General Assembly Meeting at 4 p.m. in room 306 of the Union. Both undergraduate and graduate students are encouraged to attend this meeting that is open to the public and will feature speakers.

Berkeley 9,000 students voted to join the California Public Employees Retirement System (CalPERS) in this year's election.

The pie chart below represents the percentage of students who voted for and against the CalPERS vote. The pie chart is based on data from the American College Health Association (ACHA). The pie chart shows that 58% of students voted for the CalPERS vote and 42% voted against it.

Student Senate meeting last Friday afternoon at the Student Union.

Nearly 80% of the students surveyed said they were satisfied with the university's financial aid program.

The university's Office of Student Financial Aid and Scholarships (OSFAS) recently conducted a survey of 9,000 undergraduate and graduate students.

According to the survey, 78% of respondents said they were satisfied with the financial aid they received from the university.

However, 22% of students said they were not satisfied with the financial aid they received.

The survey also found that 44% of students said they were not sure how they would pay for their education.

More than half of the respondents said they were satisfied with the university's financial aid program.

The survey was conducted online and was open to all university students.

The survey was conducted by the Office of Student Financial Aid and Scholarships (OSFAS) and included questions about financial aid, scholarships, and funding opportunities.

The survey results will be used to help improve the university's financial aid program and to better understand the needs of students.

For more information, contact the Office of Student Financial Aid and Scholarships at 213-843-6888 or visit the OSFAS website at www.osfas.college.university.edu.

Web-based classes gain credibility

By Carol Baldwin

If you dread the thought of going to college but have credit hours to get or if you just hate to have to sit in class on a campus, you can go to college — if you want to but just don't have the time or the money — online.

The Internet makes it possible for students to take college classes for credit from almost anywhere. The key is finding an accredited college that offers online classes.

There are now 36 colleges in the United States that offer distance learning, according to the National Center for Educational Statistics. Although the number isn't large, they are growing. By 2002, there will be more than 100 distance learning programs, according to the center.

The big advantage of distance learning is that you are not limited to the geographic location of the college. For instance, in the Cleveland area, Kent State University offers 17 classes over the Internet, and Ohio University offers 85 online courses. Classes are also being offered online by many two-year colleges and community colleges.

But online learning isn't for everyone. Distance learning is time-consuming and requires a lot of self-discipline.

The student has to register for the class, pay the fees, complete the work, take the tests and turn in the work on time. It's much like any other job, except the student gets to set the hours.

Students can take classes on their own time, but they have to be organized. They must have good computer skills, and they need a good deal of self-discipline.

The student also must have access to the Internet. Many students use local libraries or computer centers for access.

Classes can vary in price, depending on the school, the department and the course. Classes at Kent State range from $29 per credit hour for business classes to $88 for classes in education.

Students must also pay for textbooks, software and other materials. So you'll be paying for a lot of extra costs.

The big advantage of distance learning is that you can take classes almost anywhere. A student can take classes at home in the comfort of his or her own living room.

If you want to try out distance learning, check with your school to see if it offers classes online. If you do find online classes, you'll need to check the following:

1. Is the school accredited? You can check with the U.S. Department of Education or with the appropriate state agencies.

2. Is the school approved to offer online classes? Check with the school to see if online classes are allowed.

3. What kind of classes are offered? Check with the school to see what kind of classes are offered online.

4. How much will it cost? Check with the school to see what kind of costs are involved.

5. How are the classes taught? Check with the school to see how the classes are taught.

6. What kind of support is available? Check with the school to see what kind of support is available online.

7. Is there a residence requirement? Check with the school to see if there is a residence requirement.

8. Are there any special requirements? Check with the school to see if there are any special requirements.

Distance learning is a great way to get a college education, but it requires a lot of work. But if you're willing to put in the time and effort, it can be a great way to get a college education.

Improving voting is encouraging

Not as easy, the undergraduate student body did in democratic epiphany, as in a sudden new awakening, and suddenly, was not a new undergraduate president among them. Despite the fact that one of their classmates was the most popular candidate in a three-person race.

Amidst this mix-up seems to have occurred. Last year voting.

You Decide

Because some think student voting has been successful in its first try, but it is generally recognized that there is more work to be done. The student government is making strides in this area, but many more students are becoming involved. It is essential for the student government to encourage students to vote.

The large turnout might be a result of the movement from last November's presidential election, where perhaps due to the large turnout was bolstered by something more enjoyable and existing The Facebook. That might be why more student voting for this election than the entire voting total of last year. It is estimated that 1,200 students voted, then only 10 percent of the entire student body voted. Perhaps due to the election, and due to the nature of online voting, the Facebook might have a role in this.

While the results of how many students voted are encouraging, it is not yet a time to celebrate the new voting system. At least 1,200 students voted at 8:50, but only 2,700 students voted, then only 10 percent of the entire student body voted. Perhaps due to the election, and due to the nature of online voting, the Facebook might have a role in this.

Across the country, the students were putting up their political ideas, but for the moment, the Facebook could have been more than a social media platform.

The Blade reported Monday, April 18, 2005

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

TOLEDO, Ohio — A man arrested six months ago in Texas on a warrant for traffic offenses was stopped for six times for traffic violations and even spent a night in jail before the Texas authorities never knew Delacruz was wanted in the 1974 shooting death of James Hendricks.

Delacruz goes on trial this month in the case, but never entered the information. Sgt. Mike Rhoades of the Toledo police said they do not have the Social Security number for Delacruz. The data-base did not require a Social Security number and most police departments check the database by names and birth dates, experts say.

Delacruz left his wife and young son in Michigan after the killing, and moved to Texas when he began doing a part-time job of a man. He said The Blade that he moved in with his aunt and changed his name.

"I stopped drinking, I stopped smoking," he said. "I didn't know no more because I had a family." He worked as a carpenter and had set up his own business in Houston and later in Seguin, not far from San Antonio, where he moved into an apartment in 1991. The extended family eventually settled near Lake McQueeney and his wife and children lived in an RV in the back of their backyard.

Toledo detective Donald Henshaw came across a cold, old warrant, and tracked Delacruz to Texas through an Internet search of a private database of personal data.

Authorities caught Delacruz on Oct. 4, one day beyond the 30th anniversary of the killing. He was brought to Toledo in January. Delacruz, said the Blade, will not be arraigned at his arraignment.

"I'm very grateful for this life," the second chance that he'd had. Delacruz's family, meanwhile, and they did not know an arrest had been made until months afterward.

"We weren't told anything," said Vaninvalid supporter, Paul Hendricks. Delacruz's wife, Jaela, said she did not know about the killing. She said she does not have the money to travel to Ohio to see him. "I really miss him," she said as she wiped away tears. "I don't know what I would do without him."

COLUMBUS, Ohio — A handful of factories in that region account for one-third of U.S. produced Swiss cheeses, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Immigrants from Switzerland settled near Amish farmers in Holmes and Tuscarawas counties in the early 1900s. Many of the factories remain family-run. John Stalder still delivers more than 75 million pounds per year.

Brewster Dairy is the nation's largest Swiss producer at more than 75 million pounds per year.

At one time the state had 48 factories. That number has steadily increased. According to the Department of Agriculture, the nation has 625 factories making 10 varieties of cheese.

The extended family of Teddy Hendricks is by far the nation's largest Swiss producer at more than 75 million pounds per year.

Clutch plays will be big for Reds

In the last 15 years or so, it has become commonplace for baseball teams to seek out hitters who can hit in the clutch. A clutch hitter is someone who steps up to the plate with the game on the line and delivers a hit. For the Cincinnati Reds, this season will be no different. The team has high hopes for its clutch hitters, and the pressure is on them to deliver when it counts.

The Reds have several players who can be considered clutch hitters, including Joey Votto, who is coming off a 37-home run season, and Brandon Phillips, who has hit over .300 in the past three seasons. Additionally, the team has acquired veteran players such as Adam Dunn, who has hit over 40 home runs in a season three times.

Manager Bryan Price said he has a list of players he wants to hit in the clutch, and he has been working with them to improve their abilities in those situations. Price has a reputation for being a tough coach, and he is not afraid to take a hard line with his players. This season, he will be putting that attitude to good use.

In the past, the Reds have struggled to hit in the clutch, and they have missed out on many key games as a result. This year, the team is determined to change that. With a lineup that includes some of the best power hitters in the league, the Reds have the potential to be a team that can win close games. It will be exciting to see how they perform in the clutch this season.

CARY, N.C. (AP) — Atlanta United will be looking to make the most of another chance to win the U.S. Open Cup, which they won in 2018, after falling in the final to Toronto FC last year.

The team, which has been off since the U.S. GP in July, has already been in training for the tournament and is looking forward to the return of the Open Cup.

"We are ready to go," said coach Greg Vanney. "We've had a lot of success in the past, and we're excited to have another chance to compete for the championship."

Mother of Jackson's accuser testifies

MADELINE M. Martin, Michael Jackson's eldest sister, was almost destroyed." The mother was the most dramatic in her demeanor changing to offer a few quips. Beyond the vivid courtroom scenes, she had been known to have been involved in a personal life trying to make our lives safer," the family said. The family is given a window of opportunity for bowling, reenactments, musical tributes, and earthquake safety workshops.
