their own recognizance.

Charles Moffitt, a federal Drug Enforcement Agency investigator, said the four were released without bond because they aren't considered likely to flee.

"They are local residents. They were all born and raised there. They have property there," he said.

Death threat sends Playboy bunny hip-hopping back home

TOLEDO (AP) -- The agent for a former Playboy centerfold says his client had to leave the city because of a fan's threat to kill her.

Stacy Arthur of Bellefontaine was to have signed autographs Saturday at a Toughman contest. She checked into a hotel Thursday and then received word that Los Angeles police had a copy of a letter a fan tried to mail to a tabloid television show.

The letter threatened her life, said Chris Miller, her Columbus-based agent.

"The death threat had been sent to the Hard Copy Print Shop, a Los Angeles-area business that has no relation to the show," Miller told The Blade. "When the owner of the print shop opened the letter, he immediately turned it over to the LAPD. We speculate it was intended for the show."

Ms. Arthur told "Hard Copy" last week three employees at the Playboy Mansion in Los Angeles drugged and raped her. Playboy Enterprises denies the allegations.

The letter allegedly said, "I will either put my shotgun to your head and blow your head off or cut your throat at your next public appearance, and we know that you are making a public appearance in Ohio this weekend."

Police say the letter may have come from a deranged fan in Newark, N.J.

Ms. Arthur returned to her home after she found out about the death threat, Miller said.

Last October, a California man murdered Ms. Arthur's husband, James Arthur, on a Bellefontaine street before taking his own life.

The man had contacted her through Playboy's $3-a-minute telephone line for fans.

Task force studies college efficiency

by John Chalfant
The Associated Press

COLUMBUS -- A task force looking for ways colleges can cut costs by becoming more efficient will consider faculty tenure, building expenses, athletics and other operations, the Ohio Board of Regents was told Friday.

Victor Goodman, chairman of the 21-member Managing for the Future Task Force, told the regents that higher education faces long-term financial problems.

He told reporters later he did not believe the study committee would recommend a tax increase to make up for cutbacks in government funding.

"I think everybody understands that it's just easy to say if we had more dollars we could do more things. The fact is we don't have more dollars. No one has them anywhere in the country," Goodman said.

"We're not likely in this economy in Ohio to generate more dollars, and therefore we've just got to figure out how to manage better. The issue is how to do that and not impact quality," he said.

Goodman heads a panel appointed by the regents to develop a plan for managing the higher education system in an era of tighter finances. The Board of Regents coordinates activities of the state's public colleges.

Recommendations from the task force are due in July.

Goodman said the panel is examining administrative costs, duplication of programs, growth in the percentage of the budget spent on construction projects, the effects of intercollegiate athletics on budgets, faculty workload and alternatives to tenure.

"This is an important issue since the cost of personnel is high in education, and in order to manage institutions more effectively more flexibility in staffing patterns is needed," Goodman said.

"Tenure, we believe, was designed as a means of protecting academic freedom but has evolved over the years to protect job security. Thus tenure is often perceived as another special privilege given to those in higher education," he said.

Regent William Boyle of Toledo asked if the task force would examine a possible merger of the University of Toledo and the Medical College of Ohio at Toledo, along with whether the state had too many medical schools.

Goodman said he did not know if a merger of the Toledo institutions was something the committee could look at, but that there was no reason why the panel should not examine the seven medical schools.

"All issues, as a matter of fact, are on the table," he said. "Whether or not we will come out with a recommendation that a medical school be abolished I am certainly not prepared to speak to today."

Contest lauds disabled graduates

by Tonya Peters
The BG News

Some of the nation's best and brightest are about to be discovered.

Mainstream, Magazine of the Able-Disabled is now judging applicants in its third annual "Best and Brightest Competition" for outstanding disabled college graduates.

"It's tough enough to graduate from college, but being a student with a disability makes it that much more difficult," said Cyndi Jones, editor and publisher of Mainstream.

The Best and Brightest is a program established to honor those students who have excelled academically, shown leadership abilities and have been involved in their communities.

Two of Mainstream's 1991 honorees were students from Ohio. Guy Fisher, a psychology major at Baldwin Wallace College in Berea, was paralyzed during a college baseball game. He later returned to serve as assistant baseball coach.

Marsha Witter, who received a business degree from Muskingum College of New Concord, is a deaf woman who is now looking into law schools. Her goal is to set up her own accounting business.

Mainstream was established in 1975 and serves as a national publication for the disabled community, with a circulation of about 80,000.

Published 10 times every year, the magazine contains articles on legislation, leisure activities, personal profiles and the disability rights movement. It also publishes advertising for products and services that are not available elsewhere.

Winners of Best and Brightest 1992 will appear in the July issue of Mainstream.

Toilet cleaner kills carrot color

by James Hannah
The Associated Press

BOTKINS, Ohio -- Sharon Klosterman's blond hair turned orange -- "I mean carrot-red orange" -- when she began washing it with Western Ohio's hard water.

The iron mineral deposits in hard water apparently bind to the hair, giving it an orange cast. Though the problem isn't new, one solution is.

Some people not enamored with the punk-rock look have been using a caustic toilet bowl cleaner called The Works, which contains hydrochloric acid and is designed to remove hard-water stains and rust from toilet bowls.

It's not meant for hair.

Its maker notified newspapers and the Ohio Department of Health last month when it heard about the cleansing practice in Botkins, a village of about 1,300 people 50 miles north of Dayton.

Lime-O-Sol Co. of Ashley, Ind.,

cautioned that the acid can burn the skin.

The company has only heard of the custom occurring in Ohio. "We have no indication that it's being used extensively," she said.

Ms. Klosterman, 33, of nearby Kettlersville, said she mixes The Works with water and then rinses her hair in the bathtub. When she first heard of the practice about four years ago, she thought it was crazy. "But you get so desperate," she said.

Gambler says UNLV is innocent

LAS VEGAS (AP) One of this city's best known gambling figures told the FBI he was certain that UNLV athletes did not shave points during last year's Final Four.

Lem Banker said he told agents that players on the Runnin' Rebels, unbeaten and ranked No. 1 at the time, wouldn't have dumped the Duke game in the national semifinals last March.

The Rebels lost to the Blue Devils 79-77, in a major upset after going unbeaten in 34 games.

Banker's response Friday came on the heels of a report in the Las Vegas-Review Journal that federal authorities were checking rumors that UNLV players may have shaved points last season.

The FBI probe is an outgrowth of an investigation announced two weeks ago in which federal authorities subpoenaed university records relating to convicted sports fixer Richard Perry.

Banker, who makes his living betting sports events, is a nationally recognized authority in the industry.

"I told the FBI there is no way they would dump a championship game," Banker said. "I told them there was nothing to it. They were undefeated."

Banker said Friday the Rebels failed to make the point spread set by bookmakers around the county in 18 of 35 games in the 1990-91 season. He said the main reason was because the Rebels were one of the best teams in college history and bookmakers set lines in which they were favored by as many as 40 points.

Banker said FBI agents asked him specifically about the Duke game, in which the Rebels started as 9-point favorites. Banker said the spread dropped to six points because of a heavy influx of money on Duke.

"The bookmakers bet the game much too high," Banker said. "And the players (bettors) bet it down to six points. A lot of money showed up at the end against UNLV because of the spread. They were a Neiman Marcus price. The spread was too high. The Rebels were overpriced."

Banker said UNLV has a tremendous following among bettors across the country.

"The three years prior to last year they were one of the better teams against the point spread," said Banker, who has lived in Las Vegas for 33 years.

Betting lines on the Rebels, like all other sports teams, are set by bookmakers and betting services across the country. The only difference is that Nevada race and sports books, the only place in the nation where sports betting is legal, do not post odds or take bets on Nevada's college teams.

UNLV coach Jerry Tarkanian criticized his administration Thursday night, saying word of the investigation was planted by officials trying to discredit him and his players. He said the latest flap has "taken the heart out of me."

Former UNLV players Larry Johnson, now with the Charlotte Hornets, and Stacey Augmon, now with the Atlanta Hawks, have both denied that point shaving took place.

Tarkanian announced in June that this would be his final season at UNLV.

propel BG to MAC win

Falcon Shane Kline-Ruminski towers over Eastern Michigan's Kory Hallas during BG's 68-57 road victory over the Eagles on Saturday. BG has won eight of its last eleven games and currently stands at 10-11 overall and 5-5 in conference action.

Pivot play leads BG past EMU

by Matt Schroder
sports editor

YPSILANTI, Mich. — The basketball season is more than three months old, but the Falcon men still came up with a first on Saturday.

Bowling Green won its first road game in the Mid-American Conference, a 68-57 victory against Eastern Michigan, in front of 3,215 at Bowen Field House.

The win improved the Falcons to 5-5 in the MAC, and 10-11 overall. BG has won eight of its last 11 games.

The four previous road games were all heartbreakers. The Falcons dropped each one by an average of three points. Through it all, coach Jim Larranaga has preached that road wins will go a long way in separating MAC contenders from pretenders.

"It feels great to get our first road win," Michael Huger said. "We've been close all year and we finally pulled it out."

And the game Bowling Green played Saturday was simple — get the ball inside and let the big guys go to work.

Post players Tom Hall and Shane Kline-Ruminski combined for 14-of-25 shooting, 29 points, and 14 rebounds. The Falcons took advantage of a weak Eagles' front line, which included a banged up Kory Hallas, who was playing just his second game since injuring his left hand.

"They sensed we weren't at full strength inside," Eastern coach Ben Braun said. "But you can't feel sorry for anybody out there. You have to attack the other team's weakness, and that's what they did. You can feel sorry for them after the game, but I would have done the same thing."

Though the Falcons were finding success underneath in the first half, EMU used pressure defense on the perimeter, and frustrated the BG guards. On the offensive end, the Eagles shot 47 percent in the first half and led 31-27 at halftime.

"I was concerned at the half because of one statistic — Eastern Michigan is 0-12 this year when trailing at the half," Larranaga said. "So obviously you'd like to be in that position." It was key plays by the BG guards which caused the game to take a fatal turn for Eastern. With 5:26 to play in the game, Huger drove the lane on two straight possessions to give the Falcons a one-point lead.

Vada Burnett followed with a slashing move to the hoop which put Bowling Green up 54-51 with 4:21 left.

Time out Braun.

"We did a good job on Burnett and Huger until the stretch," Braun said. "Those individual plays they made at the end really broke our backs. They made the plays at crunch time, and that's where the game turned."

Whatever the Eagle coach said during the timeout had a short-lived effect on his team. Guard Bryant Kennedy, who led Eastern with 15 points, hit a three-pointer to cut BG's lead to one with 2:31 to play in the game.

But that's when Eastern packed up and went home. The Falcons finished the game with a 12-2 run, and ran away with the victory. BG converted six of its last six free throws and broke free from a full-court press for easy layups.

The BG News/Jay Murdock

Forward Matt Otto scores on an uncontested layup on Saturday against Eastern. The Falcons host Toledo on Wednesday night at Anderson Arena.

Second-half surge spells victory for BG women

by Erik Pupillo
sports writer

YPSILANTI, Mich. -- The women's basketball team found itself down by six points after the first twenty minutes of play against Eastern Michigan on Saturday.

The complexion of the game changed rapidly as the Falcons dominated the second half behind the steady play of Judit Lendvay (21 points) and Talita Scott (14 points) and came away with a 80-67 victory.

"The players did a good job of regrouping at halftime and we made some adjustments to find Talita and Andrea (Nordmann) on our offense," BG coach Jaci Clark said. "Judit was also very steady for us." Up until then, the game was being controlled by the Eagles.

"Eastern came out and played extremely hard and I don't think we did a good job of finishing off on some of the little things," Clark said. "They really put pressure on us and we felt it."

The Falcons were feeling 13 first half turnovers and poor shooting from the outside. In addition to their problems, the Mid-American Conference leading free-throw shooting team only made two trips to the charity stripe while Eastern made twelve.

The only thing keeping the first half from being an Eagle rout was BG's tenacious defense, which caused 15 turnovers from the Eagle squad.

"We switched to a 1-3-1 zone and trapped off it extensively in the first half," Clark said. "We trapped off it in the beginning of the second half, but backed off and just played it straight up the remainder of the game."

According to Clark, the Falcons don't play zone often, but they practice it so they can mix things up during the games. The zone paid off, resulting in 21 Eagle turnovers by the time everything was said and done.

Along with defensive trickery in the second half, BG power forward Andrea Nordmann got hot and burned the Eagles up for 15 points in stanza number two. Nordmann hit seven out of her nine shots from the field and split a pair of free throws to end up with 17 points for the contest.

"Andrea did a good job of posting up down low and coming up high to give us two options on the wing to score," Clark said.

The Eagles were led by freshman transfer student from Budapest, Hungary, Eszter Biro, who finished with 16 points, five assists and five rebounds before fouling out with 1:41 left in the contest.

"Eszter had a fabulous first half against us," Clark said. "I wasn't aware of why she didn't play much in the second half. It could have been a combination of our defense and her being in foul trouble."

Shooting guard Reeshema Wood also contributed 21 points, six boards and two assists to help Biro carry the Eagles.

Cardinals thump Broncos by 14 to take first in MAC

MUNCIE, Ind. (AP) Keith Stalling scored 11 of his 13 points in the second half as Ball State defeated Western Michigan 60-46 Saturday in their battle for first place in the Mid-American Conference.

Both teams had cold shooting performances. Ball State (19-4 overall, 8-2 in the MAC) shot 27 percent in the second half (7 of 26) and under 32 percent for the game. The Broncos (17-5, 8-3) shot 30 percent (8 of 27) in the second half and 33 percent for the game.

Ball State trailed early as the visitors made the game's first four points. The Cardinals took the lead for good with 12 consecutive points that ignited an 18-3 spurt in the first half.

Bill Gillis made a layup to start the streak with 14:34 left in the opening half. Chandler Thompson's jumper put Ball State ahead to stay 7-6 and the Cardinals led 18-9 after Darri Brooks made a layup with 8:37 left in the half for Western Michigan's first field goal since the 17:50 mark.

Ball State led 33-23 at halftime. Western Michigan cut its deficit to 41-36 on a 3-pointer by Ebon Sanders with 12:53 to play, but Ball State responded with 11 consecutive points as the Broncos went 10-20 without a field goal.

Virgil Grayson was the only player in double figures for Western Michigan with 12, while Gillis had 11 for Ball State.

The Falcons and Spartans furthered their hockey rivalry over the weekend, meeting for their 52nd and 53rd games since 1971, vying for precious post-season positions.

Michigan State was trying to claim the top spot in the CCHA, while BG was trying to stay in the playoff picture, 3 points ahead of the Buckeyes. But it was a pumped up Falcon team who took 3 out of the possible 4 points of the series.

The hockey team ran its recent unbeaten streak to four with a victory and a tie against the Michigan State Spartans and raised its record to 7-14-4. The Falcons won 2-1 Friday in overtime at home and ended up with a 6-6 tie in Saturday evening's contest.

Spartan right winger Dwayne Norris was the take-charge man for the Spartans as he scored four goals in Saturday night's game. His fourth goal was the equalizer of the contest, only eight seconds before the final buzzer.

Defenseman Jeff Wells, fresh off his shoulder injury, scored 2 goals. Martin Jiranek scored a goal and added 2 assists. Dan Bylsma and Brett Harkins each had a goal and an assist. Peter Holmes also added a goal.

Friday night's game was completely opposite of the high scoring shootout at Munn Ice Arena. Defensive play dominated the game as the Falcons held the
