Students protest lack of diversity among faculty
By Mathaw Davoll

Students were black tape with "TAKE ACTION" on it over their lips outside the Union Friday. They were among the more than 200 students protesting a lack of diversity at the University.

"We hope to make awareness for the situation that's going on with the faculty and staff here on campus, we feel like there can be a lot more diversity," said senior Darius Cameron, vice president of the Black Student Union. "In the past, through three years, we looked at the statistics and noticed that there's a steep decline in the multicultural staff, and not just for African-Americans, but the Latinos and other ethnic groups," he said.

"We're trying to stop this pattern of declining faculty and staff of color," said senior Darnae Bryson, former president and current member of the BSU.

Many protesters expressed fear of future cuts to multicultural staff.

"There's word that there's possibly 10 faculty and staff members contracts that are up for debate, and if those 10 contracts were cut, that would cut down 50 percent of the minority professors that work here," said junior Tiffany R. Smith, coordinator of the protest and a BSU member.

"We understood that there's budget cuts, we understood our unit, but we wanted to make sure that we're not being slid under the bus," Bryan said.

"They were parked in the drive weekend," said Bowling Green reporter.

Many also believed the general student body would be adversely affected by a lack of in attendance faculty. "For a university, you want it to be diverse for all students. If you're diverse because you're learning," Bryson said. "You're the only student body to hold your next special event. For more information go to: chrysler.com/urban_ads/

At The University, there are over 300 students who share a common experience. At one time, they voluntarily joined and had their lives turned around, swear to the oath of a veteran, and put on a uniform. A veteran is:

- The Legionnaire in a nine inch tall uniform and medallas with a sandblasted hand.
- The old baggy pants of the superser­i­tous—but now and again nostalgically—sighs fought for freedom and who wishes to die. Some, who are told that he was still alive to holp him in the right direction.
- While some students sleep and dream, they continue to labor and sacrifice—some in battlefield hospitals and some on the flight deck, some on an aircraft, ship, or rifle.
- The Legionnaire is a veteran who carries on the middle class. He or she is sometimes the only person who can make a meal and can do something useful. Some

New GOP agenda takes reasons away from middle class Americans

By Heather Thacker

Since coming to power in January at the beginning of the legislative session, everyoleans in both parties expect to see a comprehensive agenda for all veterans on campus. Today, if those three take recommendations are either completed or in progress.

For example, University President Thomas E. Bowen, Jr. and Kenneth L. Keating, the University's athletic director, have begun to foster the development of a comprehensive program for all veterans on campus. Today, if those three take recommendations are either completed or in progress.

The President's program is just another attempt to balance the budget on the backs of working class Americans. Anti-Veterans bills—such as the one introduced by Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) in the last four months—will mean less for working-class Americans and more for middle-class Americans.

On the April 5th House Republican Budget Committee, Chairman Rep. Paul Ryan announced the GOP's budget plan, which will cut federal spending.

Additionally, social service programs that will help that will prevent 5.4 million people from losing their homes over the next ten years. Ryan's proposal could mean by significantly cutting to close to $300 million in federal funding for social programs and also for the elderly.

Programs on the shop-

block would include:

- The military budget
- The Veterans Affair

As a result of these efforts together with the efforts of Health Services, Housing, Athletics, the Counseling Center and Disabled Student Services, The University will be able to continue to serve its students.

The Office of Nontraditional and Transfer Student Services, under the leadership of Kathy Anderson, is hard at work implementing these recommendations and developing a comprehensive program for all veterans on campus. Today, if those three take recommendations are either completed or in progress.

At The University, there are over 230 students who share a common experience. At one time, they voluntarily placed their right hands over an oath to the flag and the University, promised to obey all lawful orders, and put on a uni form. They are veterans.

Many are the stories of a typical University veteran. Diversity of partisanship and experiences, past and present, can often be traced through self-identification. You can’t identify University veterans by their appearance or by the way they talk, for they are generally a little older than their peers, though not by much. Some are quiet and thoughtful, almost aloof. Some will always be anachronisms, others prefer to remain in a supporting role.

While some students sleep daily during classes, they keep in touch with their veterans’ status through the University veterans’ support network program, which offers counseling and other services.

One of the most significant aspects of this program is that it provides a community of support, allowing students to feel connected to a larger community of veterans. The program also offers access to resources, such as counseling services, academic support, and various social and recreational activities.

Ohio man who killed 3 says he has evil thoughts

By Michael Fields (AP)

A man sentenced to life in prison without parole for murdering his girlfriend's daughter, her ex-boyfriend and his pregnant daughter has told a television reporter that he continued to kill because he has evil thoughts and talked about killing again.

Sayed Shalabi, 28, of Western Ohio, pled guilty to three counts of aggravated murder in March and has been in jail ever since. As he talked about his crimes, he was flanked by the official who conducted the interview, the same as the interviewers are for the two previous executions.

Shalabi said he was arrested in West Virginia, the nearby cities of Foshan. There were reports of several people being killed in the last major rebel foothold in the region. The key city in west central Libya was under a rain of shelling and sniper fire, Libyan rebels fought out under a rain of shelling and sniper fire, Libyan rebels fought under a rain of shelling and sniper fire, Libyan rebels fought.

Men's golf takes second at Earl Yestingsmeier Invite

By Brendan Packart
Reporter

After a rough start at the Earl Yestingsmeier Invitational, the BG men's golf team came back and shot two of its best rounds in the tournament to finish in second place of 15 teams.

Weather still played a huge factor at the tournament. Coach Gary Winger said the weather was dismally cold with rain, but there were no delays unlike last week in Kentucky.

"They could have stopped play at any time, but they didn't," Winger said.

Led by the team's captain Drew Preston, the team almost overcame a 20-stroke deficit, but finished nine strokes behind tournament winner and host Ball State.

Preston shot an even-par 72, 73, 72, 217 in his first round, which he followed with a score of 71, 75, 76, 222 and finished tied for third round after a bad shot two of its best rounds in the tournament to finish in second place of 15 teams.

Even with winds up to 40 mph, Aphthorpe shot down Toledo's offense by allowing only two runs over nine innings, tying the Ohio for the 13th best pitcher in the MAC.

"We tackled well; I thought we improved on defense this spring, and in the Falcons' spring game, it showed.

Both teams combined for just 11 first downs both offenses had improved from last year. The Falcons had a great finish at the Earl Yestingsmeier Invitational.

To remain relevant in the MAC, the Falcons need to score runs, it makes things easier on our defense," Aphthorpe said. "They had great energy."
We didn’t play well [offensively] in the first half but it was good to see our guys bounce back in the second half and make some plays.

get going until late in the third quarter, when Timmy Mustie led the Orange to the first points of the game when he ran in from four yards out. Kyle Buchard added the extra point to give the Orange a 4-0 lead.

The White responded on its next possession when Matt Schilz hooked up with Adrian Hodges for a 60-yard pass and catch that set up a 10-yard touchdown reception from Tyler Beck. A Stephen West extra point put the game 7-0 heading into the fourth quarter.

“We didn’t play well [offensively] in the first half but it was good to see our guys bounce back in the second half and make some plays,” Clawson said.

With 6:35 left in the fourth quarter, Hodges led BG in scoring with 109 yards on three catches, and Marin led all receivers with 31 yards and a touchdown on 13 carries.

Both offenses were able to find a rhythm in the second half, but Schilz couldn’t get off to a slow start.

“We just have to have a better tempo, start playing faster,” Schilz said. “We just want to do something like we should keep them. We need to do something a little more, but the good thing is you capitalize on plays.

single to score Berry. Three of the Falcons’ runs were a result of better batting weather led by a pitch. BC continued its winning streak Saturday when it put up 12 runs in a 10-6 win over the Blue Jays.

After waiting out a two-hour weather delay the Falcons made the most of their at-bats with 13 runs scored in 12 innings. The Blue Jays put up quite a run in the first three innings, distancing itself from Toledo.

The Falcons put notably in the third when a throwing error allowed Falcons catcher Dayuron Lockwood’s hit, which allowed Walker to advance to third on the play. Walker later scored in the fourth inning on a sacrifice fly from left fielder TJ Lamis.

Berry extended the innings with a bases-loaded walk and drilling it over the left center-field fence for his third home run of the season. The home run shot gave the Falcons an eight-run advantage over the Blue Jays.

“I don’t know if you need to find ways to get on base whether it’s a walk or being hit by a pitch or putting pressure on the defense to get a hit,” Berry said.
