No easy parking answers

Students still unhappy

by Tara Slovin

"We don't have a parking problem at this University," said University President Paul Olszewski. "We have a problem of parking." It has been five years since the Olszewski team made it known that parking was a problem. "At this University, parking is a problem," Olszewski said.

Possible solutions for parking on campus

• Students for Students plans to discuss a parking "problem," which they claim to be parking problems, at their next meeting.

"We have a good parking system," Olszewski said.

Roger Donnelly, director of public safety, said University administrators are allotted six designated parking spaces. They are also permitted to park in non-metered and metered areas, which are open to everyone.

Denrell said the ap- pellate process makes it possible for anyone to have a fine on a ticket suspended.

"We do not treat students any differently than administer- ers," Denrell said.

From February 1992 to February 1994, 1,002 tickets were issued for parking in fire lane areas. Of those, 323 were ap- proved with 264 of the fines either suspended or reduced. "Eighty percent of the appeals are approved," Denrell said.

Denrell said the main parking problem at the University is one of convenience. People are apt to use those spaces, there are not enough parking spaces for everyone to be able to park near the University.

Mike Kowalczuk, chief of traffic for Student Court, said he agrees that parking con- venience is a problem. He said there are a number of ade- quate parking spaces available if you allow enough time to get to class.

"Everyone wants to park close," Kowalczuk said. "It is a matter of time manage- ment."

Jackson, assistant professor of Undergraduate Student Government, said he agrees that parking is a problem at the University as much an issue of convenience as it is of space.

Jackson said every parking decal is paid for by student fees, but not every student is able to get parking spaces near the student's residence.

"When you have a space right near your residence, then it is not a problem," Jackson said.

Possible solutions for students for Students include:

• creation of a parking garage which would be available for students.

"The parking plan does not work," Jackson said. "When you have a space right near your residence, it is not a problem."

Denrell said the main parking is a parking "problem," which he claims to be parking problems, at their next meeting.

"The parking plan does not work," Denrell said. "Whenever you have a space right near your residence, it is not a problem."

Recent studies for Students for Students show that 81 percent of the University's students do not have a parking space near their residence. The study also showed that 71 percent of the University's students do not have a parking space near their residence.

"We do not treat students any differently than administrators," Denrell said.

"The jury can always choose, no matter how low the evidence is, to let a person go free," Fieger said. "The Supreme Court said it.

"Not 81 percent of the University's students have a parking space near their residence," Fieger said. "The Supreme Court said it.

"It never occurred to me that someone could be tried for a crime and have the evidence show that he or she is innocent," Fieger said. "The Supreme Court said it.

"I have talked to many people who believe Kevorkian rep- resented their best interests. And who believe Kevorkian rep- resented their best interests," Fieger said. "The Supreme Court said it.

"If Kevorkian's lawyer, Geoff- frey Fieger, a right, 'in the only possible way,' put Fieger in the chair. "The jury can always choose, no matter how low the evidence is, to let a person go free," Fieger said. "The Supreme Court said it.

"It is not a debate that is a debate about whether or not people agree with the verdict of the law," Fieger said. "The question is whether or not Jack Kevorkian is above the law."
Price of peace a worthy cause

Last week, two U.S. helicopters were accidentally shot down by American jets over Iraq. This incident, although much more the story of the week that will be forgotten in a few days, is a tragic reminder of how difficult the mission America has embarked on of keeping peace throughout the world actually is. All too often we look at incidents and take them for face value, but there is much deeper meaning behind last week's incident.

Twenty-six American, British, Turkish, Kurdish, and French, including some civilians, were killed during the accidental Gaza War rebuild their homes and their lives.

But it is not only in Iraq that tragedy is occurring. Everyday across the globe U.N. workers in Bosnia face harassment and violence. This deterrence of peace is carried out by both sides, when some nations put themselves between the violence that is happening and the peace that they are trying to bring. For one thing in return for their efforts — world peace.

However, like anything, that peace has a price. It is this price that the U.N. workers in Bosnia today. It was this price that drove U.S. helicopters and planes to meet high above Iraq and attempt to help over one million refugees from the war-torn Gulf War rebuild their homes and their lives.

Staying in dorms can cut expenses
by Jim Vidoc
News contributing writer
Planning a summer vacation can be a very dif- ficult decision to make. However, staying in college residence halls instead of hotel rooms can significantly reduce vacation costs. More than 260 college campuses in the United States - 12 in Ohio - open their residence halls to the general public during the summer, according to the U.S. and Worldwide Travel Access市场营销 Guide.
Lodging usually costs between $15 to $20 a night per person, said Robert C. Luckchuck, the publisher of the guide book.
"There are other advantages to staying at college campuses besides the low price," he said.
One disadvantage to staying at college campuses is the limited hours and services used by people staying in dorms, he said.
"You have to share baths, showers and kitchens," he said. "People can have a lot of privacy if they just live in hotel rooms.
"You don't have to move in the middle of the night or leave your own belongings scattered around the room."

MS Society hosts charity bike tour

More than 2,000 people in Northeast Ohio, sponsored by Multiple Sclerosis. To support them, a group will ride the Northwest Ohio Bike Tour, starting at the Medical College of Ohio at 6:30 a.m. on July 21. The ride will start and finish at the Medical College of Ohio.
"The ride tour is ISO miles long and takes place over a two-day period," Bickford said. "Participants will ride 75 miles each day with seven rest stops 10 to 12 miles apart, and Dennis Greenwell, executive di- rector for the Northwest Ohio chapter of The National MS Soci- ety.
The tour begins at the Lucas County Fairgrounds in Maumee at 7:00 a.m. on June 25. It will end at the same location with a chicken barbecue and music by the Band Hot Lixes. Greenwell said.
"The ride will allow people to come together to raise money for a cause, and to make people aware of the issue of MS," Greenwell said. "The ride will also allow people to come together to support those who have been affected by MS and their families.
"The ride will also help raise awareness and funds for the MS Society and to educate people about the disease."
"Everybody with MS really hopes to do something like the Bike-To-The-Bay," Brown said.

End to racism may be rocky Discussion aims to educate, generate ideas
by Melissa Lipowitz
News staff writer
University students demonstrated that there are no easy solutions to the racism they have faced on campus in a passionate discussion yesterday evening.
The event, which took place in the first floor lounge of McDonald East, was not sa- tisfied with the priority of solving quick solutions. Rather, it was created to give students the opportunity to generate ideas on how to break the socially-constructed walls of racism, said Toriano Davis, moderator and organizer for the event.
"Something positive goes on when we learn from each other and share our experiences," Davis said.

Computers prepare students
High cost of equipment justified in eyes of local educators

By Richard Lay
News staff writer

Computers don’t necessarily improve students’ grades, but they are still worth the high cost, according to some local educators.

Patia Funk, a fifth-grade teacher at Crim Elementary in Toledo, said computers are necessary for education.

“If we didn’t have computers in school, there would be a great disservice because the bottom line is that the kids learn,” Funk said.

Even though the record of computers improving the grades of students is mixed, local educators still say they are worth the high price.

“I think it’s worth every penny,” said Elaine Ezell, librarian at Bowling Green Junior High. “Look at the business world. They’re not going to give up their computers. And we’re going to send our students into that market.”

Catherine Grindstaff, a computer science teacher at Oregon High School, said the computer is effective as a tool for students in practical applications.

“We can usually make a computer understand in less time if we can give the students the opportunity to actually experience it as an object as opposed to standing in front of it, or seeing a chalkboard or worksheet,” Grindstaff said. “They have to have it in their hands on the revolv. It’s more interactive and you can retain and learn.”

According to Ezell, computers don’t necessarily help students improve their grades but they can produce a very nice document, you can check the spelling, you can check the literature with. With students who have handwriting problems, it saves a lot of time and it looks as good as another kid’s document.

Europe plans to extend bloc

By Paul Jahn
The Associated Press

BRUSSELS, Belgium — The European Union plans to take in four prosperous new members, extending the reach of the Western economic bloc into the heart of Central Europe and steps closer to Russia's former foes.

In four prosperous new members, extending the reach of the Western economic bloc into the heart of Central Europe and steps closer to Russia's former foes.

The 15 existing EU countries will enlarge the union to 16 nations, 375 million people and an economic worth $7 trillion a year. The North American Free Trade Agreement of the United States, Canada, and Mexico has 365 million people in a $2 trillion economy.

Such expansion warms the hearts of those who dream of building a European superpower to rival the United States.

The fall of Gorbachev would permit the Serbs, who already hold more than 70 per cent of Bosnian territory, to link eastern and southern holdings.

The NATO army high command said small tanks were moving into Gorazde. An official in the high command said tanks in between the U.S.-Serb tanks had been a "trip" in the past.

Gorazde, a town of 65,000 residents and hundreds of U.N. peacekeepers access to area. It would be more safe in the wounds for the United States and other Western countries whose efforts to to end the war have been criticized as weak and unfocused. The United States took the lead in forming a "wars来形容or" for Muslims last year, but the stage continued with foreign retaliation until last week, when the Serbs advanced to the edge of the town, forcing the United Nations to order all four U.N. forces to leave.

The Serbs agreed to pull out their heavy weapons from a 1.6-mile zone around the city, and talk about a more permanent exclusion zone later, said Holloway.

In June, the January accord on bloc expansion was signed by 12 of the 15 EU members.

In other developments, the Washington administration rejected widening NATO air range. There were no British casualties. The NATO jet shot down Saturday was one of two British Sea Harrier jets flying a mission over the Serb-held town.

Sooner or later, the Serb leaders in Sarajevo and the Bosnian Serbs will have to accept the EU's demands for bloc membership, if the EU remains a viable bloc.
Softball wins three of four

For the first time in four years BG women's track did not take part in the Ohio Athletic Championships, but did take part in a second contested event in Ohio University.

"We disappointed that we didn't do better but we were very happy with our performances," head coach Steve Price said.

Not only did they put in a great performance but three indoor records were broken.

Kellie Leslie took first in the shot put and broke the indoor school record when she threw for 50 feet one and three-fourths inches. Leslie also took the discus with a throw of 152 feet and 17 inches.

The four-by-100 relay team of Julie Shade, Jean McAllister, Clarice Gregory, and Kathie Johnson took first and broke the indoor school record with a time of 3:55.16. Leslie also took the discus with a throw of 152 feet and 17 inches.

Fighting a pack full of competition in this year's meet versus Akron, BG took an early lead with Miller and McCollum and was looking strong at the pointwise. Thompson's win, followed by Fiedler with 50.8, Sink said the performance will be the key. It's going to be a struggle to beat us.

"We Just need to pull together as a team again," Sink said.

Schott shuns smoking law

by Joe Kay
The Associated Press

CINCINNATI — Owner Marge Schott says she will continue to push for the law that bans smoking in seats at Riverfront Stadium, the Reds' home, after fans with announcements on the scoreboard before and during games.

Schott set in her front-row seat next to the Reds' dugout and smoked during five first-game sellouts of a season-opening homestand. She said on one or two occasions directly to her, and she said seeing nothing wrong with smoking in an open-air stadium.

"I don't care if they com-plain or not," she said. The As-so-ociated Press interviewed her in a telephone interview. "I just feel in this country, we are not focusing on what the real problems are.

"What we should begin to worry about is unemployment, gun violence, things that all these illegitimate children, minorities — things that I think this people in this country are getting tired of hearing about. If it had a child, or rather why don't they worry about other things.

But Schott's insistence on smoking in the stadium is part of an anti-smoking act that has put her in a bind as she struggles to maintain her relationship with city officials and the fans who negotiate a stadium agreement.

"It's rather obvious she's prevailing a no-smoking law.

Coach Magic bothered by losses

by Seth Harris

The Associated Press

INGLEWOOD, Calif. - As a player, Magic Johnson enjoyed the give and take of his family. As a coach, he has learned to work better with the players he can't bother by losses.

The former star and current coach of the Los Angeles Lakers said he took his frustration and enthusiasm among players when he announced his 16-game stint on the sidelines would end April 16.

"Do I want guys to be upset and me to be upset, too? Yes," he said Friday night. "I was upset about the loss, but we're a lot better now."

Lately, they have been losing, claiming, for the first time since firing the first of his six Johnson

Friday night's 105-100 loss to the Portland Trail Blazers mathematically eliminated the Lakers from playoff contention after 12 consecutive appearances. Wednesday's 88-87 loss at Phoenix was embarrassing.

Johnson said that's part of the reason he is quitting. "All I want to do is win. That's all I want to know," he said.

But he knows even those losses couldn't count on the team's lack of discipline. The Lakers into shape required

"I used to play hard, I used to punch people in the head and I was late to practice."

Johnson never lost the close, disappointing games to the Lakers of the 1980s, which almost always ended with his teammates.

"I don't want to walk away from the '80s. They call themselves the '80s," he said.

But he often used the old days as a way to talk about the fires he has had to put out as a coach. He said he has had to deal with players who have complained to the owner, who are always taking play time or dealing with personal issues.

"When somebody says something, they want to be the other take it or leave it. You don't have to respond, you just say, 'I don't know.'" Johnson said. "Like China. Like being a general to give all of them, but, that's not enough."

"I used to walk away, whenever he was losing, whenever he was losing."

Now when he was playing, if you were late those other 11 guys would just say, "You're late, you're late," and that's not so much. He was on the road, he was traveling. But when he was playing, he said, "If you're late, you're late, you're late."

"When somebody says something, they want to be the other take it or leave it. You don't have to respond, you just say, 'I don't know.'" Johnson said. "Like China. Like being a general to give all of them, but, that's not enough."

But he is the first coach to have to deal with such issues. But he is the first coach to have to deal with such issues. But he is the first coach to have to deal with such issues.
