Clinton justifies air strikes
Administration warns of raids

WASHINGTON — The Clinton administration warned today of possible NATO military action to protect other towns in Bosnia following two days of strikes on Bosnian Serb forces near Gorazde. President Clinton called today's renewed strikes "entirely appropriate." Clinton said U.S. warplanes carried out the attacks — today and Sunday — at the request of the United Nations to prevent further violence in the region.

"What the United Nations wants is for the Serbs to stop the shelling and to stop what we have been referring to as the negotiations," President Clinton said.

"What the United Nations wants is for the Serbs to stop the shelling and to return to the negotiations," Clinton said. He told reporters briefly at the opening of a meeting in the Cabinet Room with senior national security advisers.

The Serbs, who are backed by former Defense Secretary William Perry and other Pentagon officials, said that unless NATO would respond with air strikes to break the siege of Gorazde. By week's end, however, other senior administration officials indicated military action was possible.

Clinton said on NBC, the attacks would in alliance efforts to peace and could well be extended to other besieged cities.

"If such military support might be brought into play at other besieged Muslim towns, such as Tuzla, Albright said, "it's possible." "We'll have to see as far as the other safe areas are concerned," said Albright, speaking from the White House. "I do think, however, that what's happening in Gorazde should be seen as a signal for the other safe havens." Clinton said U.S. forces were still carrying out their mission.

"They are attempting to reassure Gorazde as a safe area, which we've agreed to in," the president said. "They are encouraging the Serbs to withdraw from the safe area and to resume negotiations and stop the shelling. "And if they are not at that point, they can ask for NATO close air support," he said.

U.S. commander for Bosnia Lt. Gen. Sir Michael Rose. The decision to conduct air strikes near Gorazde, a town of about 30,000, is "entirely appropriate," he said.

"That's what they have done. And we've done our best to provide it. Clinton said he talked in length by telephone Sunday night with Russian President Boris Yeltsin, who expressed concern over the U.S. bombing. Russia is a traditional ally of the Serbs.

OCCIC pursues end to organized crime
by Jonathan S. Branstoun
News staff writer

The mission of the Ohio-Organized Crime Investigation Commission has proven to be effective in the first years of its operation.

The OCCIC, a commission formed by the Ohio General Assembly in 1986, assists local, state and federal law enforcement agencies in investigating organized crime.

The commission's mission is to stop organized activity in Ohio, and that is exactly what it is in the process of doing. During its first five years in full-scale operation, the OCCIC has identified over 140 criminals and recovered $5.5 million in monetary property.

The OCCIC's task forces created by the Commission have been instrumental in infiltrating several criminal enterprises, by arresting and/or confiscating millions.

A task force in 1992 helped the Ohio Attorney General's Bureau of Criminal Investigation recover more than $4 million in stolen property including 246 vehicles, 30 pieces of construction and farm equipment and eight tractor-trailer rigs. In addition, several planes of real estate were seized under state and federal forfeiture statutes.

"Eventually, a total of 30 individuals were indicted. Of those 30, 28 were convicted. The task force also recovered more than $4 million in realty assets," said John Cozza, OCCIC executive director.

According to the OCCIC 1993 Status Report, one of the primary targets of the investigation, Paul DeLay, was sentenced to 269 years in prison and is ineligiblity for parole until 2026. Another member of the OCCIC, Paul R. Broadwater, was sentenced to 269 years in prison and is ineligiblity for parole until 2026. Another member of the OCCIC, Paul R. Broadwater, was sentenced to 269 years in prison and is ineligiblity for parole until 2026.

"Even though it's too early to measure, the results have been excellent," said Branstoun, "why I'm not sure why they have been successful."
U.N. justified in Bosnian attack

For the first time in its 44-year history, NATO attacked ground forces in an effort to end the fighting by the end of the week, the leader of the U.N. mission to Bosnia said.

The UN has authorized a bombing raid by the United Nations to get the point across. The U.S. and the U.N. peacekeeping corps, who have been virtually slaughtered because of the war, are trying to make a difference and not waste time as mere spectators.

They need to make sure that the troops are actually in Bosnia as part of the U.N. peacekeeping corps, if anything is to happen.

To make matters worse, two U.S. F-16 fighter jets bombed the targets, signals the United States' involvement in the conflict.

The fighting in Bosnia and the other war-torn countries has been occurring for more than two years. In that time, leaders of many countries have set the sidelines hoping that by talking things out, things would improve.

But in that time, thousands of innocent bystanders have been killed, including children, because of the war between the various religions.

While there was tragedy in these latest attacks, we believe the force used and the significance of that force will show there is now a united push toward demanding that the fighting stop and that the U.N. will do as much as it can to make sure it ends.

Many believe peace talks are the only way to solve the problem.

The only way to resolve this issue is at the bargaining table — the negotiating table — not at the battlefield, Sadikze K. Albin, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, recently said.

If the United States is going to pay to have troops in Bosnia as part of the U.N. peacekeeping corps, they need to make sure that the troops are actually making a difference and not wasting time as mere spectators.

The time is long overdue for the fighting and bloodshed to end in war-torn Yugoslavia. If it takes a bombing raid by the United Nations, then so be it.

You see, apparently the bisexual and homosexual community feel that they deserve special rights based upon their sexual identity. They believe that bisexual and homosexual rights advocates will improve this climate. They would argue that they only want equal rights.

Well, hey, the last time I checked, all Americans were afforded equal rights under the Constitution.

Now I clearly believe all Americans have equal rights. So there seems to be no problem.

But I would argue this is not the case. The militant homosexual community clearly wants special rights.

But regardless of all the "pros" they are making, they are still unhappy.

In fact, I think they should be really, really happy these days.

They have a president who supports them and a Surgeon General who is doing everything she can to advance homosexuality in our society.

Right. There is no effort to sabotage the movement, there is no effort to make homosexuals feel that they are second-class citizens.

All right. There is no effort to sabotage the movement, there is no effort to make homossexuality feel that they are second-class citizens.

The Advocate. It's not the way it is. It's not the way they are always.

WSA organizes cultural events

by Melissa Lippowski

The World Student Association will be giving University students the opportunity to learn about various cultures this week through International Week.

Following in the theme of "United Colors of Our World," WSA has planned a number of activities designed to promote international understanding.

Throughout the week, we hope to acquaint the campus with many cultural events that require American as well as international student involvement," said Michelle St. Ong, adviser of WSA.

"At the Center of Awesome Love, we only employ people of a certain ethnic origin," said Millie Ann St. Ong, director of the Illinois, Ohio, Utah, and Wyoming area.

"Our program is to open up our minds to all over the country. The world represented and the global spread of the event each represent a country," said Curtis Peet, director of the program.

Students can participate in the World Ping-Pong Showdown in the Recreation Center. The Intercontinental Dinner will take place on Saturday, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the First Methodist Church. Students can take part in the International Tea Festival in the Student Union.

According to St. Ong, the dinner will include an evening of food simulations from all parts of the world.

"It's true that I'm only the employee here, but I say we're because God is my partner in this," Moyers said. "God is love, God is truth. He's every single one of us is made in his image. People need to understand how the spirit of love works and how to serve each other in the world. But a lot of people have an angry approach toward serving people with anger and having people run for men to formulate things."

Assembly on the 10th of December, the International Dinner will take place on Saturday, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the First Methodist Church to conclude the festival, she said.

The events, which are free and open to the public, began Sunday with a badminton tournament in the Student Recreation Center. They continued Monday with badminton and karaoke. Tonight at the 11th Floor of Oakstan West from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. students can participate in the International Tea Festival in the Student Union.

Columbus - Striking Teamsters pickets arrested in Ohio last week pleaded innocent Monday in disorderly conduct court.

No other strike-related arrests have been reported since Friday. The nationwide strike entered its sixth day Monday.

Atorneys for Teamsters Local 463 in Columbus filed the pleas for 36 strikers in Franklin County Municipal Court in Columbus.

The group was charged with assault. The others face disorder

Senate hopefuls work to debate issues

The Associated Press

TOLEDO - The Democratic candidates for a U.S. Senate seat are taking their messages nationwide to Ohio as they continue a series of debate appearances.

Cuyahoga County Commissioner Mary Boyle, Cleveland ac tessor Edayer and state controller Delbert Tyer of Columbus prepared to discuss issues Monday night in a debate in New York City.

The death penalty, education, health care and the economy were among issues discussed at the debate in Columbus last week. The candidates are to debate again Saturday in Albany and April 1 in Cleveland.

The candidates seek their party's nomination in the May 3 primary for the seat held by U.S. Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, who is retiring after 18 years in office.

Boyle, a 19-year-old woman, was arrested on a charge of discolored teeth that bear his name. It is his first run for elective office.

Office of shooting child

BY MIKE WRIGHT
The Associated Press

TOLEDO - A white policeman was convicted Monday in a shooting trial that rocked this Northern Ohio city.

William Beals, 26, all-white officer in the Toledo Police Department, was convicted in Lucas County Common Pleas Court of manslaughter for shooting and killing a black child in July 1993.

"This was the best deal for my client and, quite frankly, accurately represented what happened," said Joy Feldstein, Beals' lawyer.

Beals, who was shot in the knee, still has not recovered.

Lucas County Common Pleas Court Judge Stephen Yarbrough accepted the plea bargain and found Beals guilty. Sentencing will be on or before May 9.

The maximum penalty is 40 years in jail and a $50,000 fine.

Beals had been charged with felonious assault with a firearm specification. If convicted, he could have been sentenced to 18 years in jail.

Lucas County Common Proctor Commissioner Charles Vonnahme has recommended he be fired.

The shooting intensfied racial tensions in the city and, two days later, a truck driver was killed when a picket explosion killed him.

One local civil rights activist said he wanted to see Beals stand trial.

"I'm not sure that it was an accident or not," said C. Allen McConnell, president of the local chapter of the National Asso ciation for the Advancement of Colored People. "I would have loved to have seen him stand trial. But I knew that it would not happen because the child could not testify.

"Beals' lawyer, Joy Feldstein, said the plea bargain was fair.

"This was the best deal for my client and, quite frankly, accurately represented what happened," he said.

Beals showed no emotion as he entered his plea. Beals was not in the courtroom.

U.S. representative caught in air strike

by Katherine Rizos
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - A day after an Angolan Cabinet minister said U.S. Rep. Tony Hall, D-Ohio, was caught in an air strike, the congressman said he and his entourage were safely in a warehouse in the town of Huambo.

Hall said he and his entourage heard the first loud booms Monday evening, then waited out the attack in a warehouse. Hall said he was going into UNITA territory, for cover.

He said he knew there were two and maybe three MiGs, but there would be bombing in Huambo. Units there were warning that sometimes acts with the United States and other countries have less of a capacity than whites to detoxify NNK, one of the most deadly cancer-causing chemicals in cigarette smoke, said Dr. Steven Santella.

The test subjects live in the racially mixed city of Mount Washington, Massachusetts, and eat different environmental factors that are responsible? Santella said.

There was no immediate word of any injuries. The shooting victim there.

The shooting was minutes before two other柴油 returned safely.

The shots came from a gun fired at two people inside another vehicle, then a few minutes later opened fire with a semiautomatic rifle at two people standing in front of a music store.

The shooting took place in the same community of Venice. There were no immediate word of any injuries.

The occupants of a car fired first at two people inside another vehicle, then a few minutes later opened fire with a semiautomatic rifle at two people standing in front of a music store a half-mile away, said police Lt. Otis Dobine.

One of those shots outside the store was identified as actor Byron Keith Minns, who was in critical condition at Harbor-UCLA Medical Center in Torrance, Dobine said.

Minns, 23, played the criminal friend of an embattled street-gang veteran who tries to spare his young son from gang life in the 1992 movie "South Central." The film was produced by Oliver Stone.

Men's golf squad off to rough start

Garry Wager shot a team-low 220 and tied for seventh place overall, while the golf team finished a disappointing 16th out of 16 teams in the Marshall Invitational in Huntington, WV this past weekend.

Wager, a senior currently ranked number one in the MAC with a 72.6 average, was tied for the lead after two rounds of the three event with teammate Christian Pelusl by shooting a final round of 78 to fall off the pace. "Garry really came through and played well for us," head coach Todd Brunsink said. "It's encouraging to see performance like his early in the season." Brunsink was concerned about the team play overall, as a team, but we are excited to see individuals, especially the bump-and-run part. We need to practice harder," he said. "We have missed practices due to the weather, but there are no excuses. We just did not play well that day, but we are excited to see individuals, such as Garry, coming through." Wager's individual performance comes on the heels of another great individual performance two weeks ago at Ball State in a one-round shootout.

Augusta seems foreign

By Jim Litke

"He's got that reputation," Lehman said glumly, "so I kind of expected it. My personal feeling is that the Europeans are a lot more creative around the greens than we are. "We're better at the flop shot and the bump-and-run shot and the greens we play. But miss the greens here and you need the bump-and-run shots to get back up." Most American players are afraid of that shot," he continued, "because we never have expressed surprise. After all, we're trained in the clinic to hit every shot into every green will demand a bump-and-run shot. Whichever first described Augusta National as heaven on earth was no doubt a European. The golf course may not fit the American version of golfing hell, but there are no excuses. We just did not play well as a team, but we are excited to see individuals, such as Garry, coming through." Why, for the sixth time in the last seven years and ninth since 1980, a European won the Masters. Especially the bump-and-run part. "I don't know. I don't know why we are doing so good here." Jose Maria Olazabal of Spain, the latest import to make off with the green jacket, replied when asked about foreign domination of America's most storied golf championship. "I think," he said, "it has mostly to do with the kind of imagination that you need to hit certain shots."

American Tom Lehman was more specific. He left the National clubhouse Sunday morning at seven, leading the Masters and playing partner Olazabal by a single stroke. Over the next four hours, he watched the flamboyant Spaniard put from almost certain disaster on five holes with brilliant bump-and-run shots and deadly putting. When someone pointed out that Olazabal made only two bogeys in the first three holes and ran the ball into the hole twice from off the green, Lehman could hardly believe it. "How's that reputation?" Lehman said glumly, "so I kind of expected it. My personal feeling is that the Europeans are a lot more creative around the greens than we are. "We're better at the flop shot and the bump-and-run shot and the greens we play. But miss the greens here and you need the bump-and-run shots to get back up. Braves winning with new faces
by Tom Sauder
The Associated Press

ATLANTA -- Otis who? Ron who?
The Atlanta Braves have reached a 7-0 start, but in baseball, without a glance back at the key players who were lost in the offseason, they haven't even played at home yet.

They got to do that on Tuesday, suffering a 7-0 San Francisco Giants, whom they battled to the wire for the title in the old National League West.

The Braves are in a new division, the realigned NL East -- but they're still winning, albeit with an altered cast.

Otis Ruffin was allowed to sign with the Boston Red Sox after the Braves dealt him to the Cleveland Indians for Denzel Brawner.

Denzel Brawner and Greg Olson were sent packing on the catching job that could've given to rookie Javier Lopez.

Then Ron Giant broke his leg on a dirt dive and the Braves have cut him in a group of rotation battles for the final spot in left field. One of them, Chipper Jones, joined a knee and is probably gone for the season.

And the four games away at San Diego and three victories at Los Angeles make up the team's best start since 13-0 run to begin 1982.

The Braves established a season in which the season, division change down the last three years, has to finish in a World Series.

The streak launches a season in which the Braves, division champs in the old NL West, are trying to key that if we get ahead early we have to stay aggressive both in the field and at the plate.

While BG has certainly struggled on the defensive side of the ball, Miller is hoping that BG will shake off its shaky-at-best start with a walk to Cecil Fielder. He then set down the next two to be

The Milwaukee Brewers boast (.636).
