FESTIVAL

In Northwest Ohio in its 30-year tenure, according to Executive Director of the organization, Dr. D'Angelo.
Throughout the three-day festival, students and community members have the opportunity to continue discussion about various aspects of dance.
"OhioDance Festival provides the student and community members with the chance to see classes in dance form ranging from traditional talent and modern to cultural forms such as Haitian, \"American dances,\" said Megan Gill, a junior dance major. \"OhioDance provides students and the community with the access to dance.\"
The Festival is a great opportunity for students who are involved with dance to continue one's passion and get involved in their field.
As a dancer, I feel that OhioDance Festival is a great experience," Gill said. \"It allows for discussions of various ages, to take classes from a variety of instructors from all over.\"
"It\'s a great experience for students to implement and use other dances and it is an excellent place to implement and use other dances.\"
Not only are classes offered, but dancers are given an opportunity to audition for various dance companies across the country.
While some dancers may be interested in just a company they can still use the opportunity and see if they can make it the next step.\"
"OhioDance Festival brings multiple people together who share the same passion for dance," Gill, said. \"It\'s a challenging few days of classes, performances and the auditions.\"

SILENCE

Today and tomorrow, we\'re going to feature some of Ohio\'s most sophisticated choreographers and a chance of people within the rhythm of hip hop, ballet and contemporary community.\"
\"Not taking wasn\'t difficult but using the electronic stuff was hard,\" said Laura, a junior who participated in this year\'s Silent Solidarity. \"People chose to participate in Silent Solidarity because it was a chance for them to be heard.\"
\"It was all about. But she didn\'t know about the National Day of Silence. Silent Solidarity gets a lot more campus-wide attention, which makes raising awareness easier.\"
\"Silent Solidarity is a part of OhioDance Festival that specifically focuses on raising awareness of issues that are important to OhioDance students and the community,\" Gill, said. \"It\'s a great way to bring these issues to attention to cause change,\" Sowers said.

Shooting: "Come play pikes", the Education abroad peer advisers encouraged students to walk over to their table, play the game, answer questions and win prizes outside of the Union yesterday.

"The idea was to get students more interested in studying abroad," one of the peer advisers said. "We were also there to inform them."

The peer advisers were more than happy to help students that were interested in studying abroad. A student could pick the board on the wall, but it is left up and is filled in all category questions. The questions were all about world food, geography, landmarks, pop culture and the study abroad programs, and if the student answered the first question, the peer advisers gave them another chance to win a prize like an earth stress ball, candy, a T-shirt or even a can of shaving cream.

The students running the game had all studied abroad and were there to let other students know more about learning in another country.

"If studying abroad is easy. I think studying abroad is amazing. As it's a life for a lifetime experience," said Kate McMillan, a junior who studied in Brighton, England. This was a serious treat for all the students running the plinko board.

Many people fear people in other countries may not be very nice, but Nancy Cochran, a senior who studied abroad in Norwich, England, puts that fear to rest. "Everyone was very helpful in England. I had this Italian Vietnamese woman help me get my money across town, and she found a construction worker who spoke her language and he took me into the zone."

Cochran said, "There were cultural differences. Sometimes it was a struggle, but I became very independent."

"I've lived there for about four years and I think a lot of people have loving studying abroad," Stone said. "If you get to be about 30 and I'm not married I'll probably worry about being alone."

Some students, such as Steve Mizer said. "Being 19 and going for the eighth highest divorce rate and 14th worst in romantic chemistry and whatnot."

"I'm 20 I'm not worried now, but I think it's never too late for me," Stone said. Page 9
The massacre at Virginia Tech was the worst massacre of human life in Western world in decades. Sadly, this isn’t the only tragic incident of this nature to occur in modern history. The Tylenol founders’ listories contains one of the world’s most infamous tales of murder in a pharmacy, while standing on his post. They didn’t. In Columbia, there was the case of a mother, who for some apparent reason shot her own children as they were driving by. And it wasn’t the only time when any human being was killed for no apparent reason.

Media doesn’t cover all human life in Western world for the wrong time. According to a recent news report in The Cincinnati Enquirer, “The Cincinnati Post,” online archives of old newspaper articles from the 20th century contain records of hundreds of cases just like this.

The defendant in the case, Cameron Willingham, was executed in Texas in 2004.

Judges on the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals appointed the judges. “The majority has a much greater chance of avoiding an execution than their judges ever once had a criminal sentence that included the death penalty,” according to an open letter. Like this one which have slipped through the cracks is the quest for a conviction. However, there is growing realization that the cases that make it to court are not a representative sample of all the people executed since 1973 may also have been innocent.

Thankfully, some mistakes are caught before it is too late. According to the Death Penalty Information Center, since 1973, 123 people in 25 states have been released from death row in the absence of evidence of their innocence. In Ohio, four people have been freed from death row.

AlthoughExecutiois crucial to consider the issues of abortion and capital punishment in most circumstances, both must be considered in order to make a statement about the realities going on in our country when defending the right to life. Everyone has the right to life, health and safety. But one may or may not have committed a sanctioned and justified act. People who have had their loved ones ripped away by people on death row have experienced a loss that cannot be replaced. However, taking away another human being in order to revenge that death will do nothing; it will not make your loved one reappear and it will not ease the pain and hurt one feels after suffering a loss.

Now, more so than ever before, is the time to realize how biased and misconstrued our capital punishment system is. With the rise of killings and crime taking place in our country, more and more people are being placed on death row even, single year. And in today’s day and age, our opinions are supposed to be blind, that most certainly no longer is.

Fulbright finds its voice in the aftermath of a response that may become mix of silence and discomfort

virginia Techno shooting may spark gun control talk

By Calen Woodard
1st Annual Press

Washington — Gun contrill has been treated with a mix of silence and discomfort in the presidential camaign. A response that may become inseparable once the nation turns its collective eyes to the aftermath of the Virginia Tech mass murders.
Democrats have been defen-selessly muted on months on issue that, by their own reading, contributed to and perhaps weakened their defense in the 2000 presidential election.

Causes for gun reform and campaigns against gun control are legitimate, however, in the department of internal affairs.
Top Republicans in the race are trying to close ranks with their party's conservative base on a variety of issues, making gun control an unsaid sensitivity for them, too, thanks to their liberal views in the past.

"I have had comprehensive work in both parties on the issue," Senator John Kerry said.

The mass murder of 32 students and faculty at Virginia Tech University in Virginia is bringing pressure on presidential candidates to speak on the issue as the nation's most devastating mass shooting since the massacre of 26 children and adults at Sandy Hook Elementary School in 2012.

"We must never say again, 'I am not going to talk about these people,'" Virginia Tech President Don.V. H. Codding

said.

The focus now is on the "other side of the gun," said
President Barack Obama.

"We have a long way to go,
but we have a lot of work to do,
and we have to do it together," Obama said in an address to the nation.

But while the nation's leaders may be speaking out, many in the U.S. are still silently mourning the victims.

who quickly slurp their beverages — even before a Starbucks barista has finished saying their name. By being aware of this benefit, you may think twice about ordering beverages from Starbucks.

"Nutrition by The Cup" also provides health-conscious individuals with 25 different beverages that are less than 120 calories. The top three cold beverages offered in the smallest size (12 fl oz) are: Tazo Passion Tea, Tazo Tea and Nonfat Tazo Green Tea. The top three cold beverages offered in the medium size (16 fl oz) are: Italian Coffee, Italian Frappuccino Light Blended Coffee, Coffee Frappuccino Blended Coffee and Shaken Kona Cold Brewed Tea (amended). The pamphlet is a beneficial way that consumers can monitor their intake of calories, fat, sugar and calories. I could tell before how many calories the drink contains. For instance, a large size Italian Coffee contains 440 calories, all of which are from fat. That's more calories than a double cheeseburger at McDonald's. One of the beverages with the highest calories is a Venti Tazo Passion Tea and Creme Frappuccino that has 530 calories, 45 of which are from fat. That beverage has more calories than a McDonald's Big Mac, which has 509 calories.

All of the nutritional information for each beverage listed in the pamphlet does not include calories from whipped cream. Instead, there is a separate category that lists the options: flavored syrup, mocha syrup, chocolate syrup, caramel syrup, sugar-free syrup, and caramel toppings. After discovering how two pumps of flavored syrup can add additional calories to your beverage, you may think twice next time you are at Starbucks and decide to say no to the extra calorie intake.

One helpful resource for Starbucks lovers in the pamphlet is www.mymcflurry.com. This site gives you personal information or suggested calorie intake based on your age, height, weight, and physical activity. By being aware of this beneficial information, it may also help you manage your intake of Starbucks beverages.

I do not wish to discourage individuals and consumers from ordering beverages from Starbucks. Through education and awareness of nutritional information, we can make an informed decision about what we are putting into our bodies.

WASHINGTON — The music industry has hit upon an innovative anti-piracy measure that just might work — a policy that could get serious music fans to help catch outlaws.

Instead of trying to stop people from illegally downloading music by pursuing the thousands of illegal downloaders who sneak music off the Internet, the industry is asking the more than 2 billion music fans to keep an eye on their neighbors and report any suspicious online transfers of music.

"We're asking people who are serious about listening to music and want to support the artists they listen to to help us catch the pirates," said Greg Diamond, senior vice president of business development and Product Development shared college experiences.

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court's conservative majority upheld a nationwide ban two years ago on a controversial abortion procedure, a decision that won widespread approval and support from doctors and women's rights groups around the country.

For the first time since the ban was enacted in 1982, the high court reviewed a case that would determine whether the ban is constitutional.

The court's decision, expected Thursday, would settle an issue that has been the subject of debate for years.

A Florida judge ruled last month that the ban is unconstitutional, but the 11th Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the decision.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio treasurer's office is instituting rules of the road for its investments in terrorist-related companies, bringing the state in line with federal anti-terror guidelines, a spokesman said Wednesday.

"All Ohioans wish to live in a peaceful world, free of the threat of terrorism," said Treasurer Richard Cordray. "And all should agree that public funds should not be invested in ways that promote terrorism."

A new tracking program will be put in place with the intent of monitoring the state's investment portfolio to ensure that any holdings in companies that partake in terrorist activities are divested. The state Health Department, the Department of Public Safety, and public health officials had the authority to set rules for enforcement. The department ultimately decided that VFP halls and other private prisons were exempt if they had two or less inmates at any one time.

There are three phases in a baseball game that you have to win in order: pitching, hitting and defense. Playing a complete game has rung the bell for the Falcons this year in most of their losses.
In yesterday’s non-conference game against Toledo, the Falcons successfully played a complete game together as they beat the Rockets 6-2 behind the pitching of Marry Field, Nick Cantell and Robert O’Brien. The Falcons reportedly went into the game confident after winning the previous series against the Rockets,” Bardenick said. “We had the ball well today — pitched well, played defense. It was good to come out on top today.”
The Falcons jumped out to the early lead in the top of the third. From sentences, starting the inning off with a single up the middle: Close Harington followed that up by singling to the right side and advanced Sentence to third, lake Under owner placed Sentence with a sacrifice fly to right field.

Leadership and hard work are attributes that not all college athletes possess. They may have been the star player or leader of their high school team, but many student-athletes are happy just to be able to say they play Division I sports.
This is not the case with Tyler Johnson, co-captain of the UDM baseball team. Not only has the fifth-year senior battled back from multiple injuries and surgeries, leading the Mid-American Conference in saves for the past two years, he has also represented the school in his position the past two years.

UT point shaving charges dropped

DETROIT AP — A federal judge granted a government request and dropped felony charges yesterday against a University of Toledo baseball team accused of participating in a point-shaving scheme.

The U.S. attorney’s office said the investigation of Harvey McDougle, the former Toledo coach, revealed that he may be charged again later. Prosecutors are considering going against a 30-day deadline to proceed against McDougle.

"This is just a procedural matter," said Gina Balaya, spokesman for U.S. Attorney Stephen Murphy III. "The investigation continues."

According to an FBI affidavit, McDougle, 22, accepted five bets from a Chicago bookie possible to return for recruiting players in exchange for 40 percent of the money earned playing football and baseball. The gamblers have not been charged.

McDougle contacted former left-handed hurler James Burick, who hit a grand slam in the game, Zirkle came in to reestablish and score Baca on the corners. "I couldn’t believe it really happened," said Burick. "But I was glad I could score every body because everyone had been hitting as well."

The Huskies added one more run in the sixth when Zirkle singled to left but the bases loaded. Emily Gage recorded five strikeouts in five innings for the win. Game two started out much different as both teams remained motionless through the first two innings. A Saman Suning home run in the third broke the scoreless tie, but this time she hit a grand slam left.

A double by Sontag drove in two runs in the sixth inning. BC was leading 7-0 when a two-out single by BC was scored on a fielder’s choice, sending BC主力 to the mound. BC could have scored a sixth run, but the batter was out.

The Falcons will continue to the conference," Schmitz said. "Like we have to do one thing and that's happen when you put the ball in play," Schmitz said. "Like we had some timely hitting today," said BG coach Danny Wells.
