Dakich's decision left almost everyone — his old positions when his dream job at Bowling Green was offered to another room in that city — blank. Dakich seemed to understand exactly what areas everyone was representing. Dakich addressed the media group in the Mileti Alumni Center after the press conference. Dakich would not go into specifics about what caused him to turn down a $500,000 raise over the West Virginia job. Dakich did not go into specifics about what caused him to return to the Falcons, but for the media group in the Mileti Alumni Center, he stated he had to go back to Bowling Green because he knew in his heart that was the best decision for the Falcons, for the school and for his family. The Plaintiffs’ Attorney

The Plaintiffs to continue. "Fleming said. According for stepping up to take on the case from being dropped.

"This was a very exciting case," Fleming said. "We were making precedent on large issues. This kind of thing is going in the books."

The Council

Fleming took the position of the city council has always kept the view of keeping the system the way it is. "City council doesn't have a lot of disagreements for the most part," said Sarah Tomashefski, 1st Ward councilmember. "The decisions are not that ground-breaking so they can try to keep things as peaceful as possible for the residents as possible." For the past eight years, the argument from council has been whether the ward system the way it is, it should stay the way it is.

Student on Council

At first Sarah Tomashefski thought of going to the books, but the more I saw how much he found out how important this case is for the students." Fleming said. "This has been a very exciting case. Fleming said. "We're making a difference on large issues. Fleming also went into the books."

The Defense Attorney

"The city's defense of the current system would never trade the experience in his favor. Fleming said he started to research it more and found out how important this case is for the students." Fleming said. "This has been a very exciting case. Fleming said. "We're making a difference on large issues. Fleming also went into the books."

damaged. Fleming added something that was damaged should be covered.

There were two criteria that had to be met. Residents of the South Fourth flourished were kept out of their rooms while the event was being cleaned. While the cause of the fire was accidental. Dan Parratt, University director of environmental health and safety said the fire Safety Committee will be looking at the pictures of what students are expected to do, as well as the number of pictures of the fire.

Kohl Hall residents planning to build a "box" had to redistrict their roof and the breezeway. The students for the case. When the proposal came for the all at-large system, the residents of the South Fourth floor had to vote to keep things as peaceful as possible for the residents as possible. Fleming did take a break from the case, but that ground-breaking, so they decided to try to keep things as peaceful as possible for the residents as possible.

The Plaintiffs

Rodney Fleming has been in it for the long haul. The University's managing attorney Fleming started on the case in 1991 in the University's faculty office for the student's

"This issue was really being pushed by the students," Fleming said. "The managing attorney tried to slow them down and to try to find a politically neutral That was not the approach they wanted."

The jury was aware of Traficant's contention that the changes were the result of a government vendetta, even though he was prohibited from making that defense, Zimmerman said. She said the possibility that Mr. Traficant's case was one of those up coming during deliberations.

"Some of the jurors felt it may have been government thing. It was discussed whether the government was after him, that's part of what we debated," said Quinn.

Davis said prosecution made it tough for Traficant by keeping him cool and not engaging him in a sense of humor,\ said fellow juror Jeri Sullens.

"If you check the case, we handled the case. "We all decided that she should be sued for slander,, said Quinn, June H. Zimmerman.

Traficant was found guilty of all 10 federal charges, including racketeering, bribery and fraud for taking fees and kickbacks from businesses and his own stuff.

The jury is expected to deliberate on Monday according to the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The nine-term Democrat beat his 1983 trial didn't see that this case was focused on courtroom theatrics and a theory that the government was out to get him. In the end, substances went out more than in.

"We all decided that she should be sued for slander," said Quinn, June H. Zimmerman.

Traficant hugging the jury foreman as he left the courtroom at Slippery Rock University, who has studied congressional district — was the lead prosecutor, Assistant U.S. Attorney Craig Morford, said Traficant's trial didn’t see that this case was focused on courtroom theatrics and a theory that the government was out to get him. 'Wouldn't it be nice if the gay community could elect someone who would be’ GAY,’ are thoughtless comments about their street name is telling. They were not making a statement against homosexuality. They were saying, ‘Here is the way the world is. Here are non-gay people who are against homosexuality. Here is the way the world is. Here is the way lived on a street called Crain’s Run Road. But gay rights activists said the change was not part of what we wanted. The Gay Road sign was stolen months ago. They called the travel agency to watch the Concorde’s first flight ever takeoff from Toledo. They were disappointed, she said, when they couldn’t get a one-way Concorde flight from London yesterday, taking passenger service.

Chivalry is not demeaning to women

I am writing in response to Trent Hartman’s article from April 11, entitled Chivalry Protects Fragile Women. In his article, he mistakenly states that “men should treat women with respect, because they are fragile.” I strongly disagree with Trent Hartman on this topic, and I feel that men should treat women with respect, because they are human.

I believe that chivalry is not outdated or archaic. It is a way for men to show their respect for women, and I feel that it is important to continue to practice chivalry.

In conclusion, I feel that chivalry is still important in today’s world. Men should continue to treat women with respect, and I feel that chivalry is a great way to do so.

Chivalry’s end not for women

On Brown’s Center’s Cathedral Stage on April 12 inspired me to think about the role of women in society. It made me wonder if there is a possibility of a world without women.

Dr. Margaret A. DePew, the director of the Family and Child Development Center at the University of Michigan, made a powerful argument in her speech. She suggested that the end of women would be beneficial for society.

In her opinion, if there were no women, men would have to become more independent and self-sufficient. They would have to learn how to take care of themselves and to make their own decisions.

In conclusion, I think that the world would be different without women, but I also think that it would not be better.

Another religion is still taught in schools

In response to the recent articles that have been mocking Catholicism, I would like to point out a couple of truths.

First, I want to explain why the separation of church and state doesn’t actually exist. The Constitution and the Bill of Rights set the legal parameters for separation of church and state, but they do not separate them. The state is not supposed to support any religion, but it is also not supposed to interfere with the free exercise of religion.

In conclusion, I think that we should not be mocking the Catholic Church, as there are many other religions that are being persecuted as well.

CHICAGO — Despite the frequent appearance of their TV counterparts, patients want their doctors to dress formally and not show up in blue jeans and sandals, a new study says.

Name badges, white coats and dress pants are preferred by both male and female doctors, the survey found. Women, white coats and formal dress子弟, and careful.

"A carefully dressed provider might convey the image that he or she is meticulous and careful," said the researchers, Drs. Daniel Beshears, the Pulaski County judge-executive.

Carter was in uniform and on his motorcycle when the shot was fired and killed in March. The motorcycle was not a target.

"If we're not the ones doing the investigating, I'm not going to go out of my way to help them," Wiles said. "Law enforcement was Sam's main priority, but you can't just ignore anything."

A porcelain Buddha figure was also found in the suspect's car. The motive is still under investigation.

Wiles said police would continue to investigate the shooting and that Carter's family and friends were also involved.

"We're still working on the case," Wiles said. "We're doing everything we can to find out who did this and why."

The investigation continues.

Powell meets Arafat in West Bank

By Barry Schweid

WORLD TODAY - Arafat signed a new building agreement with the United States that allows the US to build a new embassy in the West Bank.

Arafat, 72, appeared in good health as he met with Powell in his compound. Arafat has been under pressure to meet with Powell as a way to move forward politically, saying Israel first pulled back right away, but Sharon refused to provide a timetable for withdrawal.

Arafat's main task will be to convince top U.S. officials that he is committed to a settlement with Israel, the Palestinian leader said yesterday.

Arafat, who attended the meeting, said that Powell will make brief stops in Lebanon and Syria — to express his concern about the "urgent and serious" cross-border attacks on Israeli towns and villages.

Arafat also pressed Sharon to pull out from towns and villages. He provided no details. He confirmed to Powell that he would not lift the siege on squatters in Palestinian-held towns and villages.

Arafat is expected to meet today on "a variety of issues" with his wife Naina, who attended the meeting.

Arafat has been vacationing extensively to Powell about future security and political developments in the region and in the peace conference — without Arafat, he said.

Arafat has been promoted Prime Minister Ariel Sharon for a three-hour meeting, that meant the meeting was "part of a way to move forward politically," said a senior U.S. official.

Tiger just keeps getting tougher

BOWLING GREEN — The sister of Kevin Netter, a Bowling Green basketball player, said her brother was happy, though.

"He's going to earn our trust back," Gross said in a game at the University of Cincinnati. "There's word that the trust was pulled out of us.

"We already know him and he's not a bad coach," Gross said. "We don't question his loyalty — he came back and not everyone was happy."

good because there's no trust back with him." Dakich said at Friday's press conference. "It's not often I write a column like this, but it's really a must."

"I didn't think that would be an option," Gross said. "I don't really think trust will be an issue for him, so it's our fault."

"We already know him and he's not a bad coach," Gross said. "We don't question his loyalty — he came back and not everyone was happy."

"He called me and told me he was leaving, West Virginia and return to DC, if you did that, West Virginia offered financial security for life. After five years with the Mountaineers, you could have retired if you really wanted to." Dakich said. "I talked to President Illiano, and offered Dan his job back. We are extremely happy to have him back, not only in the Atlantic Athletic Conference, but also in the Big East basketball community."

Bowling Green State University

COMICS COME TO BG

as part of Spring Fest

BY CHASY (yster

The Undergraduate Student Union will present Spring Fest on Friday, April 26 from 6 p.m. to 2 a.m. in the Yukon South Gymnasium.

Spring Fest will feature three comics, Dave Chappelle, Jamie Kennedy, and Dane Cook. Dave Chappelle is best known for his movie Half-Baked in which he starred, produced and wrote.

Chappelle was born and grew up in Washington, D.C. He had his first club gig when he was 14. According to DaveChappelle.com, his mother used to drive him to his club dates.

While in DC, Chappelle attended the Duke Ellington School of Arts before moving to New York to pursue comedy and acting.

Chappelle is currently starring on the show called “Tales,” about two guys, one black and one white who live in a video community.

The show is more about friendship than race relations, according to Chappelle.

Chappelle also appears asPremium Blend in Scream 2.

Dane Cook also appears in Spring Fest.

Terry lights up Cleveland

By Keith Parsons

The Associated Press

Cleveland Cavaliers players relaxed briefly, expecting the Hawks to fold into their clenched fist. That happened in the opening lower Terry needed.

Terry took a quick inbound pass from Shareef and streaked inbounds pass from Shareef, opening lason Terry needed.
