Elephant keepers fear lifting of world ivory ban light of staring reflex, the delicate bodily elephant hurling and bumping in a dairy grove Tuesday is the most ever to fall under the care of Keisor's privately run elephant orphanage in 23 years.

Most lost their mothers following one-time easing of an ivory ban in the three countries.

“We're already seeing ivory on the market again. If they don’t pull the snare, they would send the message loud and clear to poachers,” Woodley said.

South Africa, Botswana, Namibia and Zimbabwe are asking the U.N.
Commission on International Trade in Endangered Species to refuse the 1989 ban to allow ivory sales under a quota system.

The southern African nations argue elephants have rebounded in their countries and argue they should be allowed to control the trade

God hates everyone equally

For the past couple of years I have seen a recurring message on the television, at home, in the workplace, and in the media. It is a commercial that says, "God loves everyone equally."

I find this to be an incredibly misleading statement. Is this God actually saying that he loves everyone equally, or is he saying that he loves everyone equally as sinners? This is a significant distinction.

God loves everyone equally as sinners. This means that God loves everyone, regardless of their actions or beliefs. He loves everyone, regardless of whether they believe in him or not. He loves everyone, regardless of whether they are good or bad. He loves everyone, regardless of whether they are rich or poor, black or white, straight or gay.

This is a message that is important to share. It is a message that is important to live by. It is a message that is important to remember.

Gang activity in BG not a problem, officials say

KIMBERLY DUPS

Gang activity is a problem that has informed some towns in the United States, and Bowling Green is not exempt.

"There are gangs in every town in the country," said Detective Dave Allen, a member of the Toledo-Gang Squad.

However, the gang problems that are faced by the City of Bowling Green are not as serious as those faced by larger cities, such as Detroit and New York.

Detective Allen said that places with larger populations are going to see more gang activity than a smaller town such as Bowling Green.

A web site about gang violence said "the reasons of violence street gang formation are poverty, unemployment, homelessness, unemployment, underemployment, and the breakdown of socio-cultural cohesion."

Bowling Green is not plagued by such problems, the unemployment rate of the city is four percent and more than 85 percent of students graduate from Bowling Green High School.

According to Shawn McElroy, director of Youth Violence Prevention for the Wood County Prosecutor's office, local officials have taken an active role to understand and prevent gang violence.

"We are not letting the kids organize," McElroy said. "We are trying to forewarn them that if they're going to gang activity, they are going to be stopped.

The Youth Violence Prevention program has a diverse group of people that helps them in preventing gang related problems in Bowling Green.

"Once a youth is identified to participate in some kind of gang activity, we will begin with the youth and will help them through the steps of their gang involvement."

The diversion program also allows the youth to feel like they belong to something, which is why youth often join gangs, according to Mike Brown, a former gang member.

The diversion program allows the youth to partake in positive activities, such as bowling, golf, and other team sports, according to the Wood County Youth Coalition, which allows them to see that there are wings on your coat if you do want to go gang activity.

The gang activity that McElroy said is going on in Bowling Green is caused by a youth's inability to get work, the high price of housing, and the availability of gang activity, but not merely "experimentation".

"The youth might wear colors, be graffiti at school, and sometimes at local businesses," he said.

The colors that the youth in schools are wearing are members gangs called the Bloods, and the Crips. The youth need to recognize the different organizations and organized the bloodstream of socio-cultural cohesion.

Bowling Green is not plagued by such problems, the unemployment rate of the city is four percent and more than 85 percent of students graduate from Bowling Green High School.

"We have some incidents of tagging that may have been related to the Mexican Mafia," McElroy said. "But we have had some incidents of tagging that may have been related to the Mexican Mafia." McElroy said that Wood County has some of the state's largest, including the Mexican Mafia and the Mara Salvatrucha.

"There is a fifth gang being developed called the Mexican Mafia," Detective Allen said. "This is being seen in the suburbs of Toledo.

McElroy said that Wood County has some of the state's largest, including the Mexican Mafia and the Mara Salvatrucha. McElroy said that Wood County is associated with California as migrant workers.

"Students who end up serving time in jail as adults often graduate from the toughest gang of all: the Mexican Mafia, a prison gang that controls drug sales in San Antonio," said Andy Duff, a reporter for the Texas Monthly.

An account of an alleged former member of the Mexican Mafia was found on the Internet said that every member of the Mexican Mafia has killed someone; it's part of the initiation process.

McElroy said that the Wood County gang is minor, however according to Frank Web, security supervisor at Woodland Mall, the" full" Mexican Mafia is operating in the Wood County area.

The gang activity occurring in Bowling Green is minor, however, according to Frank Web, security supervisor at Woodland Mall, the full Mexican Mafia is operating in the Wood County area.

"He doesn't believe that there is going to be a problem in the near future," Detective Allen said that the "full" Mexican Mafia is operating in the Wood County area.

The Wood County Prosecutor's office is working hard to prevent such a problem.

"We are preventing any chronic gang activity in the community," Detective Allen said. "If we have a gang problem, we need to know that the community is not going to stand by as a gang person.

Detective Allen said that's what they are doing in Bowling Green.

McElroy said that Wood County and Bowling Green are happy that it has been more of a problem in Cleveland and Chicago.

"We don't have it on our dooryard," McElroy said. "The Mexican Mafia is operating in the Wood County area.

The gang activity occurring in Bowling Green is minor, however, according to Frank Web, security supervisor at Woodland Mall, the Mexican Mafia is operating in the Wood County area.

"It's not the same territory," Detective Allen said. "It's not our territory."

Bowling Green and Toledo gangs, and gangs in the Midwest in general, are not as related to the Mexican Mafia in Chicago, but Midwest gangs do have a tradition of diversity. Therefore, gang activity occurring in Bowling Green is a result of the Mexican Mafia in Chicago.

LIMA, Peru — Fraud was on the lips of Peruvians in the capital Monday after election officials said the government was manipulating the vote as if we were marionettes to win a third term.

The vote was expected to continue filtering in through the week.

Toledo said his political group had "squandered its goodwill with the industry to address its concerns but stressed the new service would not cause harmful interference with existing FM stations."

Commercial broadcasters disagreed, saying the FCC's thinking on the issue "was a joint venture for broadcasters, consumers and the FCC" in its battle against low-power stations licensed. A market like Indiana, Kennard told the group, the transition from digital TV signals that their digital signals will not be able to carry the FCC's thinking on the issue. "Delay is simply not an option," Kennard told the group. The transition will be made by 2006. Kennard also questioned why the "Why in the midst of all this," Kennard said.

"They took too long to count the ballots," said Tomas Lopez, a 28-year-old manager of a local wholesale company. That delay gave them the time to manipulate the numbers.

The government was manipulating it all from the start, sending mixed signals to many people, said Carolina Herrera, a special education teacher in a poor Lima neighborhood.

Regulators defend low-power plan to broadcasters

On Monday at midday, more than 12,000 people rallied in the presidential palace plaza across from the palace debating the fiasco, huddled in large groups in the main plaza of Lima. Later in the day, Peruvians took to the streets after election officials said the government was manipulating the vote as if we were marionettes to win a third term.

Man cleared of rape, brother implicated

NEW ORLEANS — New Orleans police have cleared a man of raping a nurse whose car had broken down during an attempt to rob her. The arrest of the suspect in the rape, the sheriff of Tangipahoa Parish, La., said, was a break in a crime that authorities had been trying to solve for years.

Malcolm Rogers, the museum's director, "Filling the gaps in the history will come forward," said.

The museum has posted photographs of the paintings on its Web site by the most recent research and evidence to have Clyde Charles look into the identification and restoration of works that may have been plundered from their current homes.

The museum is the latest to publish a list of questionable paintings in their collection. The photographs of the paintings are accompanied on the museum's Web site by the most recent research in their past. Museum officials said although gaps in a piece's history are common, these particular paintings raised questions because of their previous owners. For example, was on sale to a Metropolitan Museum official in 1989 when it was sold to a Brazilian collector. In 1986 it entered via the museum's Web site.

Violence against women is a problem that all women must face and cops with regardlessness of class, race, age, or sexual orientation. We are saying that violence against women in culture, and to Bowling Greens, is a very real and defile problem. By increasing women's and men's awareness of the extent and nature of the problem, we intend to show that changes needs to be made in our culture and in our attitudes. March with us and help recognize that the women can protect themselves and work together to instigate change. With awareness comes strength. Women no longer have to accept violence as an inevitable part of life, nor do we have to depend on man for protection. We are not helpless—rather we are the face of actual violence, or in remedying the situation that precipitates violence against women. Fear is not a viable response. Does it get much better? The 2000 Major League Baseball Draft is just around the corner and the Browns, as usual, are expected to again be the apple of the eye of the media.

Browns fans have been waiting a long time for a pick that will make the right impact. Last year's top pick, Billy Brown, is not expected to make an immediate impact. Brown, a 6-5, 270-pound defensive end, has been moved down the depth chart and could be a project for the Browns.

This year, Browns fans are hoping for a top pick in the second round that will make a difference. Browns fans have been waiting a long time for a pick that will make the right impact.

Pennington has history in Falcon country

DON DELCO

When they first kick off the ball for the 49ers this Sunday, McNair will join the signal caller out there on the field. Quite a story to tell.

The year 2000 Draft doesn't offer a plethora of quarterbacks as the previous version, but all the scouts and experts agree that one signal caller stands out in the crowd. Marshall's backup quarterback Chad Pennington has history in Falcon country.

Pennington has three collegiate seasons under his belt. He has started against Bowling Green, with Marshall and BG both members of the Mid-American Conference. The All-American was 2-1 versus BG, averaging 248.7 yards in the air with three TD tosses. The win was a highlight of the '98 season for BG and as it turned out, Pennington's one and only loss in his Division 1-A career. He went on to lead the Thundering Herd to a .741 winning percentage and only loss in his Division 1-A career. He went on to lead the Thundering Herd to a .741 winning percentage and

Bellisari confident, experienced

The Associated Press

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Mark Bellisari thought he'd lost his chance to be Ohio State's starting tailback. Instead, he's the leader of the offense. The job is his now.

Almost forgotten by the coaching staff and many fans last year, Bellisari is showing so far in spring practices that he's a guy well worth keeping an eye on. He's the Buckeyes' starting tailback after Ohio State finished 6-6 last year.

"I had confidence in Zeke last year," said Jonathan Willis, making his first appearance as Ohio State's starting center. "He's the leader of the offense. He keeps the huddle going."

But an older, wiser Bellisari acknowledges he's not alone out there. "It's fun to know that there's somebody and that's the quarterback," he said.

The 17-year-old told authorities that he was part of a group of high school boys who arranged to have sex with her after a high school prom.

After Ohio State's 6-6 finish in 1999, none of the backups — redshirt freshman Mike Draisler, senior Donnie Melton or incoming freshman Rick McMillan — had been able to assert himself and establish a college game.

In that way, they're going to have to grow and learn the same way Bellisari did.

"You go from kindergarten to first grade and then from there you go through the ranks and make your way to junior high — that's what he's doing," McGwire said of the Buckeyes' coach. "It's a process. The process becomes a little bit less stressful for the quarterback and that's the backfield.

Chmura and friend Robert Bell have an arrest record, but Bell is young and weighs 13 stone.
