Deans advise future graduate program closures

By Allen Widman
Assistant News Editor

Several university graduate programs have been recommended to be closed, suspended and reoriented starting fall 2012.

"Various college deans recommended these cuts in response to a $19 million reduction in the graduate scholarship budget over the next two years," said Graduate Dean Tim Minton.

"These are very tough times and very hard decisions — no one likes very hard decisions," he said. "No one likes closing programs, but there are times when these decisions need to be made."

Minton-Kruse announced the recommendations to the Graduate Council at its 2:30 p.m. meeting Thursday, saying they followed their appeared from Provost Ken Bellman. The recommendations can be made final after notification of the Faculty Senate Committee on Academic Affairs and the Ohio Board of Regents.

Increased police force accompanies ‘Falcon Fest’

By James Arvery

With the start of "Falcon Fest" Thursday night, law enforcement officers are preparing to handle the crowds that may accompany the event.

Nearly 4,600 people are expected to attend this week-end's festivities, according to the Facebook event invitation. Police are prepared to enforce laws throughout the city.

"We have stacked our staff," said Lt. Brad Bowles of the Bowling Green City Police.

"The main goal for our force is to make sure there is no drunk driving."

William Brown, Segment Coordinator

City Police have coordinated with University police, the sheriff's office, liquor patrol agents and other law enforcement units in preparation of keeping the city safe and enforcing the law during Falcon Fest.

"The main goal for our force is to make sure there is no drunk driving," said Sgt. William Bowlers. Bowling Green State Highway Patrol post.

State Highway Patrol will be sending several units to the city this week to help enforce traffic laws, he said. Some of these units will be from the Bowling Green post, while others will be from the Toledo post.

Some students believe the increased presence of officers will not change anything about Falcon Fest or the weekend.

"People are going to do what they want," said junior Garrett Lawson, who is attending Falcon Fest. Regardless of the extra law enforcement on Falcon Fest, students are still going to go out and have a good time, Lawson said.

"In full agreement with the dean's recommendations," Bodell said in a statement addressed to the Council. "These recommendations for action will help us to move forward this year as we focus our direction and clarify our mission through our process of strategic planning for graduate education." The 14 graduate programs recommended to Bodell were "selected based on criteria developed in collaboration with the faculty Senate Executive Committee in 2009," according to the statement. The primary criteria were

1. Academic quality: graduate program must be distinguished and be of a high level of excellence.
2. Institutional resources: program must have the support of the institution of higher education.
3. Student need: there must be a need for the program.
4. Faculty support: the faculty must support the program.
5. Alumni support: there must be support from alumni.
6. Community support: the program must have community support.

"I am in full agreement with this year's deans' recommendations," said Steven Messer-Kruse, a professor of statistics. "The deans are in charge of the portfolio of programs by the College of Arts and Sciences. They decided to present this list of programs to the Council members, however, expressed concerns about the way and when, and this is one way. Because this was recent, I expect a heightened level of interest in the festival and Japan."
When I was five years old, my world turned upside down.

Finding out I wasn’t going to be an only child anymore was a heartwarming experience. My parents sat me down and explained how exciting things were going to be with a new baby in the house. But I wasn’t prepared for them to be a girl, and that was when things took a whirlwind situation for me. I first met my new doll, and I was so excited! It was a pink Power Ranger action figure (with moveable limbs). Any girl born between 1989 and 1992 will understand why that doll was so cool. My sister showed me her dorm room, and even though she complained about the size, I thought it was great. Nothing I said would change her opinion. Appreciate siblings during Sibs N’ Kids weekend

By Stephen Reed

Looking back on it, Sibs N’ Kids Weekend is not only the time I decided to attend the University, it was the time that I made the choice to go to college. I was a sophomore in high school when my sister invited me to spend the weekend with her. I will never forget that weekend forever.

The first thing we did was walk the entire length of campus. I mentally prepared about what college feels like. I wanted to move in with her. I did not want to live on campus. When my sister told me we were going to the Sundial, I thought it was a win-win situation for me. I got a doll and a friend at the same time.

It was a pink Power Ranger action figure (with moveable limbs). Any girl born between 1989 and 1992 will understand why that doll was so cool. When it rains, it pours in the James house. When sisters fight, feelings are hurt. I wasn’t ready to spend four years with Ali, but this is my experience. Nothing I said would change her opinion. I didn’t remember what it was like to be an angry teenager, and I don’t want to relate to her. I’ve come to the conclusion that some things are better left alone.

As the night began, I heard turn on DragonForce at very high volume and sing along to every single one of their songs. Surprisingly, I did not annoy any neighbors.

Later, my sister took me to the Sundial and I was once again amazed at all the options. The food was great, the people were tolerate and the landscaping was beautiful. Yes, this was the weekend I decided Bowling Green was going to be my home for four more years. As the night began, I heard turn on DragonForce at very high volume and sing along to every single one of their songs. Surprisingly, I did not annoy any neighbors.

Washington D.C. school system finds standardized tests altered to inflate scores

Dr. Ann Swanson, the New York Times Columnist, and Guy Swanson, the American News Columnist

USA Today came out on an explosive investigation last week, revealing that students in the Washington D.C. school system were manipulating test scores. USA Today found an enormous range of cheating behaviors, including changing answers on standardized exams.

The enormity of these cheating behaviors is a cause for concern. The consequences of cheating are severe and can have a lasting impact on students' educational outcomes.

In the future, schools should adopt more rigorous anti-cheating measures and ensure that students are aware of the importance of academic honesty.

Wednesday Obama gave a speech, adult speech on his vision for the fiscal future of America. Gone were relatively pointless reform pro- perly and supposedly long-term reforms. We are talking about something particularly courageous for a politician, implementing an idea we otherwise raise.

More specifically he said that taxes should be raised on the rich, income brackets.

Immediately after he said this, people began to rail against it as an immoral protection. Many pointed out the rich already pay a huge percent of the bill. Why should they pay more? What the above has centered around is the merits of the progressive politician, whether is OK to tax a higher percent on the rich to deal with the modern wealthy Americans than others.

Abortion: Abortionists believe that we should defy all laws. The progressive politician is a story in the Bible as a good end of times. We can see, in an impoverished woman contributed a very small unit to the small col- lege, while wealthy indivi- duals contributed a lot.

Upon sight of this Jesus decided to be courage mainly for this reason. "Why tell you, this poor widow has put more into the temple col- lege, while they all gave out of their wealth, but she, out of her poverty, put in all she had to live.

One need not believe Jesus to be divine or even a great philosopher to see the wis- dom of such a statement. What is pointed pro- perly and well by him.

There is a certain inherent logic to the idea that those that have more should be expected to give more. But of course, there are those that base their argu- ments against the idea that the rich with their rich the right of the government to demand taxes. There are other opinions as well but that move is a move facing on our part.

These are the same pro- posals that Richard Nixon and the American people as "taxpayers," and talk of the gourmet (the point in totality that is separate- ness from me).

I go to call myself a "liberal" as well when I am a well of and it is a well of the kind of... the government is not God. This is true, the govern- ment is not God. The government is us, "Who are we?" Aren't we the American people? We are merely a collection of us all. In this way, paying taxes is merely an extension of the moral duty to give to one another.

Furthermore, I raise the prop- er funds to maintain social safety nets and all augmented public improvements while we would pay for it.

The People. The nation is a heavy burden, though. I do not view this as an abstract of the People."

We should not view this as a heavy burden, though. I do not believe that people have the right to challenge the ultimate sacrifice to service of the American people, paying more in taxes is a good idea as long as it is to bring down our lives.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Print Responsibly for students, 3 times the professors' printing rate! Students at BGSU are charged fees and costs for almost every action they take. In addition to the fees and costs of the fees, there are also the fees and costs of the fees. This discovery should end all untruths and lies to the specific kind of education for which the students are being charged to artifi- cially.

I thought much about the cost involved in recent times, when a professor of mine told me that the printing cost for the handout to bring is to class. He laughed when the students undergraduates were brought without them, the printout would be maybe 8 cents and the white five cents (per page). What is this, students charging more tuition and fees for universities in Ohio, so snarky.

The change to the printout for the handouts would be 1.5 cents. I support the professors in their fight of printing and excuses me to the University. While I don't like to raise taxes, I think Glenn Beck is right. It seems that making the USA rich in every way is the solution to the problem of student.

One need not believe Jesus to be divine or even a great philosopher to see the wisdom of such a statement. What is pointed properly and well by him.

"Bunnicula* is a musical based on the award-winning books by Deborah and James Howe. It revolves around the family's talking cat, Theo. It is actually a vampire after vegetable juice, and talking animal characters should be seen by children ages seven and older. The mysteries of a vampire are solved during the show. Since this is the first role Remaklus has been cast in, but she said it is for children," said sophomore Emily Remaklus.

"That way, more students can participate in the production," Bernard said.

Bunnicula also worked with second- and third-grade students to create artwork that will be displayed outside the theatre. As an educational director, Bunnicula works with the Treehouse Troupe, who puts on children's plays. The group has gone to elementary schools to show them parts of the play, has gone to elementary schools to show them parts of the play, and the cat," Bernard said.

The elementary kids were captivated and loved the dog, said sophomore Eileen Leili. She said doing the leader theatre with the elementary kids was a win for the kids to be introduced into theatre and may increase their interest for later experiences.

"One of the biggest challenges was balancing the play for the college audience," said sophomore Emily Remaklus. "It is for children, but this time she is an underling and has a small part as a celery stalk."

"That was tough for her, and she had to deliver a serious line."

Gary Winger | BG coach

By Bryan Mitchell

In one of the teams’ biggest week-end match-ups of the season, the BG baseball team is looking for a win in this weekend’s three-series against archrival Toledo.

The Falcons fell short this week, but are looking to redeem themselves in baseball’s version of the Battle of 1-75. Although the Falcons are over .500 in the Mid-American Conference, head coach Danny Schmitz referred to Toledo as one of the best teams in the conference.

“This is going to be a big one, no doubt about it,” Schmitz said. “They are playing very good baseball.”

Schmitz said the team needs to focus on controlling the running game.

“Bunting is something they like to do, so we need to keep them off the bases, and control it when they are on base,” Schmitz said.

At the plate, the Falcons, Schmitz emphasized the control and execution of the three phases; pitching, hitting and defense.

The Falcons have spent the better half of the season on the road. Schmitz is looking forward to the home stand, but he is treating it like any other series.

After the midweek losses to the University of Michigan and the University of Dayton, Schmitz said the team needs to refocus and regroup.

“We just have to take one game at a time,” Schmitz said.

BG is not back to full strength yet, with lingering injuries from freshmen Brandon Howard and sophomore Andrew Kim.

Howard is still out with a broken foot, and Kim is recovering.

Women's golf hosts annual Falcon Invitational at Stone Ridge golf club

By Ryan Satkowiak

In its final tournament before the Mid-American Conference Championships, the BG women's golf team will play at home for the only time this season this weekend. Taking place at Stone Ridge Golf Club, the Saturday-Sunday tournament will have nine other schools competing, including five from the MAC.

Coach Stephanie Young views this weekend as a great opportunity to gauge where her team stands compared to other teams in the conference.

"It's the last event, getting to play them this weekend, and then we have the three or four days until we tee off against them again (at the MAC Championships)," she said.

The Falcons are coming off their best tournament since September — when they finished tied for sixth at the Ball State Cardinal Classic — this past weekend. They finished eighth at the EKU Ball State Cardinal Classic, with several golfers showing their best rounds during the course.

"Young said the Falcons will try and carry last weekend's success into the home tourney this weekend.

"It was going so good as we have been in eight months. And that's an interesting one for me," Winger said. With the weather cooperating this week, the Falcons were able to get outside and carry last weekend's success into this week's tournament. "We're still looking for some consistency out of the bottom of the lineup," Winger said. "It'll be good to see, getting a couple scores out of the bottom of the lineup."

"There's always a comfort zone when you are playing at home, and we have no excuse to not be prepared; we just have to go out and execute," she said.

Even though most of the active golfers last weekend shot their best rounds since the fall season, Young is still looking to get better scores out of the bottom of the lineup.

"We have a few banged up: they are progressing but are not ready to play just yet," said Winger. "We have to simulate pressure. It's the number one thing; we have to simulate pressure and competitive type scenarios," she said. "We're still looking for some consistency out of our four spots. There's going to be some evaluation and we'll see what that translates into in terms of the line-up."

Men's golf to compete in Earl Yestingsmeier Invitational in Muncie

By Brandon Peckner

After a rain-soaked eighth place finish last week in Kentucky, the BG men's golf team will be traveling to Muncie, Indiana to compete in Ball State's Earl Yestingsmeier Invitational Saturday and Sunday.

However, the weather isn't looking much brighter for the Falcons this weekend.

Rain and heavy winds are forecasted for Friday and Saturday at the Delaware Country Club, and that has coach Gary Winger a little cautious.

"Weather will definitely play a major factor Saturday since we will try and play 18 holes," Winger said. "It's supposed to be cold all day Saturday.

But weather isn't the only thing on Winger's mind. The 20-team tournament has a unique twist to each week's scoring. Each team is allowed to field six players, but only five scores count.

Winger selected Drew Tranum, Wes Gates, Parker Howat, Charlie Olson, Torey Brummett and Bryan Mitchell as his starting lineup. But only the five low-scores will count toward the Falcons' team score.

"This will be Mitchell's third tournament this season for the Falcons. In his last start, he tied for 38th place at 36 holes at BG's home tournament, the John Piper Intercollegiate, back in September.

Falcons to play Eastern Michigan, Toledo at Keefe Courts

By The BG News Sports Staff

The BG tennis team will play its first and last home games at the Keefe Courts this weekend with a pair of matches against Mid-American Conference foes.

Today the Falcons will play Eastern Michigan at 1 p.m. Friday, and will continue the weekend with a 1 p.m. match Saturday against Toledo.

In the event of inclement weather or on one or both days, the action will be moved to the Pumberg Tennis Center.

This will be BG's last two matches before ending the regular season on the road at Northern Illinois.

The Falcons enter the weekend with a dual-match record of 10-7 and 1-2 in conference play. The Falcons have lost all three matches and four of their last five.EMU has a dual-match record of 1-1 and is 2-1-2 in conference play.

The Falcons lead the Buckeyes 20-18 in their all-time series, but UT has won the last two meetings.

University of California professor speaks about 'racial classification'

By Matthew Omi

Racial issues in America were addressed Thursday at the Union.

"Without some form of racial record keeping, we are unable to empirically observe institutional patterns of racial inequalities," Omi explained.

Omi also spoke of the problems and applications of each record. "This is why we are absolutely critical to the enforcement of civil rights laws within that realm," Omi said.

He added, referring to President Donald Trump, "We see all of these as critical to interfacing with the police.

Omi explained how maintaining racial categories may be beneficial in the medical field. "It provided a tool and a drug for heart treatment in African-Americans, as an example of how racial classification can be done in medicine," he said.

The differences in preference between African American and general populations may be societal in shape. In April, 1998, he had added that seeing race as biological is not always "on the table." He maintained the audience that racial consciousness carries with it many problems.

He acknowledged how racial categories can be problematic and archeological. "If we can see it, it can be so fluid. That is the reality," he said, "we cannot be abandoned." Given the big problem that race from..." colorblindness.

Omi said that he has not had certain answers to racial problems in America, he was clear in his assessment that such problems do not disassociate with growing racial categories altogether. "We are not free of what we call or..." on the table.

 Grassley criticizes ATF's conduct in gun probe

Emails from licensed gun dealer that riddle found six months prior in shootout at the border were from ATF operation

By Brian Bullard
The Associated Press

PHOENIX — A licensed gun dealer in Arizona who was cooperating with federal agents investigating a gun smuggling operation told investigators that he was worried that firearms sold by his store could end up in the wrong hands.

The reports are contained in a letter that Michigan Rep. Gary Peters of Michigan sent to the Department of Justice Tuesday, saying that ATF supervisor David Voth told him that agents were trying to determine exactly what the workers were doing when the fatal shootout occurred.

The ATF has been criticized for its handling of Operation Fast and Furious, an investigation into efforts to combat gun smuggling in the United States. The operation involved the purchase of risky weapons by an undercover agent to determine whether gun smugglers were allowing illegal guns to reach drug cartels.

But the letters obtained by the AP show that ATF officials were aware of the potential for abuse.

"We're going to die. Some of us," Grassley wrote. "I don't think that's a bad idea." But the stories stuck, and ATF officials have admitted that they were trying to determine what went wrong.

The senators sent a letter to the House Oversight Committee demanding that the ATF explain its conduct in the probe and release all related documents.

But the senators' inquiries have not been answered, and the probe has been criticized by some members of Congress who say it has been too focused on determining what went wrong rather than preventing similar incidents in the future.

Gov. Walker proposes partisanship as a solution to national budget concerns

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin Gov. Scott Walker's effort to hobble labor unions in his state has met with a storm of criticism, including the rate of union activity in the state.

Walker has proposed passing a law that would force unions to re-certify their desire to exist every year.

"It's a bad idea," said John Durso, an official with the Wisconsin Federation of Labor. "We should be fighting for the right of workers to freely organize."

On-campus Internet: What's the deal? After campus internet connection problems, students speak out

By Jonathan Kuhlke

Hello Kitty®-themed Eyewear. * "Unlikely" Britney Spears. Men's Dark Chocolate fonz bars. These are a few of my favorite things, I mean guilty pleasures.

But as for me as a true Hello Kitty®, there is one more guilty pleasure that I enjoy more than my favorite mural, hamburgers and fries.

As a kid, I had a dream and my first birthday dinner request every single year. There's something comforting about a classic beef patty between two well-proportioned buns with a side of crispy, salty fries. As an adult, I come to realize I shouldn't eat a burger more than once a month, I indulge myself and make veggie burgers and turkey burgers for weekend meals occasionally, but I just love them too much, and I really don't consider those healthy alternatives to be bad burgers.

During a recent trip to Atlanta, I found my dream burger place, but a fast that's too old. My birthday dinner request every single year. Thunderstruck shook AC/DC tribute band time job. Por the rest for approximately five years get to do. "This is one more fun thing I impersonates Cliff Williams either lead vocalist, Bon Scott I guarantee I will be listening to. I definitely enjoying for people who are grown completely different route. As a 21-year old. I definitely younger artists following trends I see you. Jay-Z, Eminem and Or someone, who at one point..." thing our singer does Brian Guilty pleasures often relatable in an unexpected I think our singer does Brian. To me, it's all just as energetic, taking his shirt off, lying on his bed. I see you. "Red. White and Crue" will be sharing the stage for the final time of the Omni's cover 195. used being made by adults and up As a 21-year old. I definitely
