Ladies on the rise in science

By Christy Jenkins REPORTER

According to a National Science Foundation Women in Science study, women constituted 8 percent of the science and engineering workforce in 1973.

In 1999, the percentage of women in scientific careers had tripled to 24 percent and this percentage continues to rise.

The Women in Science, Math, Engineering and Technology program, which the University will host tomorrow, is intended to encourage females to pursue careers in these disciplines. Dr. Charlene Waggoner, director of Environmental Programs, and Ann Betts, director of Academic Conferences and Professional Institutes/ Education, have planned and organized the events for tomorrow's program.

This year's program offers young women an opportunity to meet and listen to female role models in scientific fields. The event will open with keynote speaker Margaret Dalzell Lowman, director of research and conservation at Marie Selby Botanical Gardens in Sarasota, Fla. Lowman has completed research in nature conservation and biology and specializes in canopy ecology.

The program also features hands-on activities to promote positive math and science experience for young women. Faculty members as well as undergraduates and graduate students from the University prepare and pre-sent many of the activities.

The Women in Science Program was established in 1988 and funded by a two-year grant from the Ohio Academy of Science/Women in Science, Engineering and Mathematics Association. Women in Science has grown over the past 15 years to serve over 500 young women in Simply by virtue of attending a program such as Women in Science on a college campus, many young women will begin to feel more comfortable and confident about pursuing a college degree," Waggoner wrote. "The experience of encountering helpful adults in this supportive learning community environment will empower many young minds to expand their educational and career options.'

Sniper suspects share a defense

By Adrienne Schwisow
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FAIRFAX, Va. - Defense lawyers finalizing their plans for try-ing to keep sniper suspect Lee Boyd Malvo out of Virginia's death chamber have had an unlikely ally: the state.

As the 18-year-old defendant goes on trial today in Chesapeake, prosecutors in nearby Virginia Beach have been trying to convince a jury there that fellow suspect John Allen Muhammad, 42, exerted such control over Malvo that Muhammad should be held responsible for the shootings that killed 10 and wounded three in the Washington area last fall.

It's a theme that will be repeated at Malvo's trial — by the defense. Malvo's lawyers plan to argue that he is innocent by reason of insanity.

"Our strategy is their strategy," Malvo lawyer Michael Arif said. "If you watch the prosecutors [in Muhammad's case] carefully, they will never put on evidence that Lee was the shooter in any of the shootings in question."

The defendants are being tried for different killings by prosecu-tors from two different Virginia counties. Both face the possibility of the death penalty if convicted.

Prosecutors from Fairfax County say Malvo, who is charged with murder in the Oct. 14, 2002, death of FBI Analyst Linda Franklin, has admitted committing many of the shootings.

His lawyers argue that he confessed only to protect Muhammad, whom he called father, and that Muhammad was the mastermind of the sniper

Even if that is true, the Fairfax County prosecutors argue, Malvo is equally responsible for the killings. They say he laughed and bragged about the shootings to interrogators and prison guards.

During the first three weeks of Muhammad's trial, Prince William County prosecutors combined emotional testimony from victims and victims' relatives with forensic evidence, including DNA linking Muhammad to a rifle sight found in his car. Like Malvo, Muhammad is only on trial in one killing, but to get the death penalty, the prosecution needs to prove participation in multiple killings or terrorizing of the pubHONORED SECOND IN A 3-PART SERIES

Students in the military put their lives and education on hold for our country.

By Kara Hull EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Bowling Green native David Haas had help learning how to aim and fire a viper missile to shoot down enemy aircraft. He had help avoiding a booby trap that could have cost him his life. And it was help from fellow soldiers and superiors that got him through the toughest times dur-ing the Gulf War.

When I was in the military, they pretty much showed me that you have to rely on your leaders and your buddy next to you in order to help you survive," Haas said. "When I went through the Gulf I realized how important it was, it didn't matter who you were ... you're always going to need the person that you're working with. He could be the guy that protects you." A member of the 82nd Airborne Division, Haas wasn't always so willing to return the favor. At 17, he joined the National Guard 148th Infantry in Bowling Green and found him-self in the U.S. Army a year later on his way to the Persian Gulf, eventually becoming a platoon sergeant with the 82nd Airborne. "When I first went through, I wasn't that structured, I wasn't disciplined," he said. "I was a 'C' student and I really didn't try to help anybody out. But 12 years of active duty and 27 deployments later, helping out became not only second nature but Haas' passion. A hockey player in high school, joining the Army and having the chance to help others outhe could have made playing sports.

"After being in for so long, I realized ... I could make half mil-lion a year and do nothing or .. smaller pay but do something for somebody," he said. "It's a different job, it's a different way of life, but it's what I've always wanted to do. I wanted to do something for the country, wanted to defend America and protect its way of life."

The toughest mission

University students in the mili-tary find that completing these obligations and attempting to earn a degree at the same time is a tough mission.

For Haas, opportunities for schooling were few and far between during his years in the 82nd Airborne — the University will give him his sixth college experience.

GSS urges parking restrictions

By Christy Jenkins

At Friday's meeting, the Graduate Student Senate passed legislation encouraging the University to prohibit faculty from parking in commuter park-ing lots. USG passed similar legislation several weeks ago. Referring to why GSS and USG have been supporting similar legislation, GSS President Deirdre Rogers said, "I think that there are certain issues that affect all students such as faculty parking and how the funding is done." Rogers said that by working together the two legislative bodies can have some sense of strength in num-bers, especially when the legislation is sent to the administration.

Rogers also said that some issues are particularly unique for graduate students and other issues are particularly unique for undergraduates, but these issues often fall under the same realm. Even if identical legislation is not passed on these issues, USG and GSS can still support the broader issues and present a semi-united

"For example, a lot of undergrads are concerned about shuttle services and the conditions of the busses," Rogers said. "Graduate students are conthe busses," cerned with expanding the routes for off-campus students. But because both of these concerns re issues relating to shuttle service we can support each other."

At the meeting, GSS discussed the possible first step in improving shuttle service. Senators discussed legislation that urges the city of Bowling Green and the University to work together to University to work together to expand the University Shuttle Service across town.

"I think that's going to help decrease the amount of traffic and congestion in BG, be envi-ronmentally sound and it will help with the commuter parking issue, with faculty and staff parking," Rogers said.

The legislation, which will be voted on later this month, proposes two new shuttle routes servicing the western and southern parts of the city.

"There are so many positive ramifications. It can help bridge the gap between the University and the community. It can be a way for us to all work together on a particular project," Rodgers said. "I don't see why anyone would be against this legislation. It's a win-win-win-win situation."

The next Graduate Student Senate meeting is Nov. 21 at 3 p.m. in 308 Union.

Required weekends and three-week long training sessions can also put a strain on coursework, according to Rick Wilmot, mem-ber of the National Guard 134th Field Artillery in Cleveland.

But luckily these responsibili-ties breed effective time manage-

"Going to those weekends causes a lot of really really late Sunday nights when you get back," he said. "Sometimes you go away and it's kind of nice to see my family and see the guys. Sometimes you go away and you miss a good party. Sometimes you go away and you're in a group project and you miss a two-day long project and everybody's mad at you. Sometimes you get screwed totally, but it teaches you how to budget your time better!

For Fischer, handling schoolwork and military obligations is tougher with a 7-month-old in the house. Fischer made it home two days before the birth of his son, Aidan.

"It's literally a juggling act," he said. "I pretty much try to get everything done before I go home, that way I don't have to worry about it. There's always times where the schedule that I predict doesn't always work out. It does get pretty strenuous and kind of crazy at times."

But it's all worth it for these University students.

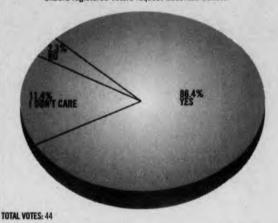

"It's a sense of honor of doing this knowing that because of me and people like me everybody else who's in the military who make huge sacrifices ... give up a lot of their rights," Fischer said. "They give up a lot of those rights to actually do what they do so that other people can have those rights. You hear about the rivalries ... but when it comes time to actually do something, everybody's on the same side.

THE CITY OF BOWLING GREEN

WISHES TO REMIND MOTORISTS OF THE REGULATIONS PROHIBITING PARKING ON CERTAIN STREETS

DURING SNOW, ICE OR SLEET CONDITIONS.

The regulations prohibit parking on the designated streets (including all cul-de-sacs) during "Snow Emergencies." A "Snow Emergency" can be declared if snow, ice, or sleet is forecast, and in any case will automatically become effective without a declaration when the snow depth reaches two inches (2°).

When a Snow Emergency is declared the news media will be advised. The declaration will contain the effective time of the emergency. If snow reaches a depth of two inches without a Snow Emergency having been declared, the police desk will be able to advise the official time at which snow reached the two inch depth. If a Snow Emergency becomes effective between 7:00 a.m. and 9:00 p.m., motorists have two hours in which to remove their vehicles from the designated streets. If the Snow Emergency becomes effective between 9:00 p.m. and 7:00 a.m., motorists have until 9:00 a.m. to remove their vehicles from the designated streets. Vehicles remaining on the designated streets in violation of the regulations are subject to being towed at owner expense.

If a particularly bad storm is forecast, additional streets may be designated in the declaration of emergency. If this should happen, every effort will be made to notify the news media and to post temporary "NO PARKING" signs.

The designated streets are called "SNOW STREETS" and are printed below. "SNOW STREET" signs have been erected on snow streets. It is pointed out, however, that the absence of signs will not relieve motorists of responsibility for improper parking.

Although the City will make every effort to inform the public of the existence of probable development of weather conditions requiring removal of matery vehicles from snow streets, motorists are different expensible for determining expenditure conditions.

Language studies increase

In an increasingly global economy, and as terrorism and war bring world events home, American students have returned to the study of foreign languages in record numbers.

According to a study released Thursday by the Modern Language Association, 1.4 million American college students are enrolled in foreign language study - the most since the group conducted its first survey in 1958.

Since 1998 — the last time the survey was published - the number of students enrolled in foreign language courses has jumped 17.9 percent. The percentage of college students taking such courses has risen to 8.7 percent, the highest it's been since 1972.

Students say the study of languages is more than just an exercise in verb tenses and vocabu-lary. Rather, it's a unique window into another culture.

"Through German I'm getting better understanding of Germany and the reunification process they're still undergoing and just a lot of the things they've gone through over the last 50 years — the Cold War and all that," said Aaron Miller, a fresh-man at the University of Illinois at Hebrew was up 59 percent, to 14,469 students from 9,099.

"I think no doubt it's the interest in global issues," said Rosemary Feal, executive director of the association. "The world is smaller, and people are much more aware of the need to expand their learning beyond the expand their learning beyond the border of the U.S."

Even with the jump, foreign language study in America's colleges and universities lags far behind schools in Europe, where language study often begins as early as age 5, and high school graduates are proficient in two languages.

"The good news is we seemed to have bottomed out on our sustained three-decade decline in language acquisition," said David Ward, the British-born president of the American Council on Education and the former chan-cellor of the University of Wisconsin-Madison. "So it's two cheers, not three."

The study notes that although Spanish, French and German still dominate the academic landscape, colleges have broadened their offerings, teaching 148 of the less commonly taught language in 2002, compared with 137 in 1998. These languages include Ojibwe, Swahili, Tagalog and

Emotion shouldn't be punished

No one should ever be reprimanded for experiencing basic human emotions.

No one ever said that war wasn't hell — one American soldier, however, is being reprimanded for what any normal human being would consider normal, real and expectable emotions.

Staff Sgt. Georg-Andreas Pogany, a member of the 10th Special Forces Group, accompanied a group of Green Berets into the heart of Iraq Sept. 26. His final station was a compound north of Baghdad in the city of Samarra. Shortly after arriving at the compound, a group of American soldiers brought in the bloodied corpse of an Iraqi man literally ripped in half by U.S. gunfire.

Upon seeing the body, Pogany collapsed in a fit of sickness, vomiting and unable to focus.

Over the next several days,

Pogany was increasingly unable to sleep and began suffering a series of panic attacks. Pogany asked three times to be sent into counseling before he was finally examined by an Army psychologist who recommended Pogany take time off before returning to duty. Instead, Pogany was sent back to the United States and charged with "cowardly conduct as a result of fear," a charge potentially punishable by death.

Certainly there is an unfortunate level of dehumanization necessary for an individual to become an effective soldier, but for an American to be prosecuted for "cowardice" because the sight of a terribly mutilated body makes him physically and emotionally ill is absolutely absurd.

The response from Pogany's superiors is equally disturbing. One of his superiors actually told Pogany to consider the serious ramifications attending counseling or taking time off could have on his career.

The U. S. military has consis-among U.S. soldiers in Iraq is very high. In light of these charges, one begins to wonder if morale is "good" simply because no one is listening to the stories to the contrary. There's no question that troops in combat conditions are under incredible emotional strain. While the military does provide counseling to its troops, the service does very little good if soldiers are too frightened for their careers and reputations to utilize it.

There's a good reason that no one has been convicted on charges of "cowardice" since the Vietnam War: Soldiers are human beings and therefore should not be punished for acting as such.

Smoking has pros and cons, the habit is not all bad

SCOTT NILES

Opinion Editor

"Write about what you know" is advice that I have heard quite often as a journalism major and a creative writing minor. So, I thought for a while and decided to write on something that plagues me everyday and has for the past four and and a half years: smoking.

years: smoking.

Smoking is a topic that almost everyone has an opinion about. Being a smoker myself, I am going to try to offer some pros and cons to the nasty habit.

There are several pros to smoking that people often ignore because of the health risks associated with the so-called cancer sticks.

I will start off by letting people know the benefits that come along with the habit.

 First off, I lived in the same residence hall for two and a half years, Kohl Hall, where I met many of my friends and late night buddies down by the smoker's benches. Although they have made changes to the building (bad ones in my opinion) they managed to keep the original smoker's benches that hold many memories for the people who used to live in Kohl. I can remember many late nights out by those benches staying up with my friends, doing lastminute papers and other assignments that would end up being all-nighters. Whatever we were up for, though, it never failed; there were always people out at the Kohl Hall smoking benches even at 2 a.m.

In addition to the late nights, I can remember back to my first week at college. Being a senior, it was a few years ago. The smoker's benches became my hangout spot, even on the first day on my own. Like most students who do not let their parents know they smoke their freshman year, I waited until my parents left the parking lot to go light up a cigarette. That is when I met some of the people who are, still some of my best friends.

2. Smoking has made an impact in my college career in choosing a roommate. Although most of the time I would check the box that said "I am a non-smoker and would like to be placed with a non-smoker" on the housing forms (due to my parents looking them over), I was lucky enough to get placed with a another smoker during my sophomore year. It is much easier to have a roommate who smokes if you are a smoker. First of all, whenever you want to go out for a "square" you almost always have someone who is willing to go out with you. If you are both smokers, you do not have to worry about your roommate complaining their clothes stink because of your habit or that you are making the room smell. Smoking can be a form of common interest.

3. In my opinion, smokers tend to be more generous. I am not saying that other people are not generous, but hear me out. Among people who are in the "smokers alliance" or in the "smoker crowd" there tends to be a circle of giving and receiv-ing. When someone is out of smokes, other smokers know what it is like and are more than willing, most of the time, to give a stranger a cigarette. I have even run into some people who were willing to give me their last smoke. I know this sounds minor, but for a smoker to be willing to give someone their last cigarette is a very big deal (fellow smokers know what I'm talking about). Also, there have been many times when my friends (smokers and non-smokers) have lent me money to buy a pack of smokes when I was out.

4. The last pro I will mention is the idea that smoking can keep you thin. It is a proven fact that smoking speeds up the body's metabolism making it easier for people to maintain their weight. I'm not saying that people who smoke two to three packs a day will lose weight. It does help to maintain your current body weight.

Now that I have mentioned some of the benefits of the habit, I will try to go into some of its negative aspects. You may have already heard some things I will mention but it is necessary to correct some of the myths that people believe are true.

1. Many people believe that smoking is purely a mental addiction. However, I can verify that this is not true. For smokers that have smoked for a while (almost four years ago) trying to quit is not simply a mind game. Physical withdraws happen many times when individuals try to "kick the habit." People often experience headaches, stomach pains, dizziness, fatigue and other symptoms. If it was simply a mind game it would not be as hard to quit. Some people also think that it is the idea that smokers need something in their hand or in their mouths. This is also not the case. If this was the case smokers would simply eat more. Granted, chewing gum or sucking on a sucker does help in the quitting process (so I've

2. As mentioned previously, smoking does increase the metabolism, making it easier to maintain your body weight. But, at the same time, it makes it harder for people who are smokers to do any sort of strenuous exercise. People who smoke a lot often get out of breath or cough after doing any form of physical activity.

3. One of the big factors that weighs into smoking is the finan-cial aspect. One day I actually sat down and figured it out. I smoke about a pack to a pack and a half a day. I spend somewhere around $220 on smoking in one month. This is for the people who buy the name brands such as Camels or Marlboros. The habit can get expensive and will put people in debt, not only to themselves, but also to their friends if they constantly ask to bum money to buy cigarettes However, it is like any other habit, if you really want to smoke you will find a way to get some money, which is not always good. I admit that one day that I was out of smokes I actually thought about selling some of my possessions on eBay. Just like any habit, people can get carried away.
4. One of the most obvious

4. One of the most obvious downfalls to smoking is the health risk.

However, I have to say that I really get tired of people saying "you know that's bad for you?"

I just want to go up and smack those people. I always think to myself "Really? I just though the surgeon general was kidding when he put those labels on there." You have to love it when people tell you things you already know.

At least if you are going to tell someone that something is bad for them, do it in a creative way Like go up to a smoker and pull out a lung full of tar (like in "Clerks"). Well, that might be stretching it, but don't tell me what I already know. My brain is full enough with useless stupidity. The way I look at it is the time I am taking off my life by smoking is the time that I would be in the hospital hooked up to machines. If I am in that condition, pull the plug anyhow. I understand that smoking will get me to that point quicker. However, I don't stop fat people from eating or alcoholics from

Do people understand that caffeine is a drug too? What about all those coffee drinkers who line up at the Carnation Cafe in the morning?

They are feeding speed to their body. So what is the difference?

Granted, coffee is not as bad as cigarettes. But caffeine can have long term effects as well. So, if I quit cigarettes, maybe other people can quit their "ioe." There you have it. I presented my case, both good and bad. My advice is to let people do as the wish. If smoking makes people happy, don't get after them. Everyone has their habits, some worse than others, but let the smokers be.

The way I look at it, the Bible says not to judge. So lay off.

Blue Jackets show punch

By Rusty Miller

COLUMBUS, Ohio -Shelley makes his living with his fists. Instead of throwing punch-es with them yesterday, he pumped them in the air to cele-

The scar-faced tough guy had his first career two-goal game and the Columbus Blue Jackets rediscovered their power play in a 4-3 victory over the Calgary Flames

"The two goals, that's pretty awesome," Shelley said with a gap-toothed smile. "I was pretty pumped, and the boys were pretty pumped to see it. It's just one of those things."

Shelley, who led the NHL in penalty minutes last season, had only four goals in his previous 145 games. He had one career two-point game.

"It's great to see," said Andrew Cassels, whose first goal of the season put Columbus ahead 3-2. "He works so hard in practice and the games. It's nice to see him get rewarded."

Shelley hadn't scored in 53 games before he redirected defense man Scott Lachance's blast from the blue line at 14:22 of the first period to tie it 1-1. It was the first time he ever scored a power-play goal. "I've been waiting for that out-burst," Blue Jackets coach Doug MacLean said.

Columbus was 3-for-8 on the power play after failing to convert on 12 straight opportunities and scoring on just two of 37 man-advantages the previous

"That's what won the game for us tonight, special teams," said Geoff Sanderson, who added a power-play goal. "And Marc Denis made some big saves when he had to."

Calgary was 0 for 5 on the power play. The Flames had a season-high 45 shots, 11 more than their previous best.

Lachance hadn't had an assist this season and none since last Feb. 12, a span of 31 games.

Shelley scored despite only playing 34 seconds in the opening period — he spent another five minutes in the penalty box after fighting Krzysztof Oliwa. Oliwa, a former Blue Jackets player who was banished after a fight with teammates in a park ing lot after practice, was booed loudly as he raised his arms while heading to the penalty box. Steven Reinprecht opened the scoring 2:41 in, jamming in a centering pass from Craig Conroy.

It was the Flames' first goal in 125 minutes after consecutive shutout losses to Detroit and Minnesota.

Jarome Iginla tapped in Stephane Yelle's centering pass off Columbus defense man Jaroslav Spacek's skate early in the second for a 2-1 Flames lead. But the Blue Jackets reeled off three goals in a span of 2:11 to take command.

Falcons' run ends in final

It was a great playoff run for the women's soccer team, but in the end, it came up just short.

The Falcons scored the first goal of the game, but Western Michigan responded with four unanswered goals — two in the final 12 minutes — to come away with the win and the Mid-American Conference tourna-

"We've done as well as we've done in previous seasons, if not a little bit better," Richards said. "I just really thought this was going to be our year."

The Falcons jumped out in front on a goal by Kristy Coppes 14:14 into regulation.

But the Broncos rallied with a goal shortly after, and the Falcons would be held scoreless for the remainder of the game. The loss marked the end of the careers of Kasey Freeman and Carrie Richards, who are the team's lone seniors.

The loss of only two players means that the Falcons will come back with a veteran squad

To get to yesterday's final, the Falcons needed to beat Central Michigan on Friday, and they did just that, going to penalty kicks to get the win.

In a game that was perhaps goalkeeper Ali Shingler's finest of the season, the game was score-less through all of regulation and nessecitating penalty kicks game for Shingler. "[Friday], she really held us together and came up with a very big performance," Richards said. "She played so well throughout the previous 110 minutes that I knew she was going to come through."

Coppes, Freeman and Natalie Sampiller were each named to the MAC All-Tournament team.

Men's soccer wins 1-0, moves on to faces WMU

By Chris Willig SPORTS REPORTER

The men's soccer team pulled off two incredible wins this weekend in the Mid American Conference tournament. The Falcons defeated Northern Illinois on Friday afternoon and beat the No. 1 seed Kentucky Wildcats on yesterday. Friday's game against Northern Illinois was won by the Falcons 2-1. The Falcons jumped out to an early lead and did not look back. Both of the Falcons' goals came in the first half and gave them a comfortable lead.

The first goal was scored by Sean McGarity. The goal was McGarity's second goal in two games and was his second of the season. The second goal came compliments of Dustin Snyder. Snyder knocked in the insurance goal late in the first half on a free kick.

The Falcons' defense stood tall and managed to keep the lead for the entire game. Northern Illinois' only goal came off a Falcon turnover with 34:27 remaining in the game. The Huskies gave themelves several opportunities late in the game but were unable to capitalize, thanks in large part to Dave DeGraff and the Falcon defense.

The Falcons allowed 12 shots in the game, three on goal. DeGraff, however, managed to stop all but one of the goals and finished with two Following Friday's win, the Falcons had the seemingly impossible task of slowing down the Wildcats of Kentucky. The Wildcats, who earned the No. 1 seed in the tournament, came into yesterday's game perfect in the MAC. The Wildcats were 6-0 in the conference and had not allowed a single goal to a conference team all season.

The last time the Falcons faced the Wildcats they were defeated the Falcons 3-0, how ever, yesterday's game proved to be drastically different.

Yesterday's game between these two teams was extremephysical. Each team received several cards throughout the game and with 21 minutes remaining in the first half Kentucky player Craig Pykett received a red card, which forced the Wildcats to play one man down for the remainder of the game.

The hard-played first half ended 0-0, both teams gave themselves several chances were unable to find the back of the net. The game remained 0-0 throughout the second half with neither teams showing any sign of weakness of let up.

The pace of the game was back and forth between the two teams offensively. The Falcons got their first break of the game with three minutes remaining in the game. The Falcons had the best opportu-nity of the season when a Wildcat defender misplayed a ball in his zone. Dan Bartulovic took the turnover and ran with it. The 2-1 breakaway proved to be more than h for the Falcons and Dustin Snyder found the back of the net when he received the rebounded goal in front of an open net.

"I heard Danny shoot the ball and as it came across I heard him celebrating before-hand, so the only thing I was thinking is I better not miss this," said Snyder. The goal was all the Falcons needed and the defense held Kentucky scoreless for the remainder of the game and the Falcons won the hard fought game 1-0. "We have let up goals like that all year, we've had some hard luck by just making some mistakes in the back, and it's so nice to capitalize on some-thing like this," said Falcon coach Mel Mahler. "Kentucky is a great team and I am just so happy for our guys. They have worked so hard. We have overcome so many hurdles this years, they really deserve this. We have one more to go but we are just going to enjoy this right now.

The Falcons' next stop is Kalamazoo. The Falcons are taking on Western Michigan in the conference championship next Sunday. The regular season match up between these two teams resulted in a 2-2 tie.

SCOTT PALUCH, HOCKEY COACH

Hockey extends unbeaten streak

The three-game unbeaten streak that the Falcon hockey team had going grew to four on Friday as they downed Niagara 4-2. It's a streak that started with a tie against Union two weeks ago then continued into last week's win and tie against Miami.

"It was a very good game and a game where both teams kind of counter-punched each other taking advantage of mistakes both ways," head coach Scott Paluch said. "It was just an interesting hockey game and fortu-nately we were able to win."

In the first period, both teams opportunities. The Falcons had a chance in the second minute of the game as Nick Lang made a good pass to Bryan Dobek, who cut in from the right side, but Rob Bonk made a big save for the Purple Eagles to shut down the opportunity.

The Purple Eagles had three chances on the power-play in the period, but BG made big stops and got good goaltending from Jordan Sigalet in killing off the penalties. BG held Niagara to two shots on the powerplay in the period and was creating a few short-handed opportu-

In the final minute of the period, the Falcons struck as Brett Pilkington got the puck off the right side boards and skated in putting a back-hand shot past Bonk to make it 1-0. It Pilkington's fourth goal of the year and third in the last three games. Niagara struck back just 49 seconds into the second as Sean Bentivoglio skated in front and put his shot by Sigalet's right pad to tie it at 1-1.

Browns keep losing, slammed by Chiefs

By Doug Tucker THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

KANSAS CITY, Mo. Sometimes only great plays stop great players. Chris Crocker avoided a block and made a desperation ankle tackle of Dante Hall yes-terday, keeping the NFL's most electrifying player from uncork-ing a record-breaking fifth touchdown return.

Hall's return ended up going 77 yards and set up Morten Andersen's 29-yard field goal, paving the way for a 41-20 victory over Cleveland that kept Kansas City (9-0) the NFL's only

The Browns (3-6), weakened all year by injuries, were without leading running back William Green, who was suspended for one game.
"I don't know when it's going to be, but we're going to win some games," said Cleveland coach Butch Davis.

As Crocker and Hall picked themselves off the turf, Cleveland players high-five and congratulated the rookie safety as though he had scored the game-winning TD. Hall imme-diately went over to console teammate Gary Stills, who failed to block the oncoming RECOVERY: Cleveland Browns tight end Darnell Sanders (89) and Kansas City Chiefs safety Shaunard Harts (42) chase after a fumble during the fourth quarter. The Browns went on to recover the fumble but lost the game 41-20.

"It doesn't surprise you that Dante Hall does that," said Chiefs coach Dick Vermeil. "I promise you he will do it again."

Green hit 29 of 42 passes for 368 yards and Holmes had 93 yards rushing and 66 receiving. He has six touchdowns in his games against Cleveland.

In addition, Eddie Kennison caught seven passes for 115 yards for the Chiefs, who con-verted 12 of 16 third-down plays, their highest percentage since the NFL began tracking the stat in 1972.

The Browns were leading 3-0 early and had Green in trouble when he heaved the ball to guard Brian Waters. Waters was immediately tackled and the Chiefs drew a 5-yard penalty for illegal touching. But Browns defensive tackle Gerard Warren drew a 15-yard penalty when he crashed into Waters as he lay helplessly in the pile.

Suddenly, the Chiefs had momentum and field position.
A few plays later, Holmes scored on a 1-yard run.

CHAD JOHNSON, BENGALS WIDE

Bengals get rush, drop the Texans

By Joe Kay THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI - Somebody named Johnson tormented the Texans again. Rudi Johnson set a Bengals record by running 43 times, picking up 182 yards and a pair of second-half touchdowns yes-terday in Cincinnati's 34-27 victory over Houston.

Still fuming over the way Chad Johnson guaranteed the Bengals' lopsided win last season, the Texans (3-6) were determined to shut him up in the rematch. The chatty receiver failed to score or do his promised touchdown dance.

The Texans couldn't keep the other Johnson — the one that keeps quiet and avoids theatrics from doing just about anything he wished.

Corey Dillon's unheralded backup kept the Bengals (4-5) in contention in the AFC North and feeling rather full of themselves heading into a home game next Sunday against undefeated Kansas City.

"We will win — that's a guarantee," Chad Johnson said. "It's no offense to their organization. It's just the way I feel. Some peo-ple might not like it, but I'm confident that my teammates won't leave me hanging.

"It should be the game of the week, the undefeated team against the new-era Bengals."

These Bengals are a lot more than just Dillon.

The penalty-kill is now at 94 percent on the season after holding Niagara to 0-8 on the power-play. Jonathan Sigalet commented on how he and his teammates have been shutting down the power-play.

"We've just been getting on the puck really hard and don't let teams get a good setup," Sigalet said. "Last weekend we Sigalet said. "I think BG is much faster this year and they are more aggressive in their systems," Burkholder said. "Scott's back-ground at Boston College is probably a big reason behind his philosophies and approach he has brought to them since he has been here. It's no surprise they are doing what they are doing this year and he's a big reason behind it."
