Lucasville riot death toll rises

The Associated Press

LUCASVILLE, Ohio - The death toll at a besieged maximum-security prison rose to 16 on Tuesday when an inmate was found dead in a cell near where hundreds of prisoners and eight hostages were barricaded.

A guard on rotation placed at the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility found the body in a cell in the K blockcell, on the south side of the 69-acre complex.

The unit is linked by a corridor to the L cellblock, where 450 prisoners have been barricaded since a struggle among a few prisoners occurred in a fight Sunday.

Teresa Urwin, a spokeswoman for the Ohio Department of Rehabilitation and Correction, said the inmate was shot and killed, although she did not say how the inmate was killed or committed suicide.

Six other inmates have died since the siege began. Prison officials said that inmates killed the six men, all of whom had been beaten.

She said no way would the prisoner or what caused his death be known "apparently recent" but would give no other details.

The K cellblock was designed to hold 400 prisoners. About 221 prisoners from the barricaded cellblock were moved there on Sunday after they told prison officials they did not want to participate in the siege.

The rest of the prison's 1,819 inmates, including death row inmates, were in cells away from the affected area of the prison, about 70 miles south of Columbus.

Negotiators were not encouraging any prisoners to leave the barricaded prisoners, who made their feelings known Tuesday with a high in the window that they were not satisfied with the negotiations.

The inmate was killed or committed suicide. Six other inmates have died since the siege began.

Prison officials have claimed prisoners escalated into a riot on Monday that killed five inmates a chance to take control of the prison. They said the inmate, who was in his mid-50s and had no known connection to the public, was killed by the inmates in the cellblock and have been monitoring broadcasts about the siege.

They taped a broadcast announcing that the cell block was not staffed. "We've made lots of contacts with people and we don't know whether opponents would try a similar tactic now."

Prison guards were being held hostage.

Urwin said Tuesday that talks about the inmates' list of 19 demands were "at a halt."

Correction department spokeswoman Sharon Korymag said federal agents were asked to help negotiate or that force may be necessary to end the siege.

"If we were to use force, we can't estimate what that would be," she said. "Any show of force would be a last resort."

Prisoners, apparently frustrated by the negotiation process, have made their feelings known to the guards. Officials believe inmates in the cellblock and have been monitoring broadcasts about the siege.

Crim allegations send mixed signal

It's ironic - just one week after a legal complaint alleging emotional and physical abuse of two former students was filed against Crim Elementary School, the school unveiled the positive results of its two-year conflict resolution program last week.

Although such a program is commendable, especially since Crim is one of only 20 schools in Ohio chosen to implement it, its impact and effectiveness seem to have been somewhat lost in light of the pending legal action.

In the complaint, filed March 20 in Wood County Common Pleas Court, it is alleged that the principal and two teachers at Crim sexually and physically abused a male student, leaving scratches, bruises and welts, and emotionally abused the boy's younger brother.

If the allegations are unfounded, the legal situation still probably concerns and confuses both parties involved.

Hopefully, school officials will learn how to come to a resolution.

Viewers' desires should be heeded

Bowing Green is becoming culturally devoid.

Wood Cable TV used to offer Cleveland channel TV8 to appease the masses that hailed from that two-year conflict resolution program last week.

More than 3 million Americans who lack health-care coverage of any sort are being told that quality health care isn't a right.

Throughout the 20th century, there has been a long tradition in American and Western European political thought of linking "good" and "evil" from questions of "morality" or "nor-mance." Part of this expansion announced the decline of the ideal of the church and state, which is expressed in American Constitutionalism.

Leaders of conservative movements and parties have frequently criticized what they term the "moral relativism" of liberals. Reactionary politicians such as Patrick Buchanan and Ronald Reagan argued that the former Soviet Union was the "Evil Empire" and that the struggle against Communism was in reality a moral conflict against "evil." Similarly, the conservative leaders at the 1992 Republican National Convention declared war against Americans favoring freedom of choice on issues of abortion, gay rights and multicultural education, characterizing these debates in good vs. evil terminology.

We must reject and denounce the narrow-minded ideology of the American Right that insists on a definition of democracy that is broadly pluralistic, open to the contributions of all people with different religions, racial heritages, languages and sexual orientations.

Court blotter

The following indictments were handed down last week by a Wood County grand jury:

- Francis M. Schneider, 42, 608 N. Main St., Bowling Green, was indicted on one count of domestic violence, a fourth degree felony, stemming from a Sept. 4, 1992 incident. Schneider was previously convicted of domestic violence in 1991 in Oregon Municipal Court.

- John George Yam (a.k.a. John George Robinson), 47, 608 N. Main St., Bowling Green, was indicted on one count of abduction, a third degree felony, and one count of nonsupport of dependents from Sept. 8, 1992 to April 6, 1993, a fourth degree felony.

- Durwin D. Perkins, 22, address unknown, was indicted on one count of possession of criminal tools, a fourth degree felony, and one count of domestic violence, a fourth degree felony.

- Robert Dotts, 30, 313 N. Main St., Bowling Green, was indicted on one count of possession of a firearm by a fugitive, a fourth degree felony.

- Alfred (Rusty) Zeigler, 35, Fostoria, was indicted on one count of gross sexual imposition, a fourth degree felony.

- Eric J. Allison, 21, 957 N. Main St., Bowling Green, was indicted on one count of murder, a first degree felony, and one count of kidnapping, a third degree felony.

- David Ford, 35, Macrossan, was indicted on one count of nonsupport of dependents from Sept. 6, 1992 to April 6, 1993, a fourth degree felony.

- Brian Keith Thompson was convicted in 1981 for the 1979 murder of four people and two others stabbed Down town employee Stephen S. Bowers behind the bar, located at 162 N. Main St., Bowling Green. Thompson is serving a sentence of 15 years to life imprisonment at the Grafton Correction Institution.

IN BRIEF

A man convicted in 1981 for the 1979 murder of four people and two others stabbed Downtown employee Stephen S. Bowers behind the bar, located at 162 N. Main St.

Wendy County Prosecuting At torney Alan Mayberry could not be reached for comment about Thompson's chances of being released from prison. However, earlier this year, Mayberry said Arthur Oviash, also involved in the murder, had a "good chance" of being released when he was el to wait for parole because at least two other individuals convicted in the case have been released.

A Department of Corrections spokesperson said Thompson's hearing date is Monday and he may obtain a furlough in December.

Senate approves bill

The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Ohio - The Senate on Tuesday voted to increase services for the mentally retarded and to lower the tax burden, both measures that insurance against liability suits for employers. The vote is in the restored Senate Office Building, which was the site of a new chamber that will be used for the next two years while a major restoration of the Ohio Statehouse is completed.

Senate President Stanley Armitage, R-Cincinnati, said the smaller quarters are "more intimate." He also warned with a smile that the good acoustics may make private conversations audible to unintended ears.

"Your words can be heard by the chair," he told members - whose desks are nine inches apart - and lobbyists who looked down from an iron-railed balcony that spans three walls of the new office block.

Sen. Gary Suhadolnik, R-Peoria Heights, won 26-2 approval of a bill that he said would modernize the delivery of services by the Department of Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities.

It allows county boards that administer state programs to prioritize waiting lists based on changing client needs. It also expands programs that qualify for state reimbursements for preventing self-sufficiency and imposes fines for the failure of local officials to report patient abuse.

Suhadolnik's bill was sent next to the House, along with another Senate measure to help certain employers who act as self-insurers under the workers' compensation systems.

The latter bill, approved 31-0, allows the administration of the Bureau of Workers' Compensation to waive a requirement that a certified public accountant must certify certain records of smaller self-insurers.

Sen. Grace Drake, R-Solon, said most big corporations employ certified public accountants and the requirement is no problem for them. But many are privately held "home-grown Ohio companies" that bear the extra expense for certification, she said.

Earlier this week, senators completed moving their offices in the century-old building that is now connected to the Statehouse by an atrium. The offices will be permanently located in the new structure, which was restored at a cost of $15 million.

Opposition disappointed about landfill expansion

The Associated Press

OREGON, Ohio - Opponents of a plan to expand a hazardous waste landfill said Tuesday they are angry that the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency director refused to respect the case.

"This is disappointing. Very disappointing," said Judy Junga, an environmental activist and member of Hazardous Environments Legal Project, a group fighting the landfill expansion.

EPA Director Donald Schregardus said Monday he wouldn't reconsider a permit that allows Envirosafe Services of Ohio Inc. to build and operate a new waste pit at its 155-acre landfill in this Toledo suburb.

Opponents hailed him to explain the case because they claim Envirosafe and the EPA failed to disclose important geological test that could be used in the next month. The office will be permanently located in the structure, which was restored at a cost of $15 million.

Opponents were hoping disclosure of the tests would stop the project.

The board approved the expansion in May 1991, reversing an earlier decision. A year later, the Ohio Supreme Court refused to hear the city's appeal.

Without the permit, Envirosafe would have run out of landfill space as early as this year and would have been forced to close.

Former board member Rich- ard Saffi had said the board never knew Envirosafe conduct- ed tests that showed large sand seams in the new waste pit. He said the sand seams could cause waste to spread to Lake Erie tributaries.

He said the board originally re- jected the permit because it was unsure whether there were sand seams in the new waste pit. He said the board wouldn't have re- considered its original decision if it had examined the report.

Valenzuela's return to baseball a special one

The Associated Press

ARLINGTON, Texas -- Fernando Valenzuela said Monday he is returning to the major leagues after a one-year absence with new pop in his pitches, but no bitterness in his heart.

"I am just real happy to be back in a big league uniform," he added.

Valenzuela, 31, signed a minor league contract with the Orioles Feb. 27. He was a long shot to make the team when he arrived in Florida for spring training. He didn't allow a run in his first 13 innings, and finished with a 2.65 ERA and just four walks in six games and 17 innings.

Valenzuela made his first appearance for the Orioles on Friday night when he came out of the bullpen. He posted a 1-2-3 seventh in a 4-3 loss to the Seattle Mariners.

It was Valenzuela's first major league appearance since July 12, 1991, when, as a member of the California Angels, he lost 8-0 to the Milwaukee Brewers and was relieved less than a month later.

Valenzuela's major league career appeared over two years ago. The Los Angeles Dodgers released him in March 1991, after he was 13-13 with a 4.29 ERA in 1990. The Angels released him after he was 0-2 with a 15.18 ERA in two games.

He is returning to the major leagues, he said, because he feels that he can still pitch.

"The players know that there is no time to cry over spilled milk," said Bowling Green head coach Jacquie Joseph.

Baseball team claims first place

by David Harpster

sports writer

The Bowling Green baseball team is beginning to take a habit of the late-lining comeback. The Falcons scored twice in the bottom of the seventh against Ball State to capture a 2-1 victory over the Cardinals in the first of a doubleheader Tuesday afternoon.

The late inning theatrics didn't stop there, as Bowling Green tallied a single run in the bottom of the sixth to take second game by a 3-2 score.

The two victories give the Falcons a two-game winning streak and raise their overall record to 20-10-1. In the Cardinal American Conference, the Falcons stand at 3-1, which puts them all alone atop the standings.

Head coach Danny Schmitz rebounded well after a sluggish start.

"That was a very satisfying win with a lot of confidence," he said. "It seemed like we came out a little flat in the first game. It was not one of our better games until we came alive in the seventh and got the win."

Ball State broke out on top in the first game with a single run in the secondinning. The Falcons would not score in the second inning thanks to a hit-and-run double from Mike Carper which allowed Eddie Andis all the way from first base.

The score remained knotted at 1-1 until the sixth. It was then that Bowling Green rightfielder Chris Boggs, in relief of starter Jeff DeSimone, unselfishly a wild pitch that allowed the go-ahead run to score from third.

However, the Falcons would come back in the bottom of the sixth to take second game by a little flat in the first game. It was not one of our better games until we came alive in the seventh and got the win."

Ball State head coach Danny Schmitz.

"The only thing I didn't like was the way the Falcons would not score in the second inning. The Falcons would allow the go-ahead run to score from third."

The story of the second game was Falcon freshman Andy Tracy, who made his first collegiate appearance. Up until now, Tracy had been more well known for his hitting abilities, but if he continues pitching as he did on Tuesday that will never change. The freshman right-hander from Bowling Green pitched six strong innings, allowing only four hits and one earned run. He struck out seven Falcons and walked two.

Tracy had to be at his best because everybody is trying to do what I did for the first two innings of the game. That's why we went to the bullpen. We had some bad at bats. We just want to do that. I just want to help the team I play for now. We just want to do our job." The BGSU Student Environmental Action Coalition presents:
