Improving on campus

By Bill Redfern

The game is called "Crowd." In it, two teams begin at opposite ends of a room and, through use of other actors watching, tell their respective teams to perform some plot, and the actor who stops them in time near the opposite end of the room wins. The game was shown by the101 Olscamp Hall.

"The Improv-a-Thon is an event sponsored by Theatre BigBlue to raise funds for the organization, to bring professional performers on campus next year and to also promote the Theatre department and the performing arts," said Andrew Cuban, treasurer of Theta Alpha Phi and head of the Improv-a-Thon committee.

"It's a way to showcase the talent of people in the department, people who are great at improv," said Cuban, noting that it has been absolutely incredible, surprising, has helped us immensely in fundraising and awareness of our organization. Howie, has asked a lot of local businesses and organizations for support from local businesses. And other BGSU theatre students and faculty members will be involved, which comes to $5, totally for the fundraiser was inspired by the ABC reality show, "Improv-a-Thon" and that's what the event offers. The event itself begins at 7 p.m., and afterwards, there will be games running all day. Attendees of Theta Alpha Phi as well as other BGSU theatre majors and faculty will also give support during that time.

The Improv-a-Thon is the BGSU chapter of a national theatre organization.

"It is an honorary organization presented toward recognizing excellence in Theatre," said William Wammes, the president. "We all support the Theatre Department, and that's what Theta Alpha Phi does, to help professional people," said Melissa Bennett, thesis secretary.

Support for the Improv-a-Thon comes from a variety of sources. "In previous years, we've had money from local businesses and organizations," said William Wammes, owner of Al-Mar.

Funds will be generated through donations and through the sale of t-shirts. The minimum pledge with all of the proceeds going to the theatre, which comes to 101 Olscamp Hall.

"This event was to show the theatre department as an integral part of the BGSU community," Bennett said. "Not only are you walking by, you never know you might have a chance to follow up on stage."

Rising from the ashes

Community support led to current construction of new alley

By Craig Stoff

When the beginning of this year, construction crews have been hard at work, rebuilding Al-Mar Lanes.

The bowling alley, which stood on North Main Street for nearly 20 years, was torn up in a direct of smoke during the Nov. 26, 1999, fire. ("When lane is on fire, it's on fire," said the Independent Film and Television Association.)

"We are making more room in the business," said William Wammes.

As of now, most of the used equipment has been picked and half the roof is gone. Wammes said that the finished product will be all that ran from the old Al-Mar.

"We are making more room in the business," said William Wammes.

The bowling alley exactly as it was rebuilt, however, Wammes said it was still in better shape.

"Totally through assessing about just asking people and sitting at home and watching the Pizza is flat," he said. "However, when the citizens of Bowling Green went to them to the alley and whether it would be rebuilt, we realized that he needed to bring back Al-Mar.

"It's free entertainment for the community," said William Wammes, owner of Al-Mar. "We have many community members that have been placed and half the roof is on. Wartimes said.

"We are making more room in the business," said William Wammes.

"I actually thought about just taking the alley and whether it would be rebuilt. Everybody's anxious to have full lanes for the University," Wammes said.

"I expected more support from students and faculty alike," Wammes said. "One of the most of the used equipment has been picked and half the roof is gone. Wammes said that the finished product will be all that ran from the old Al-Mar.

"We are making more room in the business," said William Wammes.

"I actually thought about just taking the alley and whether it would be rebuilt. Everybody's anxious to have full lanes for the University," Wammes said.

"We are making more room in the business," said William Wammes.

"I actually thought about just taking the alley and whether it would be rebuilt. Everybody's anxious to have full lanes for the University," Wammes said.

"We are making more room in the business," said William Wammes.

"I actually thought about just taking the alley and whether it would be rebuilt. Everybody's anxious to have full lanes for the University," Wammes said.

"We are making more room in the business," said William Wammes.
Yesterday was an early morn- ing for John Bragg and Rebecca Freimark. They passed out flyers and canvassed for student support around campus before class, and worked on their websites, which will be online early next week. They continued canvassing after the debates at RITI and other events downtown by passing out more flyers.

It was great to be able to sit down with the other candidates and discuss our platforms and see their differences. They both want to see more student support for campus events and games. The students need to show their support and attend athletic events, and discuss our platforms and see their differences. The student body and USG need to increase the visibility of police, update the emergency plans around campus and add security cameras in lot 8. The police need to have more active surveillance including the ice, students will know that their cars can't be targeted.

The day came to a close with a debate, where Engelman was able to reiterate his goals for USG and allow students to compare him to the other candidates. "You're going to need someone that can go to give up on what you're doing, and just do something," he said, "nowimobil."
Page 3 Interview
A CONVERSATION WITH YOUR INDIE-WRITE-IN-CANDIDATES

One thing that humans do more than anything in their entire life is sleep.

Don’t Run Out of Time! (FINANCIAL PROFESSIONAL ADVERTISER)

One Bedroom Unfurnished Apartments Single story building with patio and private entrance.

Three-Day Forecast

I’m So Dead Meat!

I forgot our Anniversary!

BG NEWS
Friday, April 13, 2001
AIDS finally getting Bush's attention

To THE EDITOR

PUBLIC ENERGY POLICY

I am a former student at this University and I was very pleased to see your story in The BG News about the lack of attention being paid to the energy crisis. It is a crucial issue that demands the attention of our government and the media. The energy crisis is not only a threat to the environment, but also to our national security. We need to find alternative sources of energy, such as wind and solar power, in order to reduce our dependence on oil. I hope that the government takes this issue seriously and takes action to address it.

Sincerely,
[Your Name]

SPORTS

The importance of respect in sports

 res is the only possible way to appeal to the international A 1980s, which has been the catalyst for many of the discriminatory practices that exist today. However, the current administration has changed its tune and is now working towards a more inclusive environment. This is a positive step towards creating a more just and equitable society.

In conclusion, the University of Bowling Green should continue to support the MSU police in their efforts to provide a safe and inclusive environment for all students, staff, and the World Community.

Sincerely,
[Your Name]
to the real world with graduate & professional housing.
Aerosmith: The Straight Dope

JAMES ELRED

The news from our hometown bands

There are two bands named Aerosmith. The more famous one is the one that has been around since the early 1970s and has had numerous hits. The other one is a band that has been around for a few years and has had some success.

So what's the big deal? The more famous one is that they are famous.

The other one is that they are also famous.

But all this can be remedied. The more famous one is that they have been around longer.

And the less famous one is that they have been around longer.

Aerosmith has been around for a long time.

In the 70s, Aerosmith was the most popular band on the planet. They were the biggest thing to hit rock and roll in the past ten years.

But then, in the early 80s, the band started to fade.

They released a few more albums, but their popularity started to decline.

In the 90s, Aerosmith was a shadow of their former self.

But then, in the early 2000s, they released a new album and started to gain popularity again.

Now, Aerosmith is back to being the biggest thing in rock and roll.

By Erik Pepple

Harris a piece of work in ‘Pollock’

By Jeff Wilhelm

You know, on the night of the Academy Awards ceremony, one of the awards that most disturbed me was Russell Crowe's victory in the Best Actor category. Considering that Mr. Crowe's work in "Gladiator" is adequate at best, to see him be honored with the top prize in this program, it made me feel little comfortable with the way the craft is perceived in our society.

Well, I wasn't surprised, because Lea Thompson already mentioned this film "Pollock," featuring the work of legendary actor and director Ed Harris, whom I've always considered one of the most important artists that will be casting. Anderson Arena at just one of the finest that makes this show so anticipated.

"It's a great thing to bring more diversity to the campus. I don't know if it's true, but some people say that the University does not have enough diversity," a student said. "A lot of times students are brought here to the University because they are the only ones in their family who are going to college. They come from homes where no one has gone to college before."

"I think it's great that they're getting so much attention," Clark said. "And I think that's because they're getting attention."

"I love diversity. I love diversity," Harris' work, as both star and director, is a major event in the area, and people are coming from all over to see it.

"I think it's a great thing," Harris said. "I love diversity."
Ani Difranco reveals in greatness; Big Pun roars, even in death; Pete Tong will make you dance out of your pants

Ani Difranco revealed in greatness; Big Pun roars, even in death.

Revelling/Reckoning

Simple", "Mama", and "Back Paged"

The second disc, "Revelling", is a somewhat redundant approach for fans that find herself safely based on扎实的乐曲, rich acoustic guitars, beautiful melodies, and various other light elements. The songs range from slow-burners that feature the use of piano and the violin to fast-paced tracks that feature the use of electric guitars and keyboards. The songs are well-composed and feature a mix of acoustic and electric instruments. The album's packaging is also beautiful, featuring a mix of black and white photos and a mix of text and graphics. The album is for those who appreciate the beauty of music and are looking for something different. This album is the perfect choice for those who want to explore new musical genres.

The Endangered Species

It was suggested to me that if "Blow" ended up being one of the worst movies of the year, then it should begin with "How does one to choose a career?". One of the best career choices is to become a drug dealer. This is the story of George (played by Johnny Depp), a young man who becomes a drug dealer. The story of how George becomes a drug dealer is told through flashbacks and interviews with people who knew him. The film begins with George's life as a drug user, and then his life as a drug dealer. The film ends with George's death. The film is a powerful and moving portrayal of a tough character, and it is a testament to the power of music and the impact of others. The movie also provides a stark warning about the dangers of drug use.

'Traffic,' the last big drug movie

"Traffic," the last big drug movie, is about George and the drugs he uses. The story begins with George as a drug user, and then his life as a drug dealer. The film is a powerful and moving portrayal of a tough character, and it is a testament to the power of music and the impact of others. The movie also provides a stark warning about the dangers of drug use.

Pollock played perfectly

Despite the film's flaws, it is a fine portrait of a great artist. Despite the film's flaws, it is a fine portrait of a great artist. Despite the film's flaws, it is a fine portrait of a great artist. Despite the film's flaws, it is a fine portrait of a great artist.

---

Check us out...

www.BGNews.com

toledoblade.com

webcam.com

---

4 GRAMMY nominations!
So Mike, it is ok if I call you Mike Jordan?

No. Mike, you want to make a personal investment for that client.

Okay. Okay. Mike, you want to make a personal investment for that client. First, you can ask your advisor if it’s a good idea. I mean, you have every single pro basketball player could want-the MVPS, the championships, the rings, the defensive awards, the scoring awards, the praise, the honor of being known as the best basketball player ever. Why would you come back year after year, if you’re not a good athlete and if Jordan? I’ll tell you why.

You’re afraid that there is no speculation in the sporting world that you are watching and if you do return, I’m professional basketball the sport to needs you AGAIN to make professional, there is much speculation in the sporting world.

I’ll tell you why. Curly Lambeau who played with the Packers before he played with the Chicago Bears. Lambeau: "When you’re playing in the NFL, you’re playing for your future. When you’re playing in the NBA, you’re playing for your present." I mean, I can’t argue with that. I’ll tell you why.

He loves the game, loves the community the locker room ceremonies. He doesn’t want to watch, but he does want to train. Playing basketball gives him the opportunity.

It was a challenge, Turning around the Wizards organization, he has been in the league for 18 years. He has been around the block.

He is the best athlete in the world?

I believe Tiger Woods is the number one athlete, but you would return to basketball. The only reason you returned to basketball was because of one of the most significant events of your career. What I can’t figure out is why you returned to basketball for a third time? I mean, you have everything you could want. Why?

He has the chance, Turning around the Wizards organization, he has been in the league for 18 years. He has been around the block.

Last weekend, Woods became only the fourth of four golf major trophies at the 2004 Masters. His total score of 280 under par was four strokes under par, with a single-run in the fourth round. Woods tied Tiger Woods for the lead on the final round, with a total score of 280 under par. He then went on to win the 2004 Masters, with a total score of 276 under par.

The Bowling Green State University baseball team extended their winning streak to seven games with a 6-2 win over Cleveland State yesterday. The Falcons scored four runs in the second inning, highlighted by Brian Kish's three-run home run. Playing would give him the opportunity.

The Bowling Green sprinter breaks off in a recent race.

What I can’t figure out is why you returned to basketball for a third time? I mean, you have everything you could want. Why?

He has the chance, Turning around the Wizards organization, he has been in the league for 18 years. He has been around the block.

Last weekend, Woods became only the fourth of four golf major trophies at the 2004 Masters. His total score of 280 under par was four strokes under par, with a single-run in the fourth round. Woods tied Tiger Woods for the lead on the final round, with a total score of 280 under par. He then went on to win the 2004 Masters, with a total score of 276 under par.

The Bowling Green State University baseball team extended their winning streak to seven games with a 6-2 win over Cleveland State yesterday. The Falcons scored four runs in the second inning, highlighted by Brian Kish's three-run home run. Playing would give him the opportunity.

The Bowling Green State University baseball team extended their winning streak to seven games with a 6-2 win over Cleveland State yesterday. The Falcons scored four runs in the second inning, highlighted by Brian Kish's three-run home run. Playing would give him the opportunity.

The Bowling Green State University baseball team extended their winning streak to seven games with a 6-2 win over Cleveland State yesterday. The Falcons scored four runs in the second inning, highlighted by Brian Kish's three-run home run. Playing would give him the opportunity.

The Bowling Green State University baseball team extended their winning streak to seven games with a 6-2 win over Cleveland State yesterday. The Falcons scored four runs in the second inning, highlighted by Brian Kish's three-run home run. Playing would give him the opportunity.

The Bowling Green State University baseball team extended their winning streak to seven games with a 6-2 win over Cleveland State yesterday. The Falcons scored four runs in the second inning, highlighted by Brian Kish's three-run home run. Playing would give him the opportunity.

The Bowling Green State University baseball team extended their winning streak to seven games with a 6-2 win over Cleveland State yesterday. The Falcons scored four runs in the second inning, highlighted by Brian Kish's three-run home run. Playing would give him the opportunity.

The Bowling Green State University baseball team extended their winning streak to seven games with a 6-2 win over Cleveland State yesterday. The Falcons scored four runs in the second inning, highlighted by Brian Kish's three-run home run. Playing would give him the opportunity.