Welcome to 'Dullsville

In this issue of The Pitt News, columnists Kelly Green, the Daily Staff and Thomas Juan discuss the impact of recent events on the student body. The columns touch on topics ranging from drug wars to climate change, offering a variety of perspectives and insights.

An All-American Girl

Stephanie and her family and friends shared their thoughts on how Stephanie has changed since joining the University of California, Berkeley. The family's joy and pride are evident as they reflect on Stephanie's growth.

Inside Scoop

Diana Wilbarger, who has been working on the campus for several years, shares her insights on the challenges and changes she has observed over the years. Her perspective offers a unique window into the daily life on campus.

For over 30 years, downtown shop infuses herbs, local flavor

By Andy Oriend

Sage and Thyme has been a fixture in the downtown area for over 30 years. The shop is known for its wide range of herbal products, including teas, incense, and essential oils. The owners, Barbara and Tom, have built a loyal following by providing high-quality, responsibly sourced materials.

Graduate student finds life interest studying aidabroad

By Rocky Young

A graduate student at the University of California, Berkeley, has found a passion for learning about foreign cultures while studying abroad. The student's journey has been marked by both challenges and moments of discovery, and their work has brought them a deeper understanding of the world and their place within it.

Vote over, students still upset over Stroh Center

By Andy Oriend

The University's proposal to demolish the historic Stroh Center has sparked widespread concerns among students and alumni. Despite the vote, many students express their continued opposition and call for a more inclusive and transparent process for future development decisions.

Professor molds minds

Annette G. Wilson

In the bustling world of ideas, it is hard to imagine there is a place where people come together just to think. Yet, the Stroh Center for Arts and Cultural Events provides a place where students do nothing else, as they ponder, question and learn.

The center is located on University's campus in the Student Union. This student-run center is responsible for bringing a large variety of entertainment to the student body. The center produces an array of events such as concerts, movies, speakers and exhibits.

As the events coordinator for the Center, Diana Wilbarger has been able to put her skills to work. She is in charge of marketing, promotions and budgeting for the events held at the center.

"We bring in a variety of entertainment for everyone. The events are for the students, by the students," Wilbarger said.

With the recording of the center's events, Wilbarger is able to track attendance and see where changes can be made. She also gets to experience her passion in the form of events and entertainment.

Wilbarger said she loves music and movie and enjoys passing her love onto others. The programs the center produces are there to inspire the students as well as to provide entertainment.

"It is a wonderful way to calm down and have fun," Wilbarger said.

On a recent trip to Calico, Sage and Thyme, Diana Wilbarger, owner of the store, said she was reminded of how much she loved the Calico, Sage and Thyme store.

"I walked in the door and was immediately transported," she said.

The Calico, Sage and Thyme store is located in the Berkey Center, one block from University's Main Campus. The store supplies the student body with a variety of items such as herbs, spices, natural remedies and essential oils.

"We have a wide variety of items here," Wilbarger said.

The store provides customers with a large variety of goods. The offerings range from traditional herbs and spices, to natural remedies and essential oils. The store also carries a wide variety of items such as books, candles and jewelry.

Art professor molds clay and minds in class

By Freddy Hunt
Editor in Chief

All of his life, John Balistreri has been playing with clay. At last night’s Distinguished Faculty Lecture Series in the Union, Balistreri shared how he has defined himself and helped countless students sculpt their own way to the same love with the power of clay.

“What’s clay?” Balistreri asked the nearly full theater. “Clay is mud, and it’s very specific, it fixed all over the world.”

What Balistreri shares with clay however, is special.

As a child, Balistreri would get his hands dirty helping his par- ents maintain their greenhouse in Denver. Working day and night in the greenhouse, Balistreri was taught about work ethic—a trait he has been pivotal in his career as a sculptor.

“When I was 20 years old, he started a ceramic studio in Denver and built a large wood-firing kiln,” Balistreri said.

In 1980, there were no gradu- ate art students at KSU, said Director of Art Education 115 in Aldine ISD, you’ll find...

DETROIT — General Motors Corp.'s new chief executive said yesterday that more probable bankruptcy protection to save itself, it is "certainly more probable" than before, as Corp's now chief executive said yesterday.

By Kimberly Johnson

DETROIT — General Motors Corp. will be in bankruptcy. The end date should be enough time, but it becomes evident that the changes can't be made by the deadline, GM could go out of business sooner, he said.

"It doesn't have to be 60 days," he said. "It's the best because we could not accomplish what we wanted to in terms of operational restructuring, reduction of debt on the balance sheet and what we need to do to accomplish these head parameters of having a viable business, this will be a management judgment" decided by the Obama administration.

Fritz Henderson also said GM is still talking with potential buyers of the Hummer brand, and a decision on the brand's fate will come in the next few weeks. GM said in a volatility plan that with the government to finance it would make the decision in the first quarter which ended Wednesday. In an effort to increase sales, GM launched a program called "Cash for Clunkers" that will make our payments for customers who trade their cars through the half of their cars.

CARTHAGE, N.C. — The Alzheimer's care unit at the Community Hospital in North Carolina was locked after a gunman entered a nurses' station there on Monday he is working with the home's residents. The reason he didn't get in was because he didn't know the code. Neal said her daughter Wanda is "downed," by the alleged actions of her estranged husband.

"It's quite clear that it would just explode over everything. He would be good and then something would just set off," Neal said of the possibility Stewart's rampage became domestic-related.

Purnell told The Associated Press Tuesday that detectives have not determined whether Stewart's rampage was "domestic-related." Police have said that they are investigating something specifically on a possible motive, but have said his actions were not a random act of violence.

Yesterday we gave you the starting five for the Men's Big East American team. Today we're showing you the starters for the Women's All-American team.

1. Courtney Paris: The Oklahoma center becomes the first ever four-time first teamer. She's not satisfied though. Before the season, she promised a national championship for Oklahoma, or she would pay all of her scholarship money back.

2. Maya Moore: The sophomore is by most accounts the nation's top player. She heads Lehigh University and is averaging nine points and eight rebounds per game.

3. Angel McCoughtry: The Louisville senior just finished leading the Cardinals to the Final Four. When she called out an ESPN analyst, she earned the respect of all basketball fans.

4. Kristi Toliver: The Maryland guard already has a year of Division leaders.

5. Renee Montgomery: The Maryland guard already has a year of Division leaders.
